ATTACK IS BEGUN ON NORTHERN LINE

Long-Range Rifle and Machine Gun Engagement Precedes Artillery Barrage and Advance by the Infantry.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Dec. 10. — Government militiamen blocked a fresh insurgent attack today, holding off the Fascists in heavy fighting for control of strategic bridgeheads at the edge of the Spanish capital.

The long-expected rebel offensive developed along the entire northern line, from the Guadarrama Mountains in the west to Guadalajara in the East.

Under an artillery barrage, the insurgents struck at San Fernando bridge, Pozuelo de Alarcon and Cuesta de los Perdices (Partridge Hill).

Infantry forces clashed in a long-range rifle and machine gun fight before the massed rebel attack. Bombs exploded along the Manzanares River line to the northwestern University City sector.

Insurgent headquarters reported the fighting was heaviest between Casa del Campo Park and University City, with almost incessant machine gun fire in the Manzanares River valley.

Seventeen huge biplanes of a type never seen before on the Madrid front bombed the zone far west of Casa del Campo, observers reported from Toledo. They were thought to be Fascist ships raiding Boadilly del Monte, ten miles from the capital, where Government troops have been holding a section of the road to Avila.

By the Associated Pess.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 10.—The Liverpool Rotary Club omitted its customary toast to the King at its luncheon today, before King Edward's abdication was announced.

When the chairman raised his glass for the toast, which ordinarily would have been for "The King, the Duke of Lancaster," there was a pause. Then the chairman said: "Gentlemen, I give you a toast to the royal family."

One of Edward's titles is Duke of Lancaster.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—For the first time a toast to "the King" was omitted last night at a dinner at the London Gateway Club.

Instead, the presiding officer proposed a toast to the Royal Family, although "His Majesty, the King" appeared on the toast list.

POPE SAID TO HAVE HAD A RELAPSE; VISITORS BARRED

Report From Reliable Source Is That Doctor Was Called and Injection Was Given Patient.

CONDITION SAME, BULLETINS ASSERT

Physician Declares Later That Pontiff May Be Kept in Rooms Until After Christmas.

By the Associated Press.

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 10.—It was reliably reported at the Vatican that Pope Pius XI suffered a relapse today from paralysis of the legs. He was stricken Saturday and was reported later to be recovering.

A bulletin issued by the Pope's physicians this morning had said that, while the Pope was remaining in bed, his condition was the same.

The Pope's physician, Dr. Amanti Milani, after a second morning visit, said he was quite satisfied with his patient's condition. He said the Pope probably would be confined to his apartment until after Christmas. Dr. Milani said the Pope was becoming more reconciled to his affliction.

During the morning, the Pope was raised from his bed and assisted to a study adjoining the sickroom for a short while, it was announced.

Except for the doctor and the Pope's attendant, only the Papal Secretary, Cardinal Pacelli, was admitted to the sickroom.

Later, a verbal bulletin disclosed that an elastic stocking had been prescribed for the Pope's left leg, to relieve a persistent varicose condition.

The relapse was understood to have occurred shortly before 7 a. m. Dr. Milani was summoned. He gave the patient an injection and a cordial.

Shortly after the relapse was reported, a high Vatican source expressed the opinion that even if the Pope recovered from the present illness he never would walk again and would be compelled to spend the rest of his days in an armchair.

The order was immediately approved by the Governor-General.

The action was taken under section 4 of the Statute of Westminster. Thus the Canadian Parliament will not have to assemble immediately, but can ratify the action at a regular session in January.

SYDNEY, Australia, Dec. 11. (Friday)—Hundreds of thousands of Australians sat by their radio most of the night to hear Prime Minister Joseph Lyons read King Edward's message of abdication shortly before 2 o'clock this morning.

After ending the announcement, the Premier said: "It is with the deepest sadness we bid King Edward farewell. We turn our thoughts to the new King who takes to the throne a wife we know and love. Whatever regret we feel, Australians know the new King and Queen will excite and attract admiration and loyalty."

WOMAN 'VOTED ONLY 5 TIMES'

Testifies in Cape May (N. J.) Election Contest.

By the Associated Press.

CAPE MAY COURT HOUSE, N. J., Dec. 10.—Marian Ellis, 22-year-old of Philadelphia, testified today in the hearing on the contested State Senate election in Cape May County that she voted "only five times" for William C. Hunt, Republican, because the man who instructed her "didn't have any more names."

Miss Ellis testified that Chester Dick, Republican excise commissioner at Wildwood, instructed her to vote for Hunt on the five occasions. She is at liberty under bail on a Federal charge of illegal voting. Jesse D. Ludlum, Democrat, contended Hunt's 437-vote margin of victory was accomplished by fraud.

Text of King's Statement

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 10.

FOLLOWING is the text of King Edward VIII's announcement of abdication as read to the House of Commons today:

After long and anxious consideration, I have determined to renounce the throne to which I succeeded on the death of my father and I am now communicating this, my final and irrevocable decision.

I deeply appreciate the spirit which has actuated the appeals which have been made to me to take a different decision and I have before reaching my final determination most fully pondered over them.

But my mind is made up. Moreover, further delay cannot but be most injurious to the peoples whom I have tried to serve as Prince of Wales and as King and whose future happiness and prosperity are the constant wish of my heart.

I take my leave of them in the confident hope that the course which I have thought it right to follow is that which is best for the stability of the throne and Empire and happiness of my people.

I am deeply sensible of the consideration which they have always extended to me both before and after my accession to the throne and which I know they will extend in full measure to my successor.

I am most anxious that there should be no delay of any kind in giving effect to the instrument which I have executed and that all necessary steps should be taken immediately to secure that my lawful successor, my brother, his Royal Highness, the Duke of York, should ascend to the throne.

I, Edward VIII, of Great Britain, Ireland and the British Dominions Beyond the Seas, King, Emperor of India, do hereby declare my irrevocable determination to renounce the throne for myself and for my descendants and my desire that effect should be given to this instrument of abdication immediately.

In token whereof I have hereunto set my hand this tenth day of December, 1936, in the presence of the witnesses whose signatures are subscribed.

Signed, EDWARD R. I.

My execution of this instrument has been witnessed by my three brothers, their Royal Highnesses, the Duke of York, the Duke of Gloucester and the Duke of Kent."

MONARCHY ATTACKED IN HOUSE OF COMMONS

Laborite Says It Has Served Usefulness, Another Assails "Humbug, Cant."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Despite a plea for restraint which had been made by Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, outspoken Laborite members and the only Communist member shouted out remarks about Edward and the monarchy at the night session of Commons.

James Maxton, Independent Laborite, declared Edward's abdication proved the monarchy had outlived its usefulness, and he declared Britain and the Dominions should become Republican.

A bitter attack upon the relationship of Edward and Mrs. Simpson was made by George Buchanan, another Independent Labor man, who defied attempts of other M. P.'s to shout him down.

Buchanan declared he never had listened to such "humbug" as he had heard in Commons today, and that he felt praise of the King, which was expressed in previous speeches, was not sincerely held in any quarter of the House. Shouts of "No" failed to halt him.

Referring to Mrs. Simpson's divorce, Buchanan said:

"Everyone knows it was a breaking of the law and throwing the law courts aside, entering into an association which now everyone knows was collusive action."

"Today I listened to more cant and humbug than ever before in my life. If Edward had not gone out, everyone knows the same people who today paid him this lip service here would have poured out scorn, abuse, and filth at him.

"If the King is one-tenth as good as you say he was, what does everyone want him to be unloading?

"It is because you want to get rid of him. If an ordinary workman had been in this mess, everyone in this house would have been ashamed of him.

"Today you are setting aside your pampered royalty. The next one will be pampered too."

BERLIN PAPERS TELLING OF ABDICATION HELD UP

Extra Editions Ready, but They Are Not Permitted to Be Circulated.

BERLIN, Dec. 10.—The Propaganda Ministry lifted its order against publication of news about the British crown crisis today but held up extra newspaper editions announcing King Edward's abdication for several hours.

Berlin newspapers held their staffs on word from London, hoping that the order would be lifted as soon as the abdication was officially announced.

MRS. SIMPSON 'HAS NOTHING TO SAY'

Knew of Abdication Before Newspapers Did, Spokesman Announces at Cannes.

By the Associated Press.

CANNES, France, Dec. 10.—Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson "has nothing to say" today concerning the abdication of King Edward, according to her spokesman, Lord Brownlow, Gentleman-in-Waiting to Edward, who accompanied Mrs. Simpson here from London.

He said Mrs. Simpson had been informed of the abdication before word of it was brought to the villa by newspaper men.

"There is no statement and there will be no statement," he said.

While the Crown crisis over her was moving to its climax in London, the American-born friend of Edward VIII retired into strictest seclusion at the Herman Rogers villa. There were rumors she had left Cannes, but these were promptly denied.

It was learned Mrs. Simpson talked at length on the London telephone today. She was on the line for some time.

Mrs. Simpson said through an intermediary today there was not "the remotest possibility" that Edward would join her here "now or later."

Eight French detectives stood guard outside the villa. Inside were Scotland Yard men.

Curious groups collected on the roads. Detectives listened in silence while one old man, wearing East-Indian trousers fitting close below the knee, delivered an oration urging that the Crown crisis be referred to the League of Nations.

NO SIMPSON WEDDING TILL NEXT APRIL 27, IF THEN

Divorce May Be Made Final Earlier, but Required Steps Haven't Been Taken.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Edward must wait until April 27, 1937, to marry Mrs. Simpson unless a general or special order making her divorce absolute before then is granted. Her decree nisi of divorce from Ernest Aldrich Simpson does not automatically become final until six months after it was granted in October.

Necessarily, if Mrs. Simpson's decree nisi is not made final, she remains the wife of Simpson and there could be no marriage with Edward.

Baldwin Reports to Commons In Full His Historic Conversations With the King

Premier Makes Plain That Decision Was Edward's Alone and His Role Was That of Friendly Adviser.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 10. — Following formal announcement of King Edward's abdication, Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin gave Commons today a detailed account of the conversations between the King and the head of his Government that led to renunciation of the throne.

After Speaker Fitzroy had finished reading the King's message, Prime Minister Baldwin said:

"I have to move that His Majesty's most gracious message be now considered.

"No more grave message has ever been received by Parliament and no more difficult and I might almost say more repugnant task has ever been imposed upon the Prime Minister.

'I will ask the House which I know will not be without sympathy for me now to remember that in this last week I have had little time in which to compose a speech for delivery today.

"And so I must tell what I have to tell, truthfully, sincerely and plainly with no attempt to dress up or to adorn and I shall have little or nothing to say in the way of comment or criticism, of praise or blame.

"I think my best course today and one that the House would desire is to tell them so far as I can what has passed between His Majesty and what has led up to the present situation.

"I would like to say at the start that His Majesty as Prince of Wales has honored me for many years with a friendship which I value and I know that he would agree with me in saying to you that it was not only a friendship but between man and man a friendship of perfection.

"I would like to tell the House when I begin that when I said 'good-by' on Tuesday night at Fort Belvedere we both knew and felt and said to each other that that friendship, so far from being impaired by discussions this last week, bound us more closely together than it ever has and would last for life.

"Now sir, the House will want to know when it was that I had my first interview with His Majesty.

"I may say that His Majesty has been most generous in allowing me to tell the House the pertinent part of the discussions that took place between us.

"As the House is aware, I had been ordered in August and September to take a complete rest, which, owing to the kindness of my staff and consideration of all my colleagues, I was able to enjoy fully and when October came, although I had been ordered to take a rest that month, I felt I could not in fairness to my work take a further holiday and I came, as it were, on half time before the middle of October.

"I was then for the first time

COMMONS READY TO RATIFY ACTION

Adjourns Briefly After Announcement, Then Reconvenes to Consider Legislation Necessary to Meet Edward's Wish.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—King Edward VIII abdicated today. His message of formal renunciation of the throne was officially read to the House of Commons.

Commons convened at 2:45 p. m. (8:45 a. m. St. Louis time). Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin was late in entering the House. He arrived at 3:30. Soon thereafter the Speaker of the House, Capt. Edward Algernon Fitzroy, arose and announced he had "a message from His Majesty the King, signed by his own hand."

King Edward's words, in renouncing the throne, as read by the Speaker, were:

Brother Becomes George VI.

Edward's next younger brother, Albert Frederick Arthur George the tall, 40-year-old Duke of York, will rule over the 495,000,000 subjects of the Empire. He will reign as George VI.

This was the finale of days of negotiation between the Prime Minister and Edward over Edward's avowed intention of marrying Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, American born divorcee—a marriage which the Prime Minister and his Government firmly opposed on any terms whatever.

After Speaker Fitzroy had finished the message, Prime Minister Baldwin said:

"I have to move that His Majesty's most gracious message be now considered.

"No more grave message has ever been received by Parliament and no more difficult and I might almost say more repugnant task has ever been imposed upon the Prime Minister."

Commons Reconvenes.

The House of Commons, which had adjourned at 4:40, reconvened at 6 p. m. to consider legislation which would make the abdication effective. It adjourned again at 6:40 after the text of the abdication bill had become available.

Tomorrow night, it was understood, the abdication act will be taken to the King for signature. At 2:45 p. m. on Saturday, the House will meet to take the oath of allegiance to the new King. The oath taking probably will be continued over Monday.

returned to his official residence at 7:03 p. m.

Clement R. Attlee, leader of the opposition, moved adjournment of the first Commons session after Baldwin had finished speaking.

"In view of the grave and important nature of the communication received from the King," the Labor party went into immediate session to formally decide its policy—already a foregone conclusion that it would be with Baldwin.

The Accession Council is expected to convene at St. James's Palace on Saturday, when the Lords, the Privy Council, the High Commissioners of the Dominions and India, the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of the City of London will approve proclamation of the new King.

Unofficially, it was stated there would be no alteration in coronation plans or the May 12 date.

By abdication, Edward relinquished all his many titles, but it was expected a special dukedom would be created for him.

Edward, said a report, intends to leave the country, probably tomorrow night. There was no indication where he would meet Mrs. Simpson or when they would marry.

Attlee Addresses Night Session.

Attlee was cheered loudly when he arose to address the members when Commons reconvened tonight.

"This occasion does not, in my view, call for long and eloquent speeches.' Attlee said.

"My words will be few and simple. We have all heard with profound concern the message from the King.

"The King has decided he can no longer continue on the throne. The whole country will receive the news with the deepest sorrow and his subjects in these islands and throughout the British dominions beyond the seas will feel a sense of personal loss.

"I am certain that throughout these anxious days he has had the sympathy of all in the tragic dilemma with which he has been placed.

"This is due not only to the nature of the dilemma involving the strongest human emotions, but to the personal affection he has inspired in his people.

"No British monarch has been so well known to his subjects. People not only in this country, but throughout the commonwealth and the empire have seen in him not a remote ruler—many of them have been personally acquainted with him and he has visited places where many of them live."

"Sympathy for Unemployed."

"We all know of his personal charm, courage and ready sympathy with suffering. We on this bench (Laborites) know how he felt for the miners in their time of trial and how he showed his deep human interest in the unemployed and the people of the distressed areas.

"Now purely personal and human consideration have conflicted with the obligations and responsibility of his high calling. I am sure that all of us tried to see if there were some way in which this conflict could be resolved.

"We hoped it would not come to abdication, but the King has made his decision. He is resolved to abide by it. We can do no other than accept it. The wish of all his people will be that he will have a long, happy life.

"We can all appreciate the strain these events have placed on the Prime Minister. He is entitled to our sympathy. The country has received a severe shock. It will take time to recover from it.

"The position of anyone who in these days of pressing problems is called upon to succeed to the throne is obviously one of great difficulty.

"It will be the endeavor of all of us to do what we may to lighten that burden. On behalf of my colleagues, I would like to express our deepest sympathy to Queen Mary and the other members of the royal family.

Liberal Party Leader Speaks.

Sir Archibald Sinclair, leader of the Liberal parliamentary party, arose as Attlee finished. He said:

"The country and the empire have been passing through days of stress and strain. The climax to which events have now reached must arouse in all of us deep feelings of grief and frustration.

"We are bound to our King not only by formal solemn ties, by oaths of allegiance and by our recognition of the crown as the one remaining link uniting all the people of the empire, but also by those closer, more intimate links to which the leader of the opposition has so simply testified.

"The rupture of the ties which the King has forged between himself and his people is profoundly painful to us all.

"It must be the most painful to those honorable gentlemen who, during the brief months of his reign, have been his ministers and confidential advisers.

"Above all, the Prime Minister, his closest and most intimate adviser, deserve our sympathy and also our gratitude for the grave, clear, moving statement which it was his melancholy duty to make to us this afternoon."

King's "Political Wisdom."

"Let us also gratefully and respectfully acclaim the political wisdom which His Majesty has shown in discountenancing any attempt to divide the country on the issues his proposed marriage involves.

"It is in large measure due to His Majesty's wise and strong restraint and his recognition of the supremacy of Parliament and constitutional responsibility of his Ministers that the crown has not become involved in our political controversy but remains aloof.

"The Prime Minister referred to the possibility of a morganatic marriage. I think it is only right to the House to say that I could not have supported it.

"In my judgment the Government had no option but to reject the proposal. No man more deserves the generous sympathy and support of the British people than the devoted brother and loyal subject of the present King, whose duty it will be to succeed him on the throne.

"None can doubt his sincerity and high sense of public duty and all will welcome to the throne that greatest lady, his wife, who was born a commoner but who has won the hearts of the British people by showing a clear and just conception of royal duty and opportunity in a democratic country."

Remarks by Churchill.

Before the House adjourned the second time, it also heard from Winston Churchill, the King's supporter, that it was clear "there was at no time a constitutional crisis" between King and Government; that the King "voluntarily made a sacrifice for peace and the strength of his realm which goes far beyond the bounds required by the law and the Constitution."

Session of House of Lords.

Viscount Halifax, Lord Privy Seal, moving the reply to the King's message in the House of Lords, read correspondence which passed between the Cabinet and Edward vainly seeking to change his decision.

The following letter was transmitted to the King after Wednesday's Cabinet session, said Halifax:

"Mr. Baldwin, with his humble duty to the King:

"1.—This morning Mr. Baldwin reported to the Cabinet his interview with Your Majesty yesterday, and informed his colleagues Your Majesty then communicated to him informally your firm and definite intention to renounce the throne.

"2.—The Cabinet received the statement of His Majesty's intention with profound regret and wished Mr. Baldwin to convey to His Majesty immediately the unanimous feelings of His Majesty's servants.

"The Ministers, reluctant to believe His Majesty's resolve is irrevocable, still venture to hope before His Majesty pronounces any formal decision, His Majesty may be pleased to reconsider the intention which must so deeply distress and so vitally affect all His Majesty's subjects.

"3.—Mr. Baldwin is at once communicating with the Dominion Prime Ministers for the purpose of letting them know His Majesty now has made to him an informal intimation of His Majesty's intention."

King Edward's Reply Read.

Halifax said Edward replied:

"The King received the Prime Minister's letter of Dec. 9, 1936, informing him of the views of the Cabinet.

"His Majesty has given the matter his further consideration, but regrets he is unable to alter the decision."

The Archbishop of Canterbury, a leader in the opposition to the King's marriage to Mrs. Simpson, then arose and in a choked voice said:

"This is an occasion when our thoughts are too deep for tears and certainly too deep for words."

"The Queen Mother, as I well know," he added, "during these weeks of tension and anxiety has borne herself with all the dignity, calmness and courage which have given her a place so secure in the hearts and minds of her people."

Lord Halifax Resumes.

Halifax announced Baldwin immediately would introduce legislation in the House of Commons giving effect to Edward's wishes.

Then he added:

"It will be my duty to ask your lordships on the receipt of the bill from another place (Commons) to suspend the necessary standing orders to enable this house similarly to pass it through all stages in order that it may receive the royal assent by commission before we rise tomorrow."

The Lord Privy Seal, shattering precedent, next proposed that the Lords meet Saturday afternoon to begin taking the oath of allegiance to the new King.

The Marquis of Salisbury described the King's abdication as a wound in the body politic.

"It is a disaster," he cried, "that leaves it mutilated and torn.

"When we think of all the qualities of King Edward, and that he has abandoned all these responsibilities, we can only bow our heads in sorrow."

The Marquis of Crewe, leader of the Liberal peers, was more optimistic.

"The whole country and the whole Empire have been passing through some dark hours, but we look to the coming day," he said.

The Lords rose at 4:30 p. m.

Signing of Abdication Papers.

The actual abdication papers, it was learned, were signed at Fort Belvedere at 10 a. m., today, with the three haggard brothers, the Dukes of York, Gloucester and Kent, gathered around the sovereign.

As the signatures were affixed, the flag of the Duchy of Cornwall, which had been flying over the Fort since the crisis began, was lowered on its staff. Then it was raised—an indication, some thought, that the King might retain the title, Duke of Cornwall.

Inside the Commons, the spirit of the old cry: "The King is dead; long live the King!" was evident as a great roar greeted Prime Minister Baldwin's words: "Let us rally around the new King!"

Baldwin Reviews Negotiations.

Baldwin outlined the entire negotiations for Commons in a voice low and broken with emotion. He described his discussions with the King about Mrs. Simpson, and told the members how Edward from the outset had declared his determination to marry her.

He related how he and the Monarch had tackled the problem as man to man, the King insisting they settle the whole issue between themselves.

Cheers rang through the Chambers as Baldwin declared:

"I reminded him of what I have often told him and his brothers in years past, and that is this: The Crown in this country through centuries has been deprived of many of its prerogatives but today—while that is true—it stands for far more than it ever has done in its history.

"Its integrity is not only the last link of Empire . . . it is a guarantee, so long as it exists in that integrity, against the many evils that have affected and afflicted other countries."

When he had finished, Galdwin, as a sign of the conciliatory nature of the King's renunciation of his throne, took out a penciled note received from Edward this morning.

The Duke of York and the King, the note said, "always have been on the best terms as brothers. The King is confident the Duke deserves, and will receive, the support of the whole Empire."

There was a marked lack of demonstration when word of the abdication became known in London. Crowds cheered Queen Mary when she left the new King's Piccadilly house at 4:31 p. m., however, and police reinforcements were called out to keep the people moving there. The crowds obeyed the police instructions, but refused to leave the neighborhood, spreading into the street and interfering with the congested Hyde Park corner traffic.

A thick fog lay over the city. Knots of people gathered everywhere. There were no newspaper extras as they are known to America, but the papers inserted abdication bulletins in their front page columns.

London's Stock Exchange closed firm and its members cheered the new King.

Edward Presumably at Lodge.

The belief was widespread that Edward would go to the Continent tomorrow, but it was considered more likely he would remain in seclusion at Belvedere until the act of abdication becomes law.

No law exists covering the situation, but it generally was considered true that Edward may not stay in Great Britain or any dominion of the Empire. Time may change that situation, if the Government becomes convinced his return would not be embarrassing politically. Many thought he would return to England within a few years and live the quiet life of a country gentleman—a life he so greatly prefers to the duties of state.

Baldwin Cheered on Arrival at Commons.

Cheering crowds greeted Baldwin as he arrived at the House of Commons. He drove into the carriage entrance at 2:34 p. m. after a quick trip by automobile from No. 10 Downing street, his official residence.

Continuous cheers sounded as the Prime Minister's car moved from the official residence in Whitehall and under the Commons entrance.

The historic session began promptly at 2:45 p. m. with the regular question and answer period. Every seat inside the Commons was taken. Aisles and all available standing room were crowded to capacity. The diplomatic gallery was filled with Ambassadors and Ministers. Peers crowded their own separate gallery. Wives of Ministers and other distinguished ladies looked down on the dramatic scene behind what is known popularly as "the grille."

Baldwin Tells Commons of Talks With King

since the beginning of August in a position to look into things.

"There were two things that disquieted me at that moment.

"There was coming into my office a vast volume of correspondence mainly at that time from British subjects and American citizens of British origin in the United States, all expressing perturbation and uneasiness at what was then appearing in the American press.

"I was aware also that there was in the near future a divorce case coming on, the results of which made me realize that possibly a difficult situation might arise later.

"I felt it was essential that someone should see His Majesty and warn him of the difficult situation that might arise later if occasion was given for continuation of this kind of gossip and criticism — what might come if this gossip and criticism spread from the other side of the Atlantic to this country.

"I thought in the circumstances there was only one who could speak to him and talk the matter over with him and that man was the Prime Minister.

"I felt doubly bound to speak, as it was my duty as I conceived it to the country and my duty to him, not only as a counselor, but as a friend.

Didn't Consult Colleagues.

"I consulted—I am ashamed to say it but they have forgiven me—none of my colleagues.

"I happened to be staying in the neighborhood of Fort Belvidere about the middle of October and ascertained that His Majesty was leaving his house on Sunday, Oct. 18, to entertain a small shooting party at Sandringham and that he was leaving Sunday afternoon.

"I telephoned from my friend's house Sunday morning and found he (the King) had left earlier than expected.

"In these circumstances I communicated with him through his secretary and stated I desired to see him.

"It was the first and only occasion on which I was the one who asked for an interview.

"I said I desired to see him and that the matter was urgent.

"I told him what it was and I expressed my willingness to go to Sandringham Tuesday, the twentieth, but I said I thought it would be wiser, if His Majesty thought it fit, to see him at Belvedere because I was anxious at that time that none should know of my visit and that the first talk should be in complete privacy.

Talked With King Oct. 20.

"His Majesty replied he would motor back Monday, Oct. 19, to Belvedere and that he would see me Tuesday morning and on Tuesday morning I saw him.

"I may say before I proceed to give any details of the conversation that an adviser of the crown can be of no possible service to his master unless he tells him at all times the truth as he sees it.

"Whether that truth be welcome or not; and let me say here, as I may say several times before I finish that during those talks—when I look back—there is nothing I have not told His Majesty of which I felt he ought to be aware but never has His Majesty shown any signs of offense, of being hurt at anything I have said to him, and the whole of our discussions have been carried through with an increase, if possible, of that mutual respect and regard in which we stood.

What Baldwin Told Edward.

"I told his Majesty I had two great anxieties—the effect of the continuance of criticism of the King that at the time was proceeding in the American press and the effect it would have in the Dominion and particularly Canada, where it was widespread, and the effect it would have in this country. That was first.

"I reminded him of what I have often told him and his brothers in the years passed and that's this:

"The crown in this country through centuries has been deprived of many of its prerogatives, but, today, while that is true, it stands for far more than it ever had done in its history.

"The importance of its integrity is beyond all question far greater than it has ever been, being as it is not only the last link of Empire that is left but a guarantee in this country, so long as it exists in that integrity, against many evils that have afflicted other countries.

Says He Feared for Monarchy.

"There is no man or woman in this country to whatever party they may belong who would not subscribe to that, but while this feeling vastly depends on the respect that has grown up in the last three generations for the monarchy, it might not take so long in the face of the kind of criticism to which it was being exposed to lose that power far more rapidly than it was built up, and once lost I doubt if anything could restore it.

"Now, that was the basis of my talk on that aspect and I expressed my anxiety and then my desire that such criticisms should not have cause to go on.

"I said that in my view no popularity in the long run would be weighed against the effect of such criticism.

"I told His Majesty that I had looked forward to his reign as a great King in a new age. He has so many of the qualities which are necessary to it.

"I told him I had come naturally and wanted to talk it over with him as a friend. Perhaps I am saying what I should not say here—I did not ask His Majesty whether I might say this—but I will say it because I do not think he would mind and I think it illustrates the basis on which our talks have been held.

"He said to me, not once but many times during these many, many hours we have had together, especially toward the end, he said to me: 'You and I must settle this matter together. I will not have anyone interfering.'

Danger in Divorce Action.

"Well, I then pointed out the danger of the divorce proceedings; that, if a verdict was given in that case which left the matter in suspense for some time, that period of suspense must be dangerous because then everyone would be talking, and when once the press begins, as it must begin some time in this country, a most difficult situation would arise for me and for him, and there might well be the danger which both he and I have seen through all this, and one of the reasons why he wanted to take this action quickly was that there should not be sides taken and factions grow up in this country where no faction ever ought to exist.

"It was on that aspect of the question that we talked for an hour and I went away glad that the ice had been broken.

"My conscience at that moment was clear, and for some little time we had no further meetings.

"I begged His Majesty to consider all that I said. I said that I pressed him for no kind of an answer, but would he consider everything that I had said. The next time I saw him was Nov. 16.

After the Divorce.

"That was at Buckingham Palace. By that date the decree nisi was pronounced in the divorce case and I felt it my duty on that occasion—His Majesty had sent for me—I felt it my duty to begin the conversation, and I spoke to him for a quarter of an hour on the question of marriage.

"Again you must remember my Cabinet hadn't been in this at all. I reported to about four of my senior colleagues the conversations at Belvedere.

"I saw him Monday, the 16th, and I began by giving him my view on a possible marriage.

"I told him I did not think that a particular marriage was one that would receive the approbation of the country. That marriage would have involved a lady becoming Queen, and I did tell His Majesty once that I might be a remnant of the old Victorians, but my worst enemy could not say this of me—that I did not know what the reaction of the English people would be to any particular course of action.

"His Will Is Not His Own."

"I told him that so far as they went I was certain that that would be impracticable.

"I cannot go further into the details, but that was the substance, and I pointed out to him that the position of the King's wife was different from the position of the wife of any citizen of the country.

"It was part of the price the King has to pay. His wife becomes the Queen. The Queen becomes the Queen of the country, and therefore in the choice of the Queen the voice of the people must be heard.

"It is the truth expressed in those lines which may come to the minds of the many of you: 'His will is not his own, for he himself is subject to his birth. He may not, as unvalued persons do, carve for himself, for on his choice depends the safety and the health of the whole state.'

"I Am Going to Marry Her."

"And then His Majesty said to me, and I had his permission to tell you this, that he wanted to tell me something that he had long wanted to tell me.

"He said, 'I am going to marry Mrs. Simpson and I am prepared to go.'

"I said, 'Sir, that is most grievous news and it is impossible for me to make any comment on it today.'

"He told the Queen that night. He told the Duke of York and the Duke of Gloucester the next day and the Duke of Kent, who was then out of London, either on Wednesday or Thursday, and for the rest of that week so far as I know he was considering that point.

Compromise Suggested.

"He sent for me again Wednesday, the twenty-fifth of November.

"Meantime, the suggestion had been made to me that a possible compromise might be arranged to avoid those two possibilities that had been seen, first in the distance and then approaching nearer and nearer. The compromise was that the King should marry and that Parliament should pass an act enabling the lady to be the King's wife without the position of Queen.

"I saw His Majesty on Wednesday, Nov. 25. He asked me if that proposition had been put to me and I said 'Yes,' and he asked me what I thought of it.

"I told him that I had given it no considered opinion but if he asked me my first reaction it was that Parliament would never pass it. I said that if he desired I would examine it formally. He said he did so desire.

Consulting the Dominions.

"Then I said, 'It will mean my putting it formally before the whole Cabinet and communicating with all the Prime Ministers of the Dominions, and asked if that was his wish. He told me that it was and I said I would do it.

"On Dec. 2 he asked me to see him, and again I had intended asking for an audience later that week because some inquiries I had thought proper to make had not been completed. But they had gone far enough to show that neither in the Dominions nor here would there be any prospect of such legislation being accepted.

"His Majesty asked me if I could answer his question. I gave him the reply that I was afraid it was impracticable for those reasons, and I do want the House to realize this.

"His Majesty said he was not surprised at that answer. He took my answer without question and he never referred to it again.

"I want you to put yourselves in His Majesty's place and realize what his feelings are and to know how glad he would have been had this been possible.

"There was no formal decision of any kind until I come to the history of yesterday but when we finished that conversation I pointed out that possible alternatives had been nulled and it had really brought him into a position when he would be placed in a grievous situation between two conflicting causes in his own heart, either complete abandonment of the project on which his heart was set and remaining as the King, or doing as he intimated to me he was prepared to do in the talk which I have reported, and of going, and later contracting that marriage if possible.

"In the last days from that date until now that has been the struggle in which his Majesty has been engaged.

"We had many talks discussing the aspect of this limited problem. The House must realize—and it is difficult to realize—that His Majesty is not a boy.

"He looks so young that we all thought of him as our Prince but he is a mature man with a wide and great experience of life and the world.

Edward's Three Motives.

"He always had before him three motives which he repeated in the course of conversation at all hours and again and again: that if he went he would go with dignity; that he would not allow a situation to arise in which he could not do that, and that he wanted to go with as little disturbance to his ministers and his people as possible.

"He wished to go in such circumstances that the succession of his brother would be made with as little difficulty as possible and I may say that any idea to him of what might be called a King's party was abhorrent.

"He stayed down at Belvedere because he said he was not coming to London while these things were in dispute because of the cheering crowds. I honor and respect him for the manner in which he behaved at that time.

The King's Note.

"I have something which I think will touch the House. I have here a penciled note sent to me by His Majesty this morning and I have his authority for reading it. It is just simply in pencil and it says:

"'The Duke of York and the King have always been on the best terms as brothers and the King is confident that the Duke will deserve and receive the support of the whole empire.'

"Now, sir, I would say a word or two on the King's position. The King cannot speak for himself. The King has told us that he cannot carry and does not see his way to carry those almost intolerable burdens of kingship without a woman at his side, and we know that this crisis, if I may use the word, has risen now rather than later from that very frankness of His Majesty's character which is one of his many attractions.

"It would have been perfectly possible for His Majesty not to tell me this at the date when he did, and not to have told me for some months to come, but he realized the damage that might be done in the interval by gossip and rumors and talk and he made that declaration to me when he did on purpose to avoid what he felt might be dangerous, not only here but throughout the Empire, to that very moral force of the Crown which we are all determined to sustain.

"He told me his intention and he has never wavered from it. I want the House to understand that. He felt it was his duty to take into anxious consideration all representations that his advisers might give him and not until he had fully considered them did he make public his decision.

"No Sign of Conflict."

"There has been no sign of conflict in this matter. My efforts during these last days have been directed, as have the efforts of those most closely around him, in trying to help him make the choice which he has not made, and we have failed, and the King has made his decision to take this moment to send his gracious message because of his confident hope that by that he will preserve the unity of this country and the whole empire and avoid those factious differences that might so easily have arisen.

"These last days have been days of great strain. It was a great comfort to me and I hope it will be to the House, when I was assured, before I left him Tuesday night, by that intimate circle that was with him at the Fort that evening, that I had left nothing undone that I could have done to move him from the decision at which he had arrived.

"Not a Soul Wants to Judge."

"While there is not a soul among us who will not regret this from the bottom of his heart, there is not a soul here today that wants to judge.

"We are not the judges. His Majesty has announced his decision.

"He has told us what he wants us to do and I think we must close our ranks.

"At a later stage this evening I shall ask leave to bring in the necessary bill, so it may be ready for the first time, printed, and made available to the members.

"The House will meet tomorrow at the usual time, 11 o'clock, when we shall take the second reading and the remaining stages of the bill. It is very important it should be passed into law tomorrow and I shall put on the order paper tomorrow a motion to take the private members' time and suspend the 4 o'clock rule.

Message From the Cabinet.

"Now I have only two other things to say. The House will forgive me for saying now what I should have said a few minutes ago. I have told the House that yesterday morning when the Cabinet received the King's final definite announcement, officially they passed a minute, and in accordance with it, I sent a message to His Majesty which he has been good enough to allow me to read.

(Baldwin then read the message sent to the King from the Cabinet and the King's reply, both of which had already been read in the House of Lords.)

"My last words on that subject are that I am convinced that where I failed no one could have succeeded. Those who know His Majesty best would know what that means.

"This house today is a theater that is being watched by the whole world and let us conduct ourselves with that dignity that His Majesty himself has shown in this hour of his trial. And, whatever be our regret at the contents of the message, let us fulfill his wishes to do what he asks and do it with speed and let no word be spoken today that the speaker or utterer of that word may regret in days to come.

"Rally Behind New King."

"Let no word be spoken that causes pain to any soul and let us not forget today the revered, beloved figure, Queen Mary. Think what all this time has meant to her and think of her when we have to speak, as speak we must during this debate.

"We have after all, as guardians of democracy in this little island, to see that we do our work to maintain the integrity of monarchy, that monarchy, which, as I said in the beginning of my speech, is now the sole link of the whole empire and guardian of our freedom. Let us look forward and remember our country and the trust reposed in our country in this, the House of Commons, and let us rally behind the new King. Let us rally behind him and help him.

"Whatever the country may have suffered by what we are passing through may soon be repaired and we may take a hand again in trying to make this country a better country for all the people in it."

EDWARD AND MRS. SIMPSON AT PLAY ON THE RIVIERA

ANNA WARE GIVES STORY AT MUENCH MAIL FRAUD TRIAL

Testifies to Auto Ride, Before Her Baby Was Born, With Wilfred Jones and Mrs. Muench.

Anna Ware, unmarried mother about whose infant son centered the unsuccessful Muench baby hoax, returned to the witness stand before United States District Judge George H. Moore today to complete her now familiar story as a Government witness against the four principals in the hoax, on trial charged with using the mails to further a scheme to defraud.

Facing her as she told the story for the fourth time on a witness stand were the four defendants, Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench, her husband, Dr. Ludwig O. Muench, Attorney Wilfred Jones, the baby broker, and Mrs. Helen Berroyer. It is charged in the indictment that they were parties to the use of the mails in a plot falsely to convince Dr. Marsh Pitzman, wealthy physician, that Mrs. Muench was the mother of a child and that he was its father, and that by this representation Dr. Pitzman was defrauded of unspecified sums of money.

The witness gave her account as she had told it in the habeas corpus suit in which the St. Louis Court of Appeals restored the child to her after taking it away from the Muenches, who had palmed it off as their own, and as she told it twice later in two trials at Kahoka, Mo., in the second of which the four principals were convicted and fined for conspiracy to take custody of a child without authorization of the Juvenile Court.

Three Big Points in Evidence.

The witness, by her testimony, added three important items of evidence to the case as already developed: First, that Wilfred Jones arranged for her to come to St. Louis to give birth to her child, to be procured by him for adoption by clients whom he named as "Mr. and Mrs. Perkins"; second, that on a night automobile ride Jones allowd her to be seen by a woman whom he described to her as the prospective foster mother, and that this woman was Mrs. Muench; third, that when Jones took the baby from her at the home of Mrs. Rebecca Winner, midwife, 6015 Maple avenue, the night of Aug. 17, 1935, less than 20 hours after it was born, he was accompanied by Helen Berroyer, garbed as a nurse.

This testimony was offered by the Government as partial confirmation of the story told as a prosecution witness by Mrs. Grace Thomasson, self-declared participant in the alleged plot, who specifically involved all four defendants in the scheme to defraud.

Anna Ware, 20 years old, testified in a faint voice, which she appeared to be unable to raise in the face of several kindly admonitions by the Court, but the excellent acousitics of the Federal Court made her account audible throughout the room.

Met at Train by Jones.

She told again how, when she was an expectant mother, Mrs. Lily Giordon, her former employer at Newtown, Pa., and wife of Francis A. Giordon, father of the expected child, arranged with her to come to St. Louis to give birth to the baby, and how she was met at the train by Jones and Mrs. Winner, Mrs. Giordon's mother.

At this point the Government introduced the letter, embodied in the indictment, in which Mrs. Giordon wrote Jones that Anna was coming to St. Louis, told him how she had purchased Pullman accommodations in place of the day-coach ticket provided by Jones, and urged him to "permit her no choice or alternative about adoption of the baby," although she was anxious to keep the child.

Continuing, she told how Jones took her to Dr. Chester Denny, nephew of Jones, for physical examination, and how he also took her to Dr. Simon Levey for X-ray photographs. She testified she did not see the pictures until after the baby was born, when she saw one of them in the St. Louis Court of Appeals. The Government contends the photos were turned over by Jones to Mrs. Muench and were shown by her to Dr. Pitzman as photographs of herself to convince the physician that she was an expectant mother.

Mrs. Muench on Ride, She Says.

During the time Miss Ware was in St. Louis awaiting the birth of the child, Jones took her on an automobile ride through Forest Park on which they were accompanied by Mrs. Muench, she testified. She said that Mrs. Muench asked her numerous questions about herself, including the color of her eyes and whether her hair was naturally curly. On the way home, the witness said, they stopped outside a house and a middle-aged man whose features she could not see clearly came out to the car and talked to Mrs. Muench.

Neither Mrs. Muench nor Mrs. Berroyer was in the courtroom when Anna Ware identified them. They remained out of the room during most of her testimony, apparently following the same defense strategy as in the second State trial at Kahoka of allowing the witness as little opportunity to inspect them as possible so that her memory as to their appearance would not be refreshed when questioned about it on cross-examination. The witness did not look at either of them when they finally came back to the courtroom. Mrs. Muench was wearing a black hat with a low curved brim that extended down over her eyes.

Gave Name "Miss Johnson."

Anna said that the "nurse" who accompanied Jones—that is Mrs. Berroyer—gave her name as "Miss Johnson" and was wearing a yellow sport coat over a white nurse's uniform. The time the baby was taken from her was 11:30 p. m., she testified, as she had before. That was only a short time before the purported birth of a child to Mrs. Muench, as certified by Dr. Muench with the City Health Department, shortly after midnight Aug. 18.

She testified that Jones handed her some adoption papers to sign, with no names on them, but that she refused. And at no time did she sign any adoption papers for Jones, she said. Jones told her, the witness said, that he was going to take the baby to Jewish Hospital, but she learned several days later it had not been taken there

A New Incident.

For the first time, she related in court an incident she said occurred when Jones took her from the Winner home nine days after birth of her child. He obtained a room for her in the Brownsom Hotel in Maplewood, and later came into the room, took off his coat, and asked her if she were afraid to stay alone, Miss Ware declared. He then read her a letter, she said, that was supposed to have been from a girl who had stayed alone in a hotel room and had been attacked by an intruder. Asked if Jones had offered to stay in the room, the witness said he had not.

The next day she went to a boarding house on Manchester road and remained there two weeks.

She identified Mrs. Giordon's signature on another letter to Jones from New York, dated Aug. 19, 1935, and it was read to the jury. It expressed disappointment about not being paid $15 advanced for Anna's railroad fare, and said Anna had written a discontented letter complaining that she had been pressed for the name of the father of the child.

Picture of Anna and Baby.

Other letters from Mrs. Giordon to Jones, and from Mrs. Giordon to Anna, were introduced and read to the jury. Near the close of the morning session District Attorney Blanton proffered in evidence two photographs of Anna and her baby. The defense objected vigorously to their introduction, but the Court overruled their contention and they were handed to the jurors, who inspected them with apparent deep interest. All of the jurors are married and 10 of the 13, including one alternate, are the fathers of children.

She was not permitted to tell the color of the baby's eyes, but did testify that when she regained possession of the child his hair was varied in color; that the back hair was red and the front brown, and it all grew lighter in color until it was light brown. Hair experts testified in the habeas corpus suit that the baby's hair appeared to have been dyed a reddish hue, the color of Mrs. Muench's, with henna.

Roy W. Rucker, counsel for the Muenches and Mrs. Berroyer, objected that there was no evidence showing the baby had been in custody of any of the defendants. That opened the way for Blanton to ask against whom the habeas corpus proceedings had been brought. Anna replied, "Mr. and Mrs. Muench." (It also had been brought against Jones and Mrs. Berroyer.)

Going back to the color of the child's hair, Blanton asked significantly; "did you dye it to make it light brown?" "No," Miss Ware replied.

Luncheon recess was then taken.

Her Cross-Examination.

Anna returned to the witness stand after the luncheon recess and after 20 minutes more of direct examination was turned over to the defense at 2:25 p. m. for cross-examination.

Brothers Visit Retiring King at His Residence

Dukes of York, Gloucester and Kent Call Early—New Sovereign Dines With Edward.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 10. — The Duke of York called at Fort Belvedere early today for a final conference with his brother, Edward. York was followed into the grounds by their younger brother, the tall soldierly Duke of Gloucester. It was his first visit since the storm broke. Each used a side gate to avoid the crowd gathered in the cold and fog about the main entrance. Ten minutes later, the young Duke of Kent, the King's other brother, arrived at Belvedere. He drove his own car.

The Duke of York, who had left the castle during the day, drove back to Fort Belvedere tonight for dinner with Edward.

Prime Minister Baldwin called on Queen Mary at York House shortly after noon to tell her of momentous news he was ready to announce. His stern face broke into a partial smile and he raised his hat in acknowledgment of the cheers of the crowd as he left Marlborough House.

At York's Picadilly residence, the arrival of several great bouquets of flowers brought cheers from another throng. There were more cheers for the Duchess of Kent, soon to become a mother, who reached the house at 12:30 with a ady in waiting.

King's Advisers Go to London.

Shortly after the last of the brothers arrived at Fort Belvedere, a car attached to the royal household left there for London. Its two passengers were believed to be Walter T. Monckton and Sir Edgar Peacock, the highest officials of the King's Duchy of Cornwall. It was followed a moment later by another royal car without passengers. Monckton and Peacock, after a brief stop at Buckingham Palace, went on to the Prime Minister's residence. A dispatch rider with a large brief case preceded them. Later Monckton and Peacock walked with heads bowed to the home office.

Late last night a luggage van pulled away from Fort Belvedere and headed for London. It was heavily laden with luggage.

The Queen mother, Mary, yesterday saw her son under great secrecy in what was believed a farewell. The meeting occurred at the royal lodge, Windsor, three miles from Belvedere. The King drove there through fog and over icy roads on the first trip he has made from Belvedere since going there for negotiations in the crisis. The dukes of York and Kent also attended the royal family meeting, which lasted an hour.

Strong Guard at York's Home.

A strong police guard was thrown about the Duke of York's residence at 145 Piccadilly. A superintendent of police called at the heir presumptive's residence and remained in consultation for 20 minutes. Princess Elizabeth, in direct line to the throne, and her younger sister, Princess Margaret Rose, kept indoors. Duchess of Kent was cheered by a throng as she left the Duke of York's home.

Queen Mary arrived at the Duke of York's house at 3 p. m. She was loudly cheered by a crowd outside.

The Duke of Norfolk, who as Earl Marshal was designated master of ceremonies for the King's coronation, scheduled for next May, called at Buckingham Palace for a half hour visit shortly after noon. Some sources believed he might be attempting to fit already planned ararngements for the coronation of King Edward into similar ceremonies for the Duke of York.

The London stock exchange took a surprisingly upward turn after early dullness.

ARGUMENTS HEARD IN SUIT OVER NEGRO SCHOOL BUILDING

Counsel in the suit to enjoin the Board of Education from erecting a Negro elementary school on the Vashon High School grounds argued the board's demurrer before Circuit Judge Granville Hogan today. The Court gave Attorneys for the Negro objectors to the site, who filed the suit, five days in which to file briefs supporting their stand against the demurrer. The board's lawyers were allowed two days thereafter to file an answer.

Emmet T. Carter, attorney for the board, asserted the Court lacked jurisdiction, as there was no allegation of fraud, abuse of trust, or unlawful act justifying interference with the board's administrative discretion. If the Court could interfere in this case it might step in on other administrative matters, he argued. James E. Garstang, associated with Carter, suggested that an injunction suit was the wrong procedure but that judicial review might be sought.

Justice of the Peace George L. Vaughn and R. L. Witherspoon, appearing for the plaintiffs, insisted the Court had jurisdiction. Vaughn declared the board had violated the law requiring equal opportunities for Negro and white pupils. He said there was an abuse of power, which the Court could look into, under statutory authority. The failure of the board to give objectors a hearing was an arbitrary act and abuse of authority, he charged. Judge Hogan inquired what he could say to the board; Vaughn replied that the Judge could quash the board's act in approving the site.

KING EDWARD ABDICATES THRONE OF GREAT BRITAIN

ter's statement was awaited. Cries of "Order!" and "Hush!" sounded through the chamber as members attempted to quiet the hubbub and enable Ernest Brown, Minister of Labor, to answer the first 51 questions.

Brown made unusually long answers to some relatively unimportant question. The members applauded with cheers of "Order," which grew in volume until pandemonium almost reigned. Brown continued to try to read his answers, but his voice could not be heard because of the uproar. The Speaker finally rescued the Minister by suggesting he circulate printed answers.

A few minutes later the Speaker read the King's message.

It was the 324th day of the reign of King Edward VIII, who automatically assumed leadership of the nation and the empire five minutes before midnight Jan. 20, when his father, George V, died at Sandringham House in Norfolk.

Before Parliament met crowds in street surrounding the building became so dense traffic moved with the greatest difficulty. The largest throngs congregated outside Commons, where helmeted bobbies labored to control demonstrations.

POSTMAN, FACING TRIAL KILLS SELF AT HOME

Felix A. Sucher Drinks Poison —Wife Finds Body in Basement.

Felix A. Sucher, suspended mail carrier under charges of embezzling mail matter, killed himself yesterday by drinking poison at his home, 3300 Miami street.

The body was found in the basement by his wife, Mrs. Caroline Sucher, after she had called him for lunch.

There were two notes addressed to Mrs. Sucher. One read as follows: "This strain is more than I can stand. I have been a disgrace, especially to you and Dorothy. I tried to seek the best solution out of this trouble." The second message listed insurance policies and lodge benefits totaling $3700.

Sucher, 52 years old, a mail carrier 26 years, was arrested last Monday and admitted, according to Postoffice Inspectors, he had taken about $200 from mail addressed to business houses and a loan agency in the Meramec Substation district. A warrant charging him with embezzlement was issued by United States Commissioner John A. Burke, and he was released on $2000 bond. The mail was taken from the compartment of another carrier at the substation. Test letters containing money were found in Sucher's possession, Postoffice inspectors reported.

DE VALERA CALLS IRISH CABINET INTO SESSION

Acts After Receipt of Message From London; Talk of Break With Empire.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Dec. 10.—President Eamon de Valera summoned Irish Free State Ministers to a Cabinet session today after receipt of a message from London.

The possibility that the crisis between King Edward and his government might offer a pretex for the Free State to break away completely from Great Britain was reported under consideration.

Prof. Berriedale Keith, English constitutionalist, in a letter to the Manchester Guardian, expressed the belief the Free State could assert its right to create a new governmental leader by ignoring the Crown and terminating its British connection.

"It is clear," Keith wrote, "that legally the British Parliament could alter the succession for the whole Emprie without the assent of dominion parliaments but constitutionally it would be clearly bound to ask such assent, and, if so desired by any dominion, to insert in its legislation an expressed declaration that the change would not apply to that dominion unless and until it adopted it."

She Had Sued Steamship Executive for $12,000 a Year for Support.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 10.—Lewis Luckenbach, steamship executive, was ordered yesterday to pay $400-a-month separate maintenance to his fourth wife.

Mrs. Gladys Luckenbach had sought $1000 a month for the support of herself and their small daughter, Linda Louise.

A suit against Luckenbach for back alimony claimed by his second wife still is pending. His third is suing his fourth wife for $100,000, charging alienation of affections.

Lloyd George Regrets Abdication.

BONDSMAN GOT STOLEN RADIO AS FEE, HE SAYS

Louis Chapman Names as Client Bond-Jumper Now Held at Chicago.

A radio stolen in a burglary of a residence at 5212 Vernon avenue has been found, police announced today, at the home of Louis Chapman, a professional bondsman, 5133 Vernon avenue, who said it had been given him as a fee for signing a bail bond for Harry D. Meyers, a convicted burglar.

Chapman was one of six persons questioned by police recently in connection with a series of burglaries, and in the cours of that investigation police found that there were five radios in his home, including the one he said Meyers had given him.

Subsequently Chief of Police John J. McCarthy had Chapman's name removed from the list of professional bondsmen acceptable to police.

Meyers, police learned last night, is under arrest in Chicago. He was picked up for investigation there and gave an assumed name but was identified by Bertillon records as a fugitive from St. Louis.

The $2500 bond which Chapman signed for him was forfeited last May when Meyers failed to appear for trial on a burglary charge. He was arrested on that charge in February after police had caught an 18-year-old youth pawning articles taken from the home of George T. Wetzel, 3714 Palm street. The youth implicated Meyers, who, police said, admitted the burglary. He was not questioned at that time about the Vernon avenue burglary in which a radio was stolen.

Police records show that Meyers has been convicted of burglary and arceny three times, being sentenced to a year in the Workhouse on two occasions and once to two years at the Boonville Reformatory.

PROGRESSIVE MINE UNION HEAD HELD IN TRAIN BOMBINGS

William Keck, Gillespie, Among 30 Indicted at Springfield, Ill. — 20 Others Arrested.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 10.—United States Marshal Paul E. Ruppel announced today the arrest at Gillespie of William Keck, who will retire soon as president of the Progressive Miners of America, in connection with the investigation of railroad bombings.

Keck was taken into custody by the Chief of Police at Gillespie at the request of Federal officers, who last night brought 20 Central Illinois miners into the Springfield jail.

Ruppel said Keck, the second president of the Progressive union, would be brought to Springfield this afternon. His bond has been set at $10,000.

Meanwhile, the 20 held overnight in the jail here were given hearings before Commissioner William B. Chittenden. The first to appear were unable to give bonds, set at $10,000 each.

Thirty individuals were indicted by a Federal grand jury that investigated the dynamiting of 23 trains during a three-year period of the fight between the Progressive Miners and the United Mine Workers of America for power in the Illinois coal fields. The indictments charge obstruction of the mails, racketeering and violation of the anti-trust law.

Those arrested last night included Dan McGill of Springfield, one of the Progressive Union's organizers, and Ray Tombazzi of Taylorville, board member for the Springfield-Taylorville district. McGill was elected recently to replace Tombazzi on the board.

Four miners were arrested in Gillespie, Progressive headquarters. They are John Tatman, Russell Wagner, Jack Taylor and Ralph Bridges.

John Stanley was taken in custody at Taylorville and Herman Steval at Alton.

Others arrested included Dominic Tarro of Hewittsville and Anthony Banca of Blue Mound, and the following from Springfield: Will Crompton, Joseph Laverso, Arthur Grambich, Dan Mataya, Antony Profeta, Anton V. Gent, John R. Fancher, Salvatore Profeto, John Schneider and Anthony Chunes.

Mines and homes, as well as trains, were bombed from December, 1932, to August, 1935, but the Federal investigation centered on damage to railroads. Most of the trains bombed were hauling coal from fields in which United Mine Workers were employed.

ALDERMAN REIDY SUGGESTS LICENSING HANDBOOK PLACES

Asks City Counselor About Ordinance; Calls Arrests and Fines System "Silliness."

Alderman Nick Reidy of the Twenty-second Ward said today to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he intended to ask the City Counselor's office whether a city ordinance would be enacted which would provide for the licensing of handbook betting on races, as a measure of municipal revenue.

The September grand jury, in its report filed last Friday, described the present system of arrests and fines of "smoke shop" handbook operators, amounting in effect to a licensing system. It termed this situation "the ultimate in silliness," and said: "Such foolishness should stop, and either the gambling establishments should be closed definitely or they should be licensed and allowed to run openly under the law with strict supervision."

Reidy said that he was not a handbook customer, but that he considered the attempt to stop this form of gambling by law, like the attempt to stop liquor-drinking by law, an impracticable undertaking. He suggested a minimum license fee of $500 a year. At present the first offense fine for custodianship of a bet is $250, this fine being imposed on a plea of guilty to an offense of lesser degree than that charged.

Section 4285 of the Revised Statutes of Missouri declares bookmaking or pool-selling, defined at much length, to be a felony punishable by imprisonment up to five years or a fine not less than $500. The courts have held in the past that any city ordinance in conflict with the state statutes is void.

CONGRESSMAN WRIGHT PATMAN TO SPEAK BEFORE MERCHANTS

Says He Will Fight Any Changes in Anti-Price Discrimination Law.

Congressman Wright Patman of Texas, co-author of the recently enacted anti-price discrimination law, is in St. Louis to address a meeting of merchants at Hotel Statler tonight.

Patman, who is concluding a tour of the country in behalf of the law, will discuss its major provisions in detail and also other proposed legislation. He said today to a Post-Dispatch reporter that sponsors of the law will oppose any attempts at amendment, on the ground such action would weaken the legislation and that the law as it stands has strong public support.

Proposed legislation to be discussed tonight will include a suggested amendment of the trademark law to permit filing of minimum price restrictions along with trademarks, so as to protect products from price-cutting as well as from imitation. Patman will also describe bills to be introduced in State Legislatures providing protection in intrastate commerce similar to that given interstate commerce in the Robinson-Patman law.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 10.—Francis P. Brennan, 26 years old, paroled convict, was shot to death and his body dumped on a city street late last night. Six months ago he was acquitted on charges of participation in the $48,000 Philadelphia Electric Co. holdup in 1934.

Brennan was on parole after serving five years of a 5-to-25-year sentence for holdup and larceny.

U. S. REAFFIRMS NEUTRALITY STAND

State Department Hopes Europe May Stop Spanish War by Peaceful Means.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10. — R. Walton Moore, acting Secretary of State, issued a formal statement today in which he expressed the United States Government's "very earnest hope" that a peaceful means might be found to end the Spanish revolution.

"It is announced by the governments of Great Britain and France," the statement said, "that they have invited the governments of Germany, Italy, Russia and Portugal to join them in a mediation offer to end the Spanish Civil War.

'It is the very earnest hope of our Government that the six nations mentioned may find a peaceful method of accomplishing the great purpose in view."

"This expression represents no deviation from our well-known policy of non-interference in the affairs of other countries.

"It simply voices, I am certain, the deep distress of the American people that Spain should be involved in a bitter conflict marked by heavy loss of life and indescribable suffering.

"The conflict affords fresh and inescapable evidence that in these days the perils of war are not confined to the actual combatants, bad as that is, but extend to the entire population within the reach of the deadly instruments now employed —to helpless men, women and children—and that no limit can be set to its devastating effects.

"Human intellect, which has shown its capacity to dreadfully increase beyond what was once dreamed possible, the horrors and wreckage of war, should surely be able to devise expedients to bring about cessation of the present struggle and, as time goes on, turn all nations away from war as an utterly senseless and ruinous means of settling domestic and international controversies.

"I may say that I have kept the President and Secretary Hull fully informed concerning this matter and that they are in full accord with this statement."

British Foreign Office Says Notes Were Sent Last Friday.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Notes addressed to European Governments urging them to join in meditation efforts in Spain were dispatched Friday, the foreign office said last night.

The proposal was that the governments join "in a spirit of humanity in endeavor to put an end to armed conflict in Spain by means of an offer of mediation with the object of enabling Spain to give united expression to its national will."

Britain and France asked the governments to "declare their absolute determination to renounce strictly all direct or indirect action which might in any way be calculated to lead to foreign intervention."

If the governments concerned agree to attempt mediation, it was indicated a Spanish plebiscite would then be considered.

The non-intervention committee agreed last night to prohibit indirect intervention in the Spanish civil war. The committee did not disclose how it planned to carry out the prohibition.

League Council Meets to Take Up Madrid Protest.

GENEVA, Dec. 10.—League of Nations officials advised Great Britain and France today their efforts to mediate the Spanish war were likely to paralyze any league plan to end the conflict.

No action disavowing the British-French plan was possible, officials pointed out, as the League Council convened to consider Spanish charges that Germany and Italy were aiding the Fascist insurgents. The council met to take up the Spanish Socialist Government's accusations.

Poland injected a sharp note of protest against international bodies interfering in "domestic affairs" of other countries.

The Madrid Government charges an international crisis has been created by the German and Italian recognition of the insurgents which it said was actually a declaration of war against the Spanish Government.

Treasury Bonds Oversubscribed.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau reported today that a $700,000,000 cash offering of 2½ per cent 13 to 17 year bonds had been oversubscribed more than seven times.

VAN SWERINGENS GOT UNLIMITED CREDIT AT BANKS

W. C. Potter of Guaranty Trust Tells Senators of $147,000,000 Flotation by Morgan Group.

HUGE LOANS MADE FOR RAIL EMPIRE

Allowed to Gamble With Loan, Wheeler Says—'We Had Confidence in Them,' Witness Replies.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WILLIAM C. POTTER.

CHAIRMAN of the board of the Guaranty Trust Co., of New York, who testified before Senate investigators in Washington the bank could have taken over control of the Van Sweringen railway empire at almost any time during the depression.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10. — How late Van Sweringen brothers, Cleveland financiers, were given unlimited credit by leading New York banks, including the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., to carry out a vast merger of the nation's major rail systems was described today before the Senate Committee investigating railroad finance.

The witness was William C. Potter, head of the Guaranty Trust Co., and under questioning from Chairman Wheeler of the committee he verified details of flotation of $147,000,000 of Alleghany Corporation securities by New York banks in the Morgan group. The Alelghany Corporation was formed by the Van Sweringen brothers as a holding company for their railroad properties. Under its charter, Wheeler sought to bring out, the two brothers had almost unlimited powers.

Potter insisted restrictions were put on the Van Sweringens. He asked for time to read prospectuses put out in connection with the stock and bond issues of Alleghany & Wheeler adjourned the committee hearings until Monday morning to give him an opportunity to study these documents.

Astounded at Borrowing.

"It seems incredible to me," Wheeler said, "that the First National Bank in New York, J. P. Morgan & Co., the Guaranty Trust and these lawyers would let their names be used in connection with the flotation of these issues when it meant that they were allowing two individuals to go out and invest $147,000,000 as they saw fit. And then to allow them to borrow and borrow and borrow."

It has already been shown that the Van Sweringens from time to time, as the depression dissipated their dream of a great railroad merger, borrowed large sums of banks in the Morgan group.

"The idea," said Potter, "was to permit them to carry out the merger of a great railroad system. If we had attempted to limit their borrowing, the question would have been where to place the limit. Conditions themselves, as it developed, placed a limit. But I wouldn't have known where to place the limit. It was a question whether we would give them any money at all or whether we would give them sufficient to go out and carry out their idea."

"But if they were permitted to gamble with this $147,000,000, then not only the common stock but the bonds and the preferred stock as well could become worthless," Wheeler declared when Potter pointed out that Alleghany bonds were listed on the market today at close to par.

"Had Confidence in Them."

"There were very distinct limitations on the Van Sweringens in the trust agreement," Potter said. "Of course, we gave them a great deal of latitude and it was because we had a great deal of confidence in them.

Briefly the afternoon testimony at the heaering touched on the famous Morgan preferred list that caused such a sensation when it was first disclosed in 1933 by the Senate investigation into the stock market boom. The Morgan firm allocated 750,000 shares of Alleghany stock to associated banking firms and favored individuals at the price at which it was acquired. It was sold to the public for $24 a share. The Guaranty Trust was allocated 40,000 shares and of this block Potter got 5000 shares.

As in previous hearings profits to the Morgan firm from flotation of Van Sweringen securities were put into the record. By acting as transfer agent for a series of three Alleghany issues the Morgan firm made a profit of $221,757.

Terminal Deal Inquired Into.

Chairman Wheeler sought to discover why the late O. P. Van Sweringen boughht Terminal properties in North Kansas City at the same time that he was acquiring control of the Missouri Pacific Railroad system.

Wheeler took John P. Murphy, counsel for the Van Sweringen interests, over the intricate details of the transaction whereby through two or three holding companies the Van Sweringen paid the Armour and Swift packing companies $19,100,000 for the terminal properties.

The three terminal properties, including a real estate development project at North Kansas City and a terminal railroad at St. Joseph, Mo., were acquired by the Geneva Corporation, which was a wholly owned subsidiary of the Vaness Corporation, top holding company of the Van Sweringen railroad empire at that time. The Geneva Corporation merely acted, however, for the Alleghany Corporation, another Van Sweringen company, which at that time was buying control of Missouri Pacific.

Reason for Transaction.

"Was not this a transaction so devised as to keep knowledge of the purchase away from the stockholders of Alleghany," Wheeler demanded.

"I cannot subscribe to that reason," said Murphy who had previously testified that the terminal properties were purchased to buy up the good will of the packers.

"You hoped to get the business of the packers for other Van Sweringen lines, did you not?" Wheeler asked.

"I shouldn't say that was a reason," Murphy responded.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which advanced loans of more than $23,000,000 to the Missouri Pacific, has attacked the contract for purchase of the terminal properties, charging it worked greatly to the disadvantage of the railroad.

From One Banker to Another.

"Who had control of Missouri Pacific before the Van Sweringens began to buy it up?" Wheeler asked.

"The information in our offices," Murphy said, "was that Kuhn, Loeb & Co. held control and that it was run by William E. Williams, chairman of the board."

"But after the Van Sweringens acquired control, then the Morgan firm became backers to the Missouri Pacific, is that correct?"

"Yes, that is correct," Murphy said. Shortly thereafter Wheeler introduced a series of three letters showing that the Morgan firm first bought from Alleghany, Missouri Pacific bonds to the value of $18,500,000 and then immediately gave Alleghany an option to buy these securities back. One objective of the present hearings is to show huge profits realized by bankers from railroad finance.

More and More Companies.

Once again Wheeler made extensive use of the chart showing the vast holdings that the Van Sweringens had grouped under the Vaness Corporation. At the time that the two brothers, both of whom have died within the last year, were about to lose control of their railroad system through sale of collateral put up to secure a loan from J. P. Morgan & Co., still another holding company, Mid-America Corporation, was organized. It was in the formation of this top holding company that George A. Ball, Muncie, Ind., glass jar manufacturer, took part.

About many of the companies listed on the chart Murphy confessed he knew nothing at all although he was as closely in touch with the affairs of the Van Sweringens as any one. Other companies were described as "paper" companies and still others, the witness said, had been "extinguished."

The Van Sweringens, the hearings have developed, had a remarkable facility for setting up companies, merging them and tying them up together until, as Wheeler has pointed out, it is almost impossible to trace the various criss-crossing relationships. Not only several major rail systems but shipping companies, hotels, real estate projects were included in the Van Sweringen financial structure.

Stockholders Not Informed.

Although in the purchase of the Kansas City and St. Joseph terminal properties, the Geneva Corporation acted for Alleghany, it was the latter that wrote the checks and turned them over to the packers, Wheeler brought out, putting into the record canceled checks and vouchers. Alleghany stockholders were not informed of these purchases, Murphy said. Wheeler also put into the record a letter which Murphy had written, as an officer of the Geneva Corporation, to the Alleghany Corporation.

"One holding company was using another holding company as a dummy nominee to acquire this stock," Wheeler said. "You were writing a letter from one of the Van Sweringen holding companies to another, is that not correct?"

"The letter was merely a matter of record," Murphy replied.

Previously Murphy had testified that the Geneva Corporation had been used to carry out the sale so that the public would not know that Alleghany was acquiring the terminal properties. This, Murphy insisted despite Wheeler's repeated questioning, would have impaired the "good will" which Alleghany hoped to acquire through the purchase.

I. C. C. Asks for Transcipt.

At the start of the hearings, Wheeler read a letter from Charles D. Mahaffie, chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, requesting a transcript of the hearings "as soon as it is available."

"I understand," Mahaffie said, "that you are developing information with reference to the actual control of railroads in the so-called Alleghany system, derived from sources which have not been available to this commission."

It was brought out yesterday that the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York, in the Morgan group of banks, actually held control over Van Sweringen railroads by virtue of a financial transaction involving the sale to the public of $85,000,000 of Alleghany securities. As collateral for this issue the Guaranty Trust held a voting majority of stocks in Van Sweringen railroads.

New King Noted for Sense of Duty; Veteran of Jutland; Interested In Labor and Social Welfare

A Stutterer, He Drilled Out Defect When Father Sent Him to Speak as His Deputy in Australia.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Albert Frederick Arthur George, Duke of York, Earl of Inverness, and Baron Killarney, who now becomes King of Great Britain and the Dominions, and Emperor of India, was the second son of King George V and Queen Mary. He became heir-presumptive on his father's death, Jan. 20, 1936.

A shy, home-loving Prince, the new King has undertaken the many arduous duties which have fallen to his lot with seriousness and devotion. As an example of his strong sense of duty, the following story may be told:

For many years he was afflicted with a form of stuttering which made his public speeches an ordeal both for himself and for his audience, yet when he was chosen by his father in 1927 to go to Australia to attend the dedication of the Federal Parliament buildings at Canberra, he set himself to cure his stuttering. For several hours a day for many months he drilled under a specialist with such success that he almost entirely overcame the disability.

At Battle of Jutland.

During the war, the Duke served on board a battleship at the Battle of Jutland. He won mention in dispatches for his coolness under fire.

He is more than merely a good tennis player. Twice he has appeared in the championships at Wimbledon. As a golfer he, like his elder brother, Edward, was always a fair performer.

It is for his interest in welfare work, however, that the new King is chiefly noted. He has always taken the greatest pains to be friends with labor leaders, both in England and throughout the Empire. He was the originator of a summer camp on the East Coast each year, which is attended by 200 boys from the public schools and 200 from factories and workshops from all over the country.

18 Months Younger Than Edward.

Eighteen months younger than Edward VIII, the new King was born at York Cottage in the grounds of Sandringham House, Dec. 14, 1895. His childhood was spent chiefly there or at Marlborough House in London. His father and his grandfather, Edward VII, determined to train the boy along the same lines as, and as much as possible alongside of the Prince of Wales.

The boys were taught French, singing, dancing and riding. They were instructed by the same tutors and drilled in the school of the soldier by the same Army sergeants. They learned to swim and played squash rackets, football and cricket. Squash always was a favorite game of theirs, and when they later went on a long Empire cruise together, they had a court fitted up in the battle-cruiser on which they traveled.

At Sandringham they played football with the boys of the village and cricket with the children of the staff of the royal household at Windsor. They were coached in golf at Balmoral in Scotland and in both England and Scotland the keepers, stalkers and ghillies of the royal estates tried to make the young masters as keen fishermen as their father. Neither son, however, was ever able to match their father with a shotgun, for George V, especially at high pheasants, was one of the half-dozen best shots in the United Kingdom.

Enthusiast at Sports.

The Duke maintained his enthusiasm for outdoor sports, and like his elder brother he often rode to hounds or competed in point-to-point races.

His great forte was tennis and he was a bit more than just good at the game. He appeared in the 1926 Wimbledon doubles with L. Greig as partner, going down before Gore and Barrett, a crack British pair, 6—1, 6—3, 6—2. In 1928 he entered for the English singles championship.

He played a better than average game of golf also, usually shooting in the 80s. His most publicized golf effort was a match which he lost in 1924 to Frank Hodges, a miners' union leader. He had a handicap of nine, which was two strokes better than King Edward's rating.

However heavy his official duties might be, he always managed to go one day each year to his summer camp and to take full part in the life of the camp, dressed in shorts and an old shirt. On these occasions it was the Duke who always led the afternoon bathing stampede to the sea shore.

At Naval Training School.

When the Duke was 14 he was sent, as was Edward before him, to the Naval Training School which, from 1903 to 1921, was maintained on Queen Victoria's old estate at Osborne, on the Isle of Wight.

The boys went to Osborne under orders that they were to have "no privileges or marks of rank." In fact Albert was dubbed "Mr. Johnston" by the other cadets and treated as such, while even the officers referred to him by that name and once a commander sent for "Mr. Johnston" to "come on deck." "Johnston" worked hard but he acknowledged in later years that examinations usually found him "at the bottom of the lists." In the 1913 examination he ranked sixty-fourth in a class of 65.

Through these years he turned out at 6 a. m., had what he described as "a hasty basin of cocoa," then had physical drill, bath, breakfast and classes, followed by work with instructors in seamanship and study periods. Like the other cadets, the son of the King had to take his turn coaling ship and often filled sacks in the dusty, pitch-black hold of a collier.

Telling of Albert's cadet days, Capt. W. E. C. Tait, afterwards his shipmate on the Collingwood, said: "He always put his back into whatever was going on and I can see him now, rushing through the intense effort of the day and finishing up with the traditional bread and cheese, onions and beer before turning in."

Training Cruise in 1913.

The cadet days ended with a six months training cruise in 1913 that took him to the West Indies, Newfoundland and Canada and gave him a glimpse of United States territory from the Canadian side of Niagara Falls. Besides the seamanship which he acquired on that voyage he also learned a salutary lesson in noblesse oblige. It had to do with his fondness for tennis.

All through the voyage, at every opportunity to get ashore, he had managed to get in a few sets. At Halifax there was an official reception for the officers of the fleet, but the youthful prince played tennis instead. Word of this went back to Buckingham Palace and there came a cable from King George that was as blunt as any ireful father ever sent a blundering son. If Albert ever again broke an official engagement for the sake of play, the fact has never been recorded.

He went to sea in earnest when the World War started. His service was interrupted in September, 1914, by an operation for appendicitis but he rejoined the fleet in February, 1915. He was aboard the battleship Collingwood in the battle of Jutland on May 31, 1916, and later he was a turret officer on the battleship Malaya before being forced ashore by gastric disorders. He underwent a major abdominal operation in September, 1916, and was seriously ill for several months.

Late in 1917 he was fit again and was transferred to the naval branch of the Royal Air Force. He qualified as a pilot and in October, 1918, was on the Western Front. He continued in naval aviation after the Armistice and attained the rank of squadron commander in 1920.

Special Courses at Cambridge.

War service was followed by a short interlude at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he took special courses in history, economics and civics, riding to and from lectures on a motorcycle, but he often was absent from the University for days at a time representing his father at Royal weddings, christenings or funerals on the Continent, or appearing at official affairs in London.

His first official assignment as a son of the King, was to accompany Albert, King of the Belgians, on that King's triumphal re-entry into Brussels in 1918.

Up to 1927 his public appearances were times of mental torture because of his stuttering and in those years he generally referred to George V as "His Majesty" or "my father" in order to avoid saying "the k-k-k-king."

His fault of speech was the background of an episode when he opened the Wembley Exposition of 1925 in London. He stood before a microphone but the electricians had trouble with the battery of loudspeakers and his voice carried only a few feet. Turning to a friend, he remarked just as the current came on again and in a voice that consequently carried all over the arena; "The d-d-damned thing d-d-doesn't w-w-w-work!"

On his 1927 trip to Australia the Duke took particular pains to make friends with labor leaders, notably J. T. Lang, who later became Prime Minister of New South Wales, and H. E. Holland, a New Zealand trade unionist. He made frequent inspections of factories and of workers' living conditions, learned to pour casts in a foundry and operate a linotype. Back in England he helped found and for years was president of the Industrial Welfare Society.

Romance and Marriage.

Soon after he had been elevated to the peerage in 1920, rumors of romances began to circulate and it was notable that British girls were the subject of virtually all of these Among those whose names cropped up most frequently were Lady Mary Ashley, Olive Campbell, the Hon. Mary Fox-Strangways, Lady Rachel Cavendish, Lady May Cambridge and, most persistently, Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon.

She was the daughter of the Earl of Strathmore whose seat, Glamis Castle, Scotland, was made historic by Macbeth, an ancestor of the family. She had known the King's son since she was 10 years old but friends said she made him propose three times before she accepted him on a cold January morning in the woods of Hertfordshire.

Their wedding on April 26, 1923, was a brilliant Royal affair, attended by Kings and Queens, Princes and Princesses, envoys and special Ambassadors, and marked by showers of bridal gifts from all quarters of the globe. The Prince of Wales, later Edward VIII, was best man.

The pair set up their household in a sooty London mansion on Piccadilly at Hyde Park Corner near Buckingham Palace, and were still living there when he became heir presumptive.

Arduous Australian Jaunt.

Their life thereafter was largely uneventful. In 1924, after watching the White Sox and Giants play baseball in London, they went to East Africa on a hunting expedition, the Duke being duly initiated into Neptune's realm when the ship carried him across the equator for the first time. Their chief official activity was the 1927 journey jaunt to Australia.

On this voyage the Duke visited Jamaica, passed through the Panama Canal, stopped in the Marquesas, drank kava in the Fiji Islands, swam in the velvety pools at Rotorua in New Zealand, saw the Waitomo Glowworm Cave, drove a train on the South Island of New Zealand, spent a time on a sheep station in New South Wales, attended a corroboree in Queensland, hunted kangaroos in South Australia. He went to dances and picnics and opened the new Parliament Houses at a ceremony at which Dame Nellie Melba sang.

On the return journey in the Australian Bight, the battleship Renown on which he was traveling was caught in a terrific hurricane and in the Indian Ocean, a thousand miles from land, fire broke out in a hold on the ship. In Mauritius on his arrival, a newspaper carried a famous mis-print: "The Colonial Secretary announces that his Royal Highness can stand only three days in Mauritius." It should, of course, have read "stay."

Likes to Stay at Home.

It was typical of the retired life which the Duke and Duchess lived, that not until 1931 did they make an official visit to Paris. They then went to the French capital for "British Week" at the French Colonial Exposition.

But whenever he could, the Duke stayed at home. He enjoyed the harp playing of his wife and liked to read detective stories. He was fond of movies, too, and could while away an hour or so knitting.

In addition to his several titles of nobility, the Duke, up to the time of his accession, was an Admiral in the Royal Navy, a General in the Army, and a marshal of the Royal Air Force.

His intimates call him "Bertie"—or used to.

DUKE OF YORK TITLE DATES TO 1385; RICHARD II GAVE IT TO HIS BROTHER

LONDON, Dec. 10.

THE title of Duke of York dates from 1385 when King Richard II. conferred it on his brother, Edmund, as a reward for a campaign against the Scots. Similarly Prince Albert received it in 1920 from his father, George V, along with his other titles, and most of the accompanying citations referred to his war service.

The title was hereditary from 1385 until Edward IV became the first King of the House of York in 1471. It then became a gift of the crown and since has been conferred by sovereigns on younger sons. Several times the dukedom has lapsed, there being no award of the title in the sixteenth century. It was revived in 1605 by James I for his ill-fated son Charles Stuart who held it as a sickly lad for seven years until, after the death of his elder brother, Henry, he was made Prince of Wales. There were six other lapses, ranging from 65 years between 1827 and 1892 to 19 years from 1901 to 1920.

Both these latter periods had to do with George V. He was given the title in 1892 by his grandmother, Queen Victoria, shortly after the death of his elder brother. George relinquished it and the earldom of Inverness when Edward VII made him Prince of Wales. The accession of Edward VIII as a bachelor king, earlier this year caused the latter title to fall vacant, and as the new King has no son, it will still remain in abeyance.

Counterfeit $10 Bill Passed.

A counterfeit $10 bill, passed here Tuesday night, was turned over to Federal officers today by police. The bill, an imitation note of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, bearing the likeness of Alexander Hamilton and the serial number D32614850A, was tendered at a tavern at 1222 South Broadway by a man who bought drinks.

Air Races 5 Years in Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 10. — L. W. Greve, president of the National Air Races of Cleveland, Inc., announced last night that Cleveland has been designated the site of the national air races for the next five years. A factor, he said, was the $3,000,000 WPA improvement of the Cleveland Airport.

COST OF CITY PIPELINE FAR BEYOND CONTRACT

$610,000 in Bills Already on Job Let to Client of Hannegan for $336,000.

Bills presented to the city for laying a 13-mile water pipe line have aggregated about $610,000, although the contract originally was calculated at $336,402. Director of Public Utilities Wall decided today to take up with the City Counselor the question of how much should be paid the contractor, the Spiniello Construction Co., of Newark, N. J., in addition to $351,096 already paid.

Wall has conceded that the company was entitled to some further payment, but he regarded the claim as greatly excessive. The contract was on a unit price basis for various operations and quantities of materials and it was found that the actual work called for greater allowances than contemplated in the basic contract price.

The company, of which Virgilio Spiniello is president, has been represented legally here by Robert E. Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic City Committee and political lieutenant of Mayor Dickmann. It received the contract to install the conduit March 21, 1934. The line, five feet in diameter, extends from the Stacy Park reservoir, Olive Street and Warson roads, to Grand boulevard and Eichelberger avenue.

Payment of $36,000 Held Up.

Besides the sum already paid the contractor, up to Aug. 29, about $36,000 in additional bills have been approved, but payment has been withheld while the controversy was pending. The company has presented additional bills for $223,000.

While Director Wall was unwilling to discuss the controversy in detail, it was learned that the company's claims were based, at least partly, on changes in labor costs attributed to PWA rules; delay of several months in completing the work while awaiting PWA approval of the asphaltic coating of the steel pipe; the gas workers' strike in the spring of 1935, which prevented removal of gas pipes from the route, and certain changes in the route. Spiniello sought to collect for his own time, the tie-up of equipment and other items while the pipe coating question was being settled. Wall has said that the changes in labor costs and in route were covered by the contract.

Recommended Cancelation.

Work was stopped by the contractor in August, 1935, because of a dispute over payment for crossing Manchester avenue. On Oct. 1, 1935, Wall recommended cancellation of the contract. A series of conferences with the Mayor ensued, participating in which were Hannegan, John J. Nangle, counsel for a subcontractor, James E. Carroll, attorney for the contractor's financial backer, and City Counselor Edgar H. Wayman. As a result work was resumed, being completed last September. The conduit is being sterilized, with the expectation of placing it in service in about 10 days.

Cornelius M. Daily, subordinate of Wall, resigned as Water Commissioner Oct. 22, 1935, to return to contracting. At that time he said that, in his opinion, the Spiniello company's bid was too low and the contractor was seeking to avoid a loss by charging for extras. The city, anticipating a somewhat higher level of unit prices, had estimat- of the work would cost $390,000 in taking bids. The pipe fabrication contract amounted to $676,277. The PWA, which allotted $360,000 on the two contracts. may have a voice in determining how much more shall be paid on the Spiniello job. The rest of the cost was appropriated from water revenue.

INSURANCE DEALER, FOUND UNCONSCIOUS IN HOTEL, DIES

Henri David, 53, Succumbs at City Hospital; Apparently Took Overdose of Sedative.

Henri David, 53-year-old insurance dealer, with offices at 105 North Seventh street, died yesterday at City Hospital, apparently from an overdose of a sedative, a few hours after he was found unconscious in a room at the Mark Twain Hotel. In the room, police reported, were two empty containers which once had held sleeping tablets, and a partly filled whisky bottle.

His wife, Mrs. Hazel David, told police that he had not returned to their home at 6255 Delmar boulevard since Nov. 7. When he left, she said, he had been deeply concerned over financial difficulties. David had been in the insurance business here for about 25 years. His wife, a son and two sisters survive.

CLARIFICATION OF STATUS OF ARMY CHAPLAINS URGED

Council of Churches Wants to Emphasize That They Are Regular Ministers.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Dec. 10.—Clarification of the status of Army and Navy chaplains, to emphasize that they are part of the regular ministry instead of the armed services, was approved yesterday by the Federal Council of Churches.

The recommendation was made at th council's biennial meeting in a report of the Department of Research and Education.

The report calls for appointment of a commission to co-operate with other religious leaders in preparing a clarification plan.

Mrs. Simpson's Royal Romance Began With Her Presentation at Court

She Became Prince's Companion at Races and Parties, the King's Helper in His Flower Gardens.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Mrs. Wallis Simpson has been friend and companion of King Edward since long before he took up the imperial burden from his late father.

They first met after she, the wife of Ernest Aldrich Simpson, ship broker and former officer in one of the King's own regiments of guards, was presented at court before King George and Queen Mary.

Mrs. Simpson, admired in society as a sparkling conversationalist and a graceful dancer, soon attracted the King, a connoisseur of both. They began to be seen in public together, often accompanied by Simpson.

The Prince of Wales and his latest friend appeared at race meetings together, at the same rail at Aintree, Liverpool, watching the thrilling finish of the Grand National. They danced together. They attended parties at the homes of court and high society friends.

Talk of this was slow in trickling through to the general public, which, even when it heard, appeared to care little, for he then was not yet King.

From Behind a Curtain.

On the misty January morning when Edward was proclaimed throughout the city as new King and Emperor after the death of his father, watchers said they saw her look out from behind a curtain at St. James' Palace, where Edward shortly before had met and been presented to his "accession council."

Gossips' tongues wagged a little faster then, for Edward now was King—and the conduct of the leader of the dominion "on which the sun never sets" must be impeccable.

The British court had been in poor grace with its people in previous reigns, but not during the quarter century tenancy of George V. He was a family man—a trait much admired by the Englishman. To whisper against the King was frowned upon.

Belvedere, Edward's favorite home, often was his week-end retreat after he came to the throne. It became known that the black-haired American woman had been a guest at the rambling country mansion.

Friends said that, among other things, they were mutually interested in gardening, Wallis Simpson helping as Edward, sleeves rolled up, puttered about his flower beds.

Edward, an admirer of the French Riviera, was photographed there on holiday with Mrs. Simpson while Prince of Wales.

Last summer he had planned to go there again for a break from his official duties during the warm months. The Spanish crisis arose, and his Ministers advised him to change his plans.

Mediterranean Cruise.

Arrangements for the lease of a luxurious seaside villa were canceled, and Edward decided upon a Mediterranean cruise instead. Lady Yule, one of England's wealthiest women, placed her yacht, Nahlin, at his disposal.

Wallis Simpson was among the guests who boarded the craft after it had been provisioned with stocks of foods and ample supplies of liquor and had sailed to await its passengers in the Mediterranean.

Edward's guests also included Lady Diana Duff Cooper, former actress wife of Alfred Duff Cooper, Britain's Minister of War. The Minister was aboard for part of the cruise. Lord Brownlow, gentleman-in-waiting to Edward, who has handled arrangements for Mrs. Simpson in her retreat at Villa Lou Viei at Cannes during the present crisis, and Lady Brownlow were other guests.

Friends of the Simpsons confirmed that Wallis never returned to their London flat after the vacation cruise was ended. It was known that she sometimes occupied a suite in a fashionable London hotel.

In Separate Houses.

The flat two months ago was closed, the Simpsons breaking up housekeeping. The husband moved to the Guards Club and Mrs. Simpson leased a home in Cumberland Terrace, near Regents Park.

Her friends said she took it because it conveniently was arranged "for entertaining during the coronation season." The house is only a short automobile drive from Buckingham Palace.

In mid-October, it was learned that Mrs. Simpson had filed suit for divorce, the ground being misconduct, the only charge possible under English law.

Not a word was printed in the British press.

The Newspaper Proprietors' Association in London, largely under the control of wealthy and powerful Peer-owners of the capital press, met and decided that nothing would be printed before the hearing of the suit, and only the bare facts thereafter. No mention was to be made of the King.

One London afternoon newspaper, it was reported reliably, was ready to print the story of the impending divorce when orders came through canceling it.

Quiet Divorce Hearing.

The suit was docketed for trial at Ipswich, Provincial market town. Mrs. Simpson went to a nearby country home to await the hearing.

Newsreel camera and sound men moved equipment to Ipswich. At the request of a Buckingham Palace official they were withdrawn.

Oct. 27 a decree nisi of divorce was granted after Mrs. Simpson, sitting with her back to the courtroom spectators, had laid charges of adultery against her husband. The name of the co-respondent was not given in court.

Justice Sir John Anthony Hawke, a stickler for courtroom procedure, obviously did not relish his assignment to hear the case. At the end of a short hearing, during which he plainly showed his irritation at his task, he granted the decree, remarking shortly as he almost petulantly tossed the documents on the bench: "Well, then, decree granted."

The London press, still under orders, printed short accounts of the courtroom procedure. Mrs. Simpson was identified only as a "London society woman." There was no mention of the King. There was no account of the testimony. This is forbidden by law.

A few weeks later Mrs. Simpson's aunt and former confidante, Mrs. D. B. Merryman of Washington, D. C., arrived in London to join her. Friends of the family later disclosed that Mrs. Simpson was by this time perturbed by public interest in America over "the Simpson case."

Rumor continued to beat about the Cumberland terrace home of Mrs. Simpson—where Edward was known to have been a guest—but still not a word was printed in the British press linking the King and his friend.

Coming of the Storm.

On Dec. 1 the first hint of the approaching storm appeared. The Bishop of Bradford, the Rev. Alfred F. W. Blunt, addressing a church meeting, declared that the King, as much as anyone, needed "the grace of God."

There was no mention of Mrs. Simpson, or any direct hint of the conduct of the King to which the Bishop alluded. The heretofore silent press seized upon the speech for extensive editorial comment, first the provincial newspapers and then the London metropolitan press.

Then Premier Baldwin disclosed to the House of Commons, which had been eager for information, that Edward had approached him with a request to formulate and sponsor legislation enabling him to wed Wallis Simpson morganatically. Baldwin disclosed he had refused firmly.

The Premier's statement loosed the last barrier against open discussion of "L'Affaire Simpson."

Baldwin and Edward subsequently had the first of six conferences at which the whole matter was combed over. The Premier stanchily refusing to budge from his position.

Mrs. Simpson left England, accompanied by officers from Scotland Yard, and took refuge in the seaside villa of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Rogers of New York at Cannes.

Edward went to Belvedere to make his decision.

U. S. JUDGE DEFERS CASE OF NEGROES CONDEMNED TO DIE

Martineau Tells Arkansans, 'If You Fail in State Courts Come Back and File Amendment.'

HEARING CONTINUES BUT NOT DISMISSED

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LITTL EROCK, Ark., Dec. 10.—Federal Judge John E. Martineau abruptly terminated a hearing today on an application for a writ of habeas corpus for two Blytheville (Ark.) Negroes under sentence of death after conviction of assault on a young white woman but announced he would again consider the case, if necessary, after defense counsel had exhausted their remedies in the State courts.

Following the suggestion of the court, attorneys for the Negroes will apply immediately to the Circuit Court of Mississippi County, where the case originated, asking that the case be reviewed on matters outside the official record—which would niclude the alleged mob spirit in tht court room on which the application for the Federal writ was based.

"If you lose in the State court come in here and file an amendment," Judge Martineau suggested.

Judge Martineau, who did not dismiss the petition but directed the hearing be continued pending further appeal to the State courts, cited recent instances in which the United Sttaes Supreme Court had ruled that every remedy must first be exhausted in State courts before turning to the Federal courts.

Judge Gives His Reason.

The Judge, who recently informed an Arkansas jury that in his opinion Paul D. Peacher, City Marshal of Earl, was guilty of violating the anti-slavery statute by forcing Negroes to work on land leased by him after a farcical trial made another significant observation in regard to his suggestion to turn again to the State courts by saying: "I do not because I think in the end it would probably be done anyway."

Defense attorneys, all Negroes, had previously been denied a new trial by the Arkansas Supreme Court and had thought they could go no further in the State courts with their contention that the defendants were deprived of their constitutional guarantee of "equal protection of the laws' because of a spirit of mob intimidation invading the court room.

They will now go to the Circuit Court, where the Negroes were convicted on April 9, 1935, and file a writ of coram nobis—a request for a review on the matters mentioned which were outlined in detail in the Post-Dispatch last March 1.

Judge Martineau halted the hearing after listening to opening statements and hearing the testimony of Arthur L. Adams of Jonesboro, original defense attorney appointed by the Court there, who testified substantially as outlined in his statement in the Post-Dispatch articcle. The hearing was continued just as Bubbles Clayton, one of the Negro defendants, took the stand. He was to have been followed by the other, Jim X. Carruthers. Handcuffed and chained, the Negroes were returned to their cells at Tucker Farm, penal institution, near here.

Opening Statement.

In his opening statement, John A. Hibbler recited the history of the case, referred to the "spirit of mob violence" affecting the trial, alluded to the fact that no Negroes were on the jury and that Negroes have been "systematically excluded" from Mississippi County juries for 50 years because of the tension in the community, the original defense attorney could not obtain the necessary two affidavits to support a motion for a change of venue, he stated. Other counsel for the Negroes included Charles H. Houston of New York, from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, who entered the case today, and Scipio Jones, local attorney.

The State, through Hugh Wharton, Assistant Attorney-General, attempted vainly to remove the case from the permanent jurisdiction of the Federal Court on the contention that all of the allegations in the petition were incorporated in previous appeals to the State Supreme Court.

Adams testified that when the Negroes were indicted, about eight days before the trial, Judge Neill Killough, of the Second Judicial Circuit, who was in court today ready to testify, asked him, as a favor to take the case. He had scant time for preparation, he said, could not obtain the co-operation of the white residents of the Blytheville community, and from their attitude obtained the impression that "they thought the boys would get justice, al lright—but you were left to infer what justice it would be."

Feared Prejudice.

He failed to file a "Scottsboro motion" for Negro jurors, the attorney explained, because he thought it would have a technical rather than a practical effect and only serve to prejudice the minds of the people.

Adams disclosed that some members of the jury were his close personal friends. He said he deemed it at the time to be "a pretty good jury," and declared under cross-examination that "at the threshold of the trial" he thought he had two convincing defenses. One, he said, was an alibi defense, the other was lack of definite identification by the prosecuting witness.

But his alibi witnesses "evaporated somehow," when he went in search of them, Adams said, and as has been told, the State Supreme Court overruled part of previous defense petitions dealing with the alleged nebulous nature of the young woman's identification.

Turning to the conduct of the trial itself, he related how the foreman of the jury interrupted his closing argument by attempting to speak to an officer of the court; detailed a scene in the judge's chambers after the jury had requested to be sent home for the night, since it was not agreed "as to the punishment," when an official hurried in the room and informed the judge that he couldn't get the Negroes back to the jail if the jury returned home.

Adams was painstaking in stating the county officials were courteous to him, adding "but I couldn't go to the officers and ask what their investigation showed—it just isn't done."

Way Open for Return.

Judge Martineau listened intently to his recital and before Clayton, the defendant, could testify terminated the hearing, but left the way open for a return to the Federal courts.

As has been told, the intense community feeling was due primarily to the well-established belief that the two Negroes shot and wounded Sheriff Clarence Wilson and were responsible for a series of robberies of persons in automobiles parked in lonely places.

Loot from some of the robberies was found in their rooms.

The alleged criminal attack charge came to light after the Negroes were arrested for the robberies and held at Tucker Farm for safekeeping. Indeed, it was not known generally that the Negroes were indicted for criminal assault as well as for robbery and shooting the Sheriff and the case still is referred to in the Blytheville area as that of "those Negroes who shot the Sheriff."

YOUTH HELD IN EXTORTION PLOT AGAINST OLYMPIC COACH

Said to Admit Demanding $5000 of J. W. Behr on Threat of Kidnaping Daughter.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—Kenneth William Faulkner, 19 years old, was called before a Federal commissioner today for arraignment on a charge of attempting to extort $5000 from J. W. Behr, coach of the American Olympic boxing team and director of the Illinois Athletic Club.

Federal agents who arrested Faulkner said he admitted sending three letters to Behr demanding the money under threat of kidnaping his daughter, Barbara Ann Behr, 18-year-old student at Lake Forest College.

The writer of the notes, mailed Jan. 6, 8 and 10, directed Behr to place $5000 in a white box and have a maid deliver it to the balcony of a Loop hotel. No one appeared to collect the dummy package placed at the designated spot by a woman under supervision of the agents.

DEATH FOR KILLING HIS STEPDAUGHTER

Jury at Hazelhurst, Ga., Convicts Odd Job Man of Trampling Girl, 14.

By the Associated Press.

HAZLEHURST, Ga., Dec. 10.—Lawrence Ward, itinerant add job man accused of stamping his 14-year-old stepdaughter, Maude Salters, to death when he forced her to admit she visited another man, was convicted of murder yesterday and sentenced to death. He is 51 years old.

The jury deliberated 50 minutes. Judge Gordon Knox fixed the execution date at Jan. 29. The defense moved for a new trial and a hear ing was set for Jan. 15.

Ward received the verdict apparently without immediately comprehending its meaning.

As the foreman pronounced the finding, Ward turned to the Sheriff and asked, "What was the verdict?"

"Guilty," said the Sheriff.

"What does that mean? Does it mean that I am going to the electric chair?" Ward continued.

Ward's expression did not change.

Judge Knox inquired if he had anything to say before sentence was pronounced.

"I would like to ask you to be as light on me as you possibly can," Ward said.

The jury's verdict was guilty without a recommendation for mercy, which made the death penalty mandatory.

Shelley Salters, 12, brother of the girl, was the principal witness against his step-father.

The boy said the father set upon the girl at their roadside camp near here last Nov. 14, after chaining their mother to the ground. The girl died the next day in a Brunswick Hospital.

"I sure did not hit the child or stomp her," said Ward in a statement to the jury. "I went down by the road and when I came back my wife said she (Maude) was struck by an automobile."

The stepson said he was aroused in the morning by "Daddy snatching a chain." He testified Ward locked the chain about Mrs. Ward's legs and then knocked the girl down.

"All the time he was asking ma didn't she go out with a man," Shelley said.

The boy said his mother denied having been out with anyone "but when daddy said he was going to kill her she said she did."

"Then he asked if Maude went with her," the lad said, "and mother said Maude had met a man." Shelley then asserted Ward stamped on the girl until she likewise acknowledged the accusation.

Mrs. Ward, pale and poorly clad, followed the testimony closely. During a brief recess Ward conversed with his wife for the first time since his arrest.

"You don't want to send me to the electric chair, do you?" he asked his wife, who is 50.

"I'm not sending you to the chair," she replied.

NOBODY WILLING TO SELL ANY COPPER TO U. S. NAVY

Result of New Law Requiring 40-Hour Week for Firms With Government Contracts.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The Navy is in the market for 2,600,000 pounds of copper but can find nobody willing to sell. This strange situation is due, Navy officials said, to the new Walsh-Healey Government Contract Act.

The act provides that concerns which make contracts of more than $10,000 with the Government must pay "prevailing" wages as determined by the Secretary of Labor, must establish a 40-hour maximum work week and employ no child labor.

The Navy's bids were to be opened yesterday, but no bids appeared. Navy officials immediately made known they would discuss the situation with Secretary of Labor Perkins.

Although no comment could be obtained here directly from large copper companies, persons usually well informed said many Western copper mines were operating 48 hours a week.

Only one bid was received for a contract for 3500 tons of steel to be used in new ships under the Navy's building program. This bid, department officials said, was unsatisfactory.

Miss Perkins said both Government purchasing agencies and private businesses had made requests for exemptions from the act. The Navy Department, she said, might ask for exemptions in the present cases.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 10.—The second special session of the Fifty-ninth General Assembly adjourned sine die early today after the Senate completed action on a bill to extend the 3 per cent sales tax to May 1.

The vote on the bill, which Gov. Horner supported, was 35 to 5. Four companion measures continuing the relief program were approved, 37 to 3.

The Senate rejected the appointment by Horner of John M. Lowry of Chicago as chief grain inspector to succeed Tim Kiley, also of Chicago, who was removed from office after declining to support Horner in the April primary election.

STANDARD MILK BILL APPROVED BY COMMITTEE

Plan to Suspend Rules and Seek Its Passage by Aldermen Tomorrow Is Abandoned.

The Public Welfare Committee of the Board of Aldermen, by a unanimos vote, today approved without major amendment the standard milk control ordinance which had met with combined opposition of distributors and producers at public hearings.

A plan to suspend the rules and submit the bill for passage when it is reported favorably to the Board of Aldermen tomorrow, was abandoned, and sponsors said they would call it u for third reading and a vote Dec. 18. The change was made, President William L. Mason said, because it had been decided the board would hold another meeting before adjourning for the holidays. Previously it had been planned to adjourn tomorrow.

Only Minor Amendments.

Alderman Otto L. Lietchen, chairman of the committee, predicted the board would pass the bill "as a Christmas present to St. Louis."

Minor amendments to the bill as approved by the committee were acceptable both to Health Commissioner Joseph F. Bredeck, one of the principal advocates of the ordinance, and Associate City Counselor Louis A. McKeown, who drafted it. One change gave producers the privilege of appealing to the city law department from findings of the health department.

Dr. Bredeck and McKeown conferred with the committee for more than three hours before it went into executive session. After the adjournment of the committee, Dr. Bredeck expressed his enire satisfaction with the draft which will be reported to the board.

Distributors' Pleas Heard.

Officers and attorneys for distributors spent an hour with the committee this morning in an unsuccessful attempt to obtain approval of amendments they had suggested.

The amendments offered by the distributors would have removed the principal features of the bill—permitting the Board of Public Service to lower the grade of a distributor's product for violation of the ordinance, levying a tax of about 1-11 of a cent a quart to provide funds for inspection and raising standards in accordance with those approved by the United States Public Health Service.

Mayor Dickmann announced last week that he expected the ordinance would be passed by the board without material change and added that he would sign it.

600 FROM FOREIGN GROUPS TO GIVE CHRISTMAS PROGRAM

International Institute's Festival Sunday at St. Louis U. Gymnasium.

The International Institute, a United Charities agency, will hold its ninth annual Christmas festival at 2:30 o'clock next Sunay afternoon at St. Louis University gymnasium.

About 600 members of the St. Louis foreign colony and other groups will take part. German songs will be sung by the Deutsche Damenchor, directed by Karl Kasper, and dances of the German Tyrol will be offered by the Bayerische Schuhplattlers. There will be folk dances by Polish and Yugoslav groups.

Southern Italians will give a dramatization of the birth of Christ and Mexicans will sing and dance in costume. American Indians will sing Christmas songs in dialect and ancient dances of Greece will be interpreted by the Greek organization. French and English Christmas carols will constitute the program of the John Burroughs School Glee Club.

INTERPRETATION OF MUSIC IN BATIK TO BE EXPLAINED

vo Radulovich to Appear Tonight at Washington U. International Bazaar.

Savo Radulovich, 26-year-old batik artist, will explain his process of interpreting music through batik work as part of the program of the International Bazaar at Washington University, which will close a two-day session tonight.

Radulovich, a native of Jugoslavia and graduate of the Washington University School of Fine Arts, will have several specimens of his work at the bazaar. He bases his artistry on folk songs of Jugoslavia as well as on classical compositions.

Also on tonight's program will be native Polish dancers in costume, a marionette revue by Margaret Hassock and Spanish dances by Esther Marie Aguada. Foreign students at the University, in costumes of their respective native lands, will be on hand in the 15 booths representing foreign nations. The bazaar is sponsored by the university Y. M. C. A.-Y. W. C. A. to raise funds for its program of campus service.

LEGION COMMANDER

LEGION COMMANDER TO SPEAK TONIGHT

Arriving in St. Louis for Meeting, He Discusses View of Veterans on Pensions.

The National Commander of the American Legion, Harry W. Colmery of Topeka, Kan., who came to St. Louis today to outline the Legion program and viewpoint for 1937 in a speech this evening at Municipal Auditorium, told reporters that he thought there was little demand, despite repeated proposals, for general pension payments to World War veterans.

"Such proposals, voiced by a few," he said, "are given weight beyond their importance when they are widely broadcast by newspapers or incorporated in the platform of some demagogue. As a matter of fact, I have received hundreds of letters from Legion members who have various suggestions to make, and hardly one of them contained a request that we campaign for general pensions."

The 46-year-old lawyer, whose reputation for frankness even to the point of criticising some of the activities of Legion members, has preceded him, was the subject of wide editorial comment recently after a public address in which he said that it was the duty of the American Legion to "not deny the right of free speech or peaceable assembly to any person or any group, not even to those whose theories we despise."

After a banquet at Hotel Statler, attended by national committeemen, State and district officers, commanders and adjutants of the Legion who live in the St. Louis area, he will speak at 8 p. m. in the Opera House at the Auditorium.

Historic Precedent in England for Turmoil Over King's Plan to Wed

Incidents of Kind From Edward II Forward, But in 600 Years No Other Sovereign Has Abdicated Voluntarily.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The turmoil in which King Edward's love affair has embroiled England and the British Empire is not the first resulting from the marriage arrangements of a British sovereign.

The marital adventures of Henry VIII, far from romantic in their bloody consequences, are well known. He defied public opinion, and particularly the stand of the church, by taking as his first wife, in 1509, Catherine of Aragon, widow of his brother. His manner of wedding, however, was in no wise so shocking as the way he divorced her 24 years later, after repeated refusals of the Pope to approve the separation, so that he might legally marry Anne Boleyn of whom he had been enamored for some years. Anne held him only a few years and, to be rid of her, he had her beheaded. There followed four other marriages, and one other of the hapless brides, Catherine Howard, paid with her life as had Anne.

Two Pseudo-Abdications.

In 600 years of English history there is no record of a King having abdicated of his own free will in order that he might follow the path of romance, or for any other reason. Since the year 1300 there are five instances of the separation of an English monarch from his throne before his death. Two have been described, technically, as abdication; King Richard II in a prison cell signed a deed of abdication in 1399, and King James II, having fled to France in the face of armed rebellion in 1688, was declared by Parliament to have abdicated. That such was not James' intention was shown by later unsuccessful efforts to regain the throne.

Through strife and turmoil, intrigue and betrayal, and often at great personal danger and suffering, English Kings, and Queens, have chosen to carry on, and, if necessary, defend their royal status to the bitter end.

Although public opposition to royal marriages has flared up before, this is the first time it has been based on the fact of the ruler's chosen mate having been divorced—the two divorces of Wallis Warfield Simpson being undoubtedly the compelling force behind the tidal wave of protest against the King's proposed match. It seems settled in the British conscience that no matter how charming the woman her history could not but dishonor the proud and lofty throne of England and the empire.

Previous Domestic Standards.

This public view no doubt is fortified by the admirable record in recent generations for the maintenance of high domestic standards in the royal palace. From the time of the great Queen Victoria, who succeeded to the crown in 1837, the throne has been occupied by a sovereign of exemplary family life. She was followed by her son, Edward VII, and he by the late George V, father of Edward VIII.

The marriage of Queen Mary I in 1554, in the face of bitter oppositions, is recalled by Edward's present difficulties. She was a daughter of Henry VIII by his first wife, and succeeded to the throne in 1553 on the death of a half-brother who had no heirs. Shortly after her accession (she then was 37 and never had been married) she announced her intention of marrying Philip of Spain, son of the Emperor, Charles V. Philip was 11 years her junior and was a devout Roman Catholic at a time when much of England was bitterly antagonistic to the Catholic Church.

Wyatt's Rebellion.

There was widespread opposition. A factor was the general belief that Charles V had arranged the marriage for the purpose of an alliance of England with Spain against France. The House of Commons sent a deputation to entreat Mary not to marry a foreigner. Aroused by her determination, an army under the leadership of Wyatt marched on London proposing to depose her and place on the throne her half-sister Elizabeth. The rebellion was quelled and Mary resolutely stood her ground and married Philip. As was expected, England soon was embroiled in war with France. Philip went off to the wars and in 1558 Mary died.

The case of Richard II has been ctied as somewhat paralleling that of Edward in the romantic aspect. He ascended the throne in 1377, but long before that he had married Anne of Bohemia. She died in 1394 and two years later Richard went to France and for political reasons "married" the 7-year-old Isabella, daughter of Charles VI of France. This marriage was never consummated, but it went much against public opinion in England. In the years that followed Richard maintained a court of "wanton luxury," supported by arbitrary taxation. He declared that "the laws of England were in his mouth," was ruthless with his enemies, and resentful of any restraint. For a time he was forced to submit to a parliamentary council of state, and ultimately, as the opposition strength grew, he was made prisoner and forced to sign a deed of abdication.

The Case of Charles I.

The most luckless of the British Kings was Charles I who lost his head as a result of conflict with his people. Shortly after ascending the throne in 1625 he made an unpopular marriage, taking as his bride Henrietta of France. She was a Roman Catholic and the religious issue still was a burning one in England.

Charles had an exalted view of the prerogatives of kingship, and in the first four years of his reign he dissolved three Parliaments for refusal to assent to arbitrary measures he proposed.

For 11 years thereafter Charles ruled without a Parliament, but all the while public discontent was growing. Finally the King was forced to call Parliament, and the "Long Parliament" of 1640 set about the grim business of demanding redress of grievances. The conflict between the King and Parliament was long and bitter, but gradually the latter gained the upper hand. Impeachment of the unpopular Queen was threatened and her life was in danger. The struggle turned into civil war. At last Charles was brought to helplessness.

Beheading of King Charles.

In 1648 Parliament, having decided that Charles was guilty of treason by "levying warfare against the Parliament and the kingdom of England," appointed a court to try him. He refused to submit to the court, challenging its authority and declaring that he was King not by choice of the people but by descent. Nevertheless, he was in physical custody and the court proceeded to try him and sentenced him to death. He was decapitated Jan. 30, 1649.

His last words are said to have been: "I desired the liberty and freedom of the people as much as any, but I must tell you that their liberty and freedom consists in having government. It is not their having a share in the government; that is nothing pertaining to them. A subject and a sovereign are clean different things."

The church issue was the undoing of James II who ascended the throne in 1685. He had earlier embraced the Catholic religion. Both his first wife, Anne Hyde, who died in 1671, and his second, Mary of Modena, were Catholics. The religious issue was a cause of bitter dissension, and a great mass of public opinion was aroused against the King by his adherence to the Catholic church. He sent a mission to Rome and heard mass in public, and was said to have made himself subservient to the French King.

There was armed rebellion, and three years after he became King, William of Orange, his own son-in-law, led an army against him. He is said to have thrown the Great Seal of the kingdom into the Thames before he fled to France. He did not formally resign the crown, but Parliament declared that he had abdicated.

Rebellion Against Henry VI.

King Henry VI also came to an untimely end. He succeeded to the throne of England when less than a year old, and was crowned in 1429, when 8 years old. He had also been proclaimed King of France on the death of his grandfather, Charles VI. As he grew to manhood his kingdoms were involved in wars. The French provinces broke away and rebellion developed at home. The King was not popular with the people of England. The King's defenders were overcome and in 1461, Edward of York had himself proclaimed King. For some years Henry made futile efforts to regain his place, but his death came in 1471, and history attributes it to an act of violence on the part of one of his enemies.

Parliament deposed King Edward II in 1327. His reign was filled with conflict, and his wife, Isabella of France, helped in his undoing. Displeased with the King's conduct and his choice of favorites, she went to France in 1325, became the paramour of Roger Mortimer, and a year later returned with him to England and raised an army to try to drive Edward from the throne. In the subsequent campaign Edward was captured and Parliament deposed him. It was announced shortly afterward that he had died a natural death in prison, hut historians believe he was killed.

FORMER POLICE CHIEF FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER

Death Sentence Mandatory for Death of Woman Clerk of Florida Town.

By the Associated Press.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Dec. 10.—A. L. Burton, former police chief at High Springs, was convicted last night of the murder of a woman town clerk.

There was no recommendation for mercy and a death sentence was mandatory.

State witnesses testified there was ill feeling between Burton and Miss Bonnie Collins, the clerk. The defense offered no testimony.

Miss Collins was beaten with a wrench Dec. 31, 1935. Burton, then an officer, said he entered her office in time to see Le Walker, a Negro, strike her with a wrench. Burton said he shot Walker.

A Coroner's jury held the Negro killed Miss Collins and that Burton acted in the line of duty. Later, at the request of Miss Collins' family, a State investigator was assigned to the case. Last spring a grand jury indicted Burton for both deaths.

Association Calls on Individual Heads of Lines to Try Negotiating With Unions.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 10.—Another peace proposal was rejected, and a new plan for negotiating agreements was proposed in the Pacific Coast tieup, now in its forty-second day.

A proposal made to licensed deck officers by the coastwise shippers was voted down here and in Portland by locals of the Masters, Mates and Pilots of America. The vote here was 282 to 9; in Portland, 48 to 9. The proposal involved a wage increase, the details of which were not announced.

Rejection of the offer temporarily ended prospects of a partial strike settlement which would allow resumption of service by about 70 freighters carrying 10 per cent of the Pacific coast's marine cargo.

The Shipping Merchants' Association, comprising importers, exporters and others firms patronizing shipping lines, declared negotiations between a committee representing ship owners and unions had failed and called on individual heads of shipping lines to get together with union officers.

A strikers' mass meeting in San Pedro last night adopted a resolution asking President Roosevelt to consider recommending legislation for the operation of Government-owned steamships.

The resolution urged the President to discontinue Federal aid to the "Big Three" offshore lines, Dollar, Matson and American-Hawaiian, which unions charge are prolonging the walkout while using income from Federal subsidies.

New York Strike Delays One Liner, Ties Up Another.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—The United States liner President Roosevelt was delayed in New York harbor last night to complete its crew for a voyage to Europe and the maritime strike forced cancelation of the liner Virginia's departure Saturday for California.

The President Roosevelt, its passenger space closed and carrying only cargo and mail, left 45 minutes late from its pier, where nearly 200 striking seamen made a picketing demonstration. It stopped in the bay to obtain several men for its engine room and did not move past quarantine until 6:30 p. m. The delay at the pier was caused when Federal steamboat inspectors insisted on tests of the crew in handling lifeboats.

The Strike Strategy Committee issued a statement asserting it had transmitted to President Roosevelt and Secretary of Commerce Roper charges that ships were sailing with crews not properly qualified for their duties.

"We charge Capt. George B. Fried, district head of the United States Steamboat Inspection Service, and John Daly, United States Shipping Commissioner for the Port of New York, with working in concert with the American Ship Owners' Association in their vicious attempts to break the seamen's strike," the statement said.

It is asserted further that safety laws were being violated and that the members of the National Organization of Masters, Mates and Pilots had given sworn statements "that lifeboat certificates were granted to 13 inexperienced strike-breakers who had never been to sea before."

IOWA FARMER KILLS SON, 4, SETS HOUSE AFIRE, ENDS LIFE

Revolver With Three Cartridges Discharged Found in Home Near Bodies.

By the Associated Press.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., Dec. 10.—Sheriff Joe Perry said last night he had found a revolver with three cartridges fired in the farm house where the bodies of William Emswiller and his 4-year-old son, Donald, were discovered yesterday.

Perry said it was indicated that Emswiller had shot the boy, set fire to his house and then killed himself. The Sheriff said Emswiller's wife had left the home Tuesday, taking the younger children to the home of a son, Peyton Emswiller, at Missouri Valley, Ia. When the bodies were found, the boy's head rested on the father's shoulder.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY'S CASH ON HAND INCREASES

The St. Louis Public Service Co. had $3,389,431 cash on hand at the end of October, according to a report filed in Federal Court today by Henry W. Kiel, operating trustee under bankruptcy reorganization proceedings. This was an increase of $376,562 during the month.

A report for September, also filed today, showed cash increased $75,844 in that month, being $3,012,869 at the close. These reports do not reflect the actual operating status of the company, as various accruals are not taken into account. Interest accruing on bonds is not being paid, pending determination of legal questions.

The consolidated operating results of the Public Service Co. and the People's Motorbus Co. for the 10 months of the year ending with October showed a deficit after provision for depreciation of $268,000. Net operating revenue, however, was nearly 10 per cent higher than a year ago.

ANNUAL FARM INTEREST CUT $180,000,000, SAYS FCA HEAD

Reduction Result of Government Financing, Gov. W. I. Myers Says in Speech.

By the Associated Press.

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 10.—Annual interest on the farm mortgage debt has been reduced by about $180,000,000 since 1930, Gov. W. I. Myers of the Farm Credit Administration told the American Farm Bureau Federation convention today. This reduction is practically the same, he said, as increasing farmers' purchasing power by that sum.

"Mortgage interest payments of 800,000 borrowers through the FCA are lower by more than $74,000,000 this year due to debt refinancing at lower rates of interest and because of temporary interest subsidies provided by Congress," Myers said.

"This direct saving results from the refinancing program of the FCA, which now holds approximately 40 per cent of the total farm real estate mortgage debt in the United States." Myers said, however, that subsidized interest rates for agriculture should be confined to the emergency period.

FELLER DECLARED PROPERTY OF CLEVELAND CLUB BY LANDIS

Landis Declares Baltimore Amendment Recently Adopted by Major and Minor Leagues Bound Him to Declare Valid Contract Which Started Young Right-hander on Way to Cleveland Team.

By J. Roy Stockton
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Bob Feller, youthful strikeout king of the American League today was declared the property of the Cleveland club and Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis, in handing down the long-awaited decision, ordered the Indians to pay $7500 to the Des Moines club of the Western League.

The commissioner said in the course of the three-page statement outlining the history and evidence in the case that the Baltimore amendment adopted by the minor leagues in convention at Montreal recently and by the major leagues here, bound him to declare valid the contract which started Feller on his way to the Cleveland club. The Baltimore amendment provided that scouts were free to recommend players to clubs other than the one for which they worked and the commissioner therefore interpreted the signing of Feller to a Fargo-Moorehead club by Cy Slapnicka of the Cleveland club as a "recommendation" by Slapnicka to the Fargo-Moorehead club.

A 2500-Word Decision.

"This legislation," the commissioner's 2500-word statement explained, "must be regarded as construing the covenant of the majors not to sign sand-lotters as fulfilled if the player first signs a minor contract, notwithstanding he was in fact signed by or for a major club. That construction of the covenant by the beneficiary of it, being adverse to the interests of the beneficiary, binds the commissioner.

"When Cleveland officially acquired Feller on July 13, 1936, he had previously contracted with a minor club (Fargo-Moorehead) as the rule involved is officially constructed by the beneficiary of that rule. Consequently the commissioner is precluded from entering an order invalidating the Cleveland-Feller contract.

"It should also be observed that from the beginning of this inquiry the player and his father (who also executed the contract, the player being a minor) have zealously sought and supported validation of the Cleveland contract.

"Further, invalidation of the Feller-Cleveland contract would be futile, so far as Des Moines, the complaining club is concerned, as its only result would be to recreate precisely the same situation through Feller's signing a new contract in the name of some other minor club acting for some other major club.

Cannot Determine Damages.

"Des Moines was negotiating with this player for his services and under the then-existing conditions was entitled to have Cleveland abstain from competitive efforts to get him. That Cleveland was well aware of this fact is evident from it's agent's conduct throughout the case, including a proposal to settle Des Moines claim for $1500. What Des Moines' damages actually were or might have been cannot be determined. But there clearly was a violation of it's rights. Des Moines accordingly is awarded $7500 that amount having been offered for Feller's contract as a free agent prior to promulgation of the Fargo-Moorehead contract."

Copies of the commissioner's long statement were distributed in the press room while the text of the ruling was being read for the Commissioner before the joint meeting of the major leagues. No word was available as to the reaction to the decision among the club owners, but as the Commissioner in effect, seemed to be bowing to their wishes as expressed in the action of the Baltimore amendment, it was expected that the club owners would approve the action.

Baseball writers regarded the decision as a wishy-washy compromise stating as it did that the Cleveland club plainly had violated the major-minor rules and yet awarding Feller to the club guilty of the violation.

The statement pointed out that there would have been no Feller case if the Cleveland club had taken the precaution to become the owner of the Fargo-Moorhead club and to have Slapnicka designated as vice-president of Fargo-Moorhead, before he signed Feller. This process brought to farm-owning major clubs the services of a great number of sand lotters, the commissioner explained, and "the inevitable consequence was that other major league clubs assumed that, to compete with their farm-system associates, it was necessary that they likewise secure sand lotters by signing them in the name of or by minor clubs with which they were "working," or friendly.

Feller broke into the limelight on Sept. 13 when, pitching for the Indians, he fanned 17 Philadelphia Athletics to set a new American League strikeout record and equalled the major league mark.

Lee Keyser Satisfied With Judge's Verdict.

DES MOINES, Ia., Dec. 10.—E. Lee Keyser, president of the Des Moines Western League baseball club, said today he thought Commissioner Landis' decision in the Bob Feller case was "a fair and just ruling."

Landis ruled that the 18-year-old pitching sensation was the property of the Cleveland American League club, but awarded Keyser $7500.

Keyser protested the Cleveland club's contract with the youthful strikeout king, claiming the major league club signed Feller direct from the sand lot in violation of a major league agreement.

"I felt," Keyser said, "that Cleveland transgressed baseball law when that club signed Feller, but I knew the Judge would make a fair decision."

At Van Meter, Ia., W. H. Feller, father of the pitching prodigy, said "Bob will feel all right" about the decision.

Bob, a senior student, was attending class at high school and could not be reached immediately for a statement.

No Change in Baseball for 1937 Season

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.

MAJOR league officials voted today to keep the "fast" baseball for another season after manufacturers stated that they have almost a season's supply of the "rabbit" balls on hand.

Each club was given permission to allow children in the grandstand for a flat fee of 50 cents.

Though the club owners went on record in favor of a "dead" ball, they decided to postpone the issue until the present supply is exhausted and the 1937 season is complete.

The majors again appropriated $20,000 to the American Legion to help run the Legion's annual amateur tournament.

Rickey Still Waiting on Pittsburgh Club to Okay Deal for Hurler Dizzy Dean

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—The telephone in Branch Rickey's hotel suite rang at least 100 times last evening, but the one call that he was looking for never came and today Jerome Herman Dean was still a member of the St. Louis Cardinals.

"I'm a prisoner tonight," Rickey explained, as he ordered broiled mushrooms, a glass of milk, a dish of ice cream and a piece of cake. "I'm waiting for a call. It is a very important call. I have been working like a dog, but if the call comes it will all be worth while. No, I can't tell you any more."

George Trautman, president of the American Association telephoned. Joe Carr, minor league promotion man, phoned and then called in person. Bill DeWitt and Rogers Hornsby were on the other end of the line. There were calls from newspapers. Each time the bell tinkled, Rickey looked hopefully as William Walsingham Jr., assistant to Rickey and official telephone answerer and telegram sender, sprang into action. But each time it was somebody other than the person Rickey was expecting. Each time he plainly was disappointed.

The End Not Yet in Sight.

By 10 o'clock the calls were coming in less frequently. By 11 o'clock it was possible to carry on a connected conversation. At 11:30 o'clock Rickey looked at his watch.

"I guess the call isn't coming," he said, rather sadly.

Did the failure mean that Dizzy Dean would not be traded, that the Cardinals would take down the "for trade" sign?

"No, it doesn't mean that," he replied "I have a busy day ahead of me, aside from trades. I have an appointment at 9 and another at 10 and the joint meeting also at 10. But after the joint meeting I expect to make one last effort before I fly to Portsmouth, O., for a dinner engagement. That's my home country. Its a Mark Twain home coming for me."

The call that didn't come was a call that Rickey had expected from William Benswanger, president, or Pie Traynor, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Rickey, though he would not admit as much, had rested his terms for a Dean trade, with Paul Waner substituted for Arky Vaughan as one of the keymen. Cy Blanton was the other and the deal also included five or six lesser members of the Pirate baseball squad. Traynor and Benswanger had told Rickey they would think over the trade and call after dinner.

The baseball world is still betting that Dizzy Dean will not be with the Cardinals next year, and it is now widely known that Breadon and Rickey will be bitterly disappointed if they fail to separate Jerome Herman from the St. Louis roster. But Rickey admitted last night that a cash deal could not be considered seriously. Rickey also said that if a trade could not be arranged soon, the club probably would make an announcement that Dizzy no longer was on the market.

Browns Wanted Bill Werber.

There was only one player transaction as the magnates went through the second day of their meeting. The Boston Red Sox traded the temperamental Bill Werber to the Philadelphia Athletics for Pinky Higgins, also a third baseman. The deal was said to have been held up while Connie Mack was finding out from Werber whether he would be willing to play in Philadelphia.

Hornsby and DeWitt were sorry to hear about the trade. They had been talking to the Red Sox about a deal, in which Werber was to figure as the keyman. Dahlgren, Ostermueller and Almada were others mentioned as likely to figure in a swap which would have sent Julius Solters back to Boston. The Indians are still interested in Hemsley and Solters may be included in a transaction with the Cleveland club.

Both leagues have agreed that Sunday doubleheaders will be permitted after the third Sunday at home in any city. This means that one league can start playing doubleheaders on Sunday about June 6, and the other section about June 20. In other years the time limit was June 15.

The American League joined with the National in voting to permit seven night games each for the Browns and Cardinals. In the American League the Yankees and Tigers indicated they would decline to play at night.

L. Carl McEvoy, former vice-president and business manager of the Browns, was appointed assistant to President Harridge, in charge of radio affairs. He will supervise radio contracts.

Quigley, Umpire Emeritus.

The National League retired Ernest Quigley from active service and appointed him supervisor of umpires. The league also adopted the John O. Seys home plate, a beveledged contraption which is said to minimize the danger of spikes catching in the surface as players slide for home.

JACK BURNS IS RELEASED TO TOLEDO CLUB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Mickey Cochrane, manager of the Detroit Tigers, announced last night the outright release of First Baseman Jack Burns and Catcher Frank Reiber to the Toledo Mud Hens of the American Association.

Cochrane said he did not expect to need Burns next year as he is counting on the injured Hank Greenberg being back in his old form and will have Rudy York from Milwaukee. Mickey indicated that he would rely upon Bordie Tebbetts when he, Mickey himself, or Ray Hayworth is not catching.

The New York Giants announced the purchase of four young pitcher from Greenwood of the Cotton States League. They were William Benne, John Meteki and Tom Ferrick, righthanders, and William Yarewick, southpaw.

The 100-yard third hole at Triple A was the scene of a hole in one yesterday. Eddie Raft was the lucky shot maker. He was playing with Barry McDonald, Gully Owen and Beverly Brown.

HOPPE WINNER OVER COCHRAN IN TITLE MEET

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—Willie Hoppe, one-time "boy wonder" came from behind last night to defeat Welker Cochran, San Francisco star, 50 to 43 in 45 innings in the world champion three-cushion billiard tournament.

It was Cochran's third loss in seven matches and to stay in the running he must defeat the tourney leaders, Kinrey Matsuyama and Johnny Layton. Hoppe's high run was five, Cochran's six.

Cochran appeared headed for an easy triumph and a tie with Layton for second place, until just before the intermission. Stroking brilliantly while Hoppe struggled to get started, Cochran worked up a 24 to 15 margin in 21 innings. Hoppe got things under control at that point, however, and at the rest period, trailed by 21 to 26.

Hoppe Goes into Lead.

The coast player staged another spurt after they resumed play and at the twenty-ninth inning led by 35 to 22. Once more Hoppe rallied and this time kept firing away until he took the lead for the first time in the thirty-sixth at 39 to 38. He drew blanks in his next two trips to the table, but starting with the thirty-ninth reeled off 11 points in seven innings to win.

In the single afternoon match, Tiff Denton of Kansas City, clung to his slender chance of winning the title by defeating Art Thurnblad of Chicago, 50 to 42, in 74 innings, the longest match of the tournament. The match was Denton's final of the regular schedule, and left him with six victories and three defeats.

Should Matsuyama lose his final match Friday, and Layton drop one of his two remaining starts, Denton would be tossed into a tie for the leadership. Cochran could share in the deadlock by winning his two remaining matches.

The standings:

	W.	L.	Pts.	Inn.	H.R.	B.G.
Matsuyama —	6	2	369	347	12	38
Layton — —	5	2	305	329	11	28
Denton — —	6	3	410	535	8	54
Cochran — —	4	3	320	348	10	35

Thurnblad— —	3	6	324	443	7	48
Lookabaugh —	2	7	339	441	6	41

Yesterday's results:
Denton, 50; Thurnblad, 42 (74 innings); Hoppe, 50; Cochran, 43 (45 innings).

WRAY'S COLUMN

Gone With the Dogs.

IN a legislative sense the Commonwealth of Massachusetts appears to be heading for the "demnition bow-wows." By this we mean that laws already passed and others contemplated indicate that the legislators of the Bay State have a strong leaning toward greyhound racing as compared to the ancient sport of horse racing.

When racing was legalized in Massachusetts the mutuel law passed permitted the dog tracks to deduct 15 per cent of the mutuel pool, while horse racing tracks were limited to 10 per cent. The State took the same percentage (3½) from each. The horse tracks were charged $1000 a day and the dog tracks $200 for licenses.

Now the Legislature is considering new plans which contemplate taxing the "comeback" money of the horse tracks and adding graded taxation of the mutuel pool when it passes the $250,000 mark.

IN both instances the dog tracks escape. There is no comeback money for the dog mutuels; and does the handle rarely reach $250,000. The effect is to weaken the horse-racing interests while letting the greyhound promoters harvest lush profits.

The situation is all the more difficult to understand because the dog track costs around $150,000 to build, with operating costs about $2500 daily. A major racetrack costs upwards of $500,000 and in many cases more than $20,000 a day to operate, counting purse and stake amounts.

Massachusetts is the only State in the Union where such a condition prevails. If the dog trend continues, Boston will become the American rival of London, where several tracks nightly supply the scores of thousands with greyhound thrills.

Davis Plan Voted Down.

OUR National A. A. U. boxing championship tournaments will continue in the old rut, with three days of continuous boxing and with all the old unfairness for those who fail to draw byes.

Roy Davis, chairman of the Boxing Committee, had a plan for getting around the old system. He wanted to divide the country into four or eight sections, each of which was to hold its separate tournament. That would leave the actual final championships to be decided in one night, with not more than 32 bouts to be settled.

This plan was rejected, however, and henceforth the tournament will proceeed in the old unsatisfactory fashion. The St. Louis experience over two years shows that where three nights are required the fans for the most part will hold off for the final night, the first two evenings attracting comparatively small attendances.

No Over-Emphasis Here.

OVER-EMPHASIS in college football may be a popular complaint in this country but they don't know what it means in Old Mexico.

Recently the football team of the Mexico City Polytechnic High School team visited this country. Before coming to the United States this prep school outfit had defeated the University of Mexico varsity team!

Coach Robert P. Martin of the Poly High School team, was asked about this.

"The result is not as surprising as it sounds," commented the coach. "The university team played without the services of its upper classmen, the seniors. They refused to take time out from their studies!"

Imagine Minnesota, Southern California or Pittsburgh upperclassmen failing to show up for a game, because they preferred to keep up with their studies!

Evidently the true spirit of collegiate football has not permeated the Mexican collegiate dome.

Meade Case Still Alive.

THE case of Don Meade, famous rider who was set down last spring at Hialeah for undescribed offenses is still alive. Reopened recently by an application for reinstatement which was turned down by the Florida commission, it was presumed that the incident was closed.

But, there is still another "out" for E. R. Bradley's demoted rider. It appears that the case again can be brought up early next year when a new personnel will be appointed to the Florida commission. There is a suggestion that these new members will be favorable to E. R. Bradley and therefore to Meade.

If the new commission restores Meade it certainly owes the public which risks its money in the expectancy of honest riding, an explanation in detail of the rule violations committed by Don and the reasons for condoning them.

As nearly as can be gathered from the vague explanations given, Meade was guilty of violating a rule which says that a

ALLHOFF TEAM SETS RECORD IN TENPIN LEAGUE

The Allhoffs, putting together games of 1076, 1094 and 1008, for a total of 3178, established a new season's record for the Major City Bowling League in last night's round on the Rogers Recreation alleys.

Joe Walsh was the individual star for the five in putting over the big total with 733, including a high game of 277. Lee Badaracco had 696 and Ted Shirley 649. Badaracco fouled in the tenth frame costing him a 700 total and his team 3200. The big total enabled the Allhoffs to win three from the Missouri-Pacifics.

Other results: Krons 3, S. & S. 0; Wooster Lamberts 3, Alexanders 0; Old Judge 2, Silver Seals 1; Atlas 2, Falstaff 1; Cabannes 2, Brunswicks 1.

Four Teams Get 3000.

Four teams hit for better than 3000 in last night's rolling of the Classic League on the Del-Mar Recreation drives, with the Hermanns, 3110, showing the way. The total enabled the team to win two out of three from the Witeks, with 2961. Although outscored 3083 to 3067, the Budweisers won two out of three from the Silver Seals, while the Say It With Flowers with 3034 took three from Club Plantation.

CHAMPIONSHIP MUDDLE MAY BE CLEARED AT THE BOARD MEETING

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—With the arrival today of Max Schmeling the heavyweight situation was expected to start sizzling again.

Der Moxie was coming for the purpose of sewing up James J. Braddock for a heavyweight title fight next summer and to toss a monkey wrench or so into the plans of Promoter Herman Taylor for a prior meeting between Braddock and Joe Louis.

The New York State Athletic Commission confidently expected to see a deal closed for a title fight at tomorrow's meeting, but there were many ifs and buts to be threshed out.

First, Schmeling was sure to insist that any contract he signs with Braddock prohibit the champion from risking injury by fighting anybody before he meets the German. The commission was expected to support him in this stand.

That may mean Braddock and his manager, Joe Gould, will refuse to sign and close with Taylor for a no-decision contest with Louis at Atlantic City.

On the other hand, Schmeling may not be so keen to sign if the commission stipulates that he promise, to the tune of a $25,000 forfeit, that if he wins the title he'll defend it here within a year.

Reports were spreading that should the German become the first man on record to win the heavyweight championship twice, he'll ship it back to Germany and bury it.

Joe Gould said he'll not let Braddock fight Louis for a cent less than a flat guarantee of $300,000, but if the champion fails to get together with Schmeling, Taylor may be in a position to force him to take a smaller cut.

Ross Is Given More Time.

The New York State Athletic Commission yesterday gave Barney Ross a few days in which to dicker for terms before signing to defend his welterweight title against Ceferino Garcia, Los Angeles Filipino. Ross has agreed to meet Garcia within 60 days.

Sam Pian, the champion's manager, said he was negotiating with several promoters. James J. Johnston, matchmaker for Madison Square Garden, said he expected to close for the match within the next few days.

Wallach to Meet Decatur Fighter on Benefit Card

A fifth inter-city amateur boxing match has been assured for Mayor Dickmann's benefit athletic and entertainment program, with the signing last night of a lightweight fight between Lou Wallach of St. Louis and Whittinghill of Decatur, Ill.

The program, which will include 11 boxing matches and five wrestling encounters, will be offered in the Convention Hall of the Municipal Auditorium next Tuesday night under the sponsorship of the Public Employes Welfare Association. The proceeds will be used to defray expenses of the Mayor's fourth annual Christmas dinner for underprivileged on Christmas day.

Wallach holds the district lightweight title and has fought in both the 1934 and 1935 National A. A. U. boxing tourneys, losing in the latter only in the semi-finals. Whittinghill, Decatur district champion for the last two years, impressed with his aggressive tactics in a recent inter-city scrap at the auditorium.

Four other St. Louis boxers have accepted invitations to match their skill against out-of-town stars. Welterweight Al Brendle will oppose Earl Patterson, a Chicago Negro who reminded St. Louisans here recently of Joe Louis in style and effectiveness. Eric Koberg, local A. A. U. titleholder, is matched against Ralph Wohardo of Chicago. Clarence Jones, welterweight, is booked against Ralph Collier of Chicago. Lightweight Al Beauhuld, brother of the former U. S. champ, Billy Beauhuld, will meet Glen Potter of Streator, Ill.

Private Matthew Matesick of Hook and Ladder Company No. 7 added his entry to the Firemen's 1937 championship wrestling tourney that will be a part of the program. Other entries include defending champion Otto Brexler. Company No. 11; Ed "Plesti" Pistorius, Company No. 5 and 1936 runner-up; Charles Thotus, Company 9 and Tom Godfrey, Company No. 41.

George Zaharias of Pueblo, Colo., and Tommy O'Toole of Houston, Tex., will appear in the feature wrestling match on the program.

Finished at North Carolina.

Flyers Seek 12th Victory Of Season in Battle With Kansas City Six, Tonight

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 10.—Mickey Murray, the pudgy goalie who was a member of the Champion Flyers last season, will oppose his old teammates in a game between Johnny MacKinnon's sextet and the strengthened Kansas City Greyhounds here tonight.

Murray, a member of the Flyers for three seasons until Hub "Stopper" Nelson took his place this season, will be making his first appearance against the St. Louisans.

Murray has played but three American Association matches this season and each time his club turned in a victory. Murray did not join the Greyhounds until recently. At the start of the season Abbey Cox was the K. C. team's goalie.

In addition to Murray, Shea and Rockburn, defense men, Vic Desjardin, center; Paddy Paddon and Nick Wasnie, wingers, will be in the starting Greyhound lineup. Paddon is a former Flyer and Wasnie is an ex-St. Louis Eagle. Norm Walker, another erstwhile Flyer; Metcalfe, MacKenzie, Taylor, Headley and Brink round out the Kansas City squad.

Manager MacKinnon has decided to call on Goaler Nelson, Swenson and himself, defense men, and Pete Mitchell, Bobby Burns and Ingram, forwards, to be on the ice when the game gets under way. Joe Matte, Leo Carbol, Oscar Hansen, Pete Palangio, Ollie Mulvihill and Don Olson, who is supplanting Duke McDonald, are the spares.

The Flyers are after their twelfth victory of the season. They bagged No. 11 in Wichita Tuesday night when they spanked the Skyhawks 3 to 1. In 13 games, the Flyers have yet to lose a game, their other two contests resulting in ties.

The Flyers will return to St. Louis after tonight's game for two important battles on their home ice. They will play the Tulsa Oilers Sunday night and oppose the Chicago Blackhawks of the National League next Wednesday night.

HOCKEY CLUBS REJECT FLYERS' PROPOSAL TO RAISE PLAYER LIMIT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 10.

AMERICAN HOCKEY ASSOCIATION club owners have rejected a proposal made by the St. Louis Flyers to raise the player limit from 12 to 13, it was announced by William F. Grant, president of the organization here today.

The proposal originated with the St. Louis Flyers whose vice-president, Ed Steffen, thought it would improve the quality of play by permitting each club to have suffiicent players to employ three forward lines instead of the two in use now.

The ruling means that after Jan. 1, no club will be permitted to have more than 12 players.

Millers Defeat Tulsa Sextet in Rough Game, 2-1

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 10.—Minneapolis took an American Hockey Association game marked by numerous penalties from the Tulsa Oilers last night, 2 to 1.

The Oilers, who played with a limited lineup, scored early in the first period when Riley slipped a backhand shot that Goalie Gauthier never saw until it was in the net.

During the second period when six penalties were called, the Millers evened the count with Blake and Hergesheimer teaming on a neat play. As the period was drawing to a close, Gaudreault, Minneapolis center ice man, stepped from the penalty box and scored after he and Breckheimer worked a short pass in front of the net, for the deciding goal.

ROYAL HEARTS LOSE, 27-25, IN MUNY OPENER

The defending champion Royal Hearts of the Municipal basketball league, facing a team that included Roy Martintoni, former Washington University star, lost its opening game of the new season to the United Service five, 27 to 25, last night at the Sherman Park courts.

Martintoni was high scorer of the game with seven points and was aided in the victory by John Corcoran, Joe Wynne and Ham Mueller, who each counted four points.

Behind 11 to 7 at the end of the half, the Royal Hearts missed many chances to increase their score when they failed to make good almost half of their free throw opportunities.

In the second game of the double-header the Food Centers defeated the Polish Falcons, 48 to 20. Al Dietzel, Food Center pivot man, was the big shot on attack with 10 field goals.

TEXAS SEEKS COACH TO REPLACE CHEVIGNY

AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 10.—The University of Texas looked for a football coach today to replace Jack Chevigny of Notre Dame.

J. C. Dolley, chairman, announced the athletic council had accepted Chevigny's request that he not be considered a candidate and would start negotiations with applicants for the vacancy.

He said the council had taken full cognizance of numerous petitions with hundreds of names asking it to employ a mentor of the caliber of Dana X. Bible of Nebraska, Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern or Tiny Thornhill of Stanford.

Many observers expressed the opinion Ted Twomey, line coach under Chevigny who came here from the University of Kentucky, would succeed Chevigny.

SPARTA TO USE AN EXPERIENCED SOCCER ELEVEN IN GAME HERE

By Dent McSkimming

With Tom Scott, John Tomich, Einar Pearson, Jimmy Wolfe and other outstanding stars in the line-up, the Sparta Club of Chicago apparently is equipped to give the Shamrocks their hardest game of the season when the two meet at Public Schools' Stadium, Sunday afternoon. The club is little changed from that of last season but two of the new men, Forwards Wright and Fidler, are said by Chicago soccer followers to have added punch to the attacking line. Fidler, a robust youngster who came to Chicago from Vancouver, B. C., has gained a lot of respect from opposing goaltenders because of his hard shots. He holds down the inside right position while Wright is playing center forward.

Jimmy Munro, of the bald pate, is at outside right, playing better than ever. He starred in two recent games against the Maccabee Club of Palestine. On the left side are Baba Vlcek, at the inside position and Wolfe on the wing. Wolfe is in many ways the best forward on the team, a great little money player.

Tomich, thick bodied and heavy footed, is playing right halfback, Nudera is at center half and Pearson at left half. All are veterans, not likely to become confused by the Shamrocks' mysterious short passing game. Scott's partner in the fullback line is Frank Mrnka, tall, lithe and a much improved player over last season. Sebek is the goaltender.

If Alec McNab's team can handle Sparta as nicely as it has seven other clubs it will have good reason to hope for another national championship. So far as western clubs are concerned, there is nothing on the horizon now that the Shamrocks need fear. The Chryslers of Detroit, or Heidelberg of Pittsburgh might upset the dope but few other teams could give the local champions a serious battle. On paper, Sparta looks like Chicago's best bet to go far in the national cup competition. If the new players have furnished some measure of speed and power, this club can cause trouble.

No announcement has yet been made by the Shamrocks' management but it is understood that the Heidelberg club will be invited to play two or more games here during the holidays.

BUFFALO WITHDRAWS FROM HOCKEY LEAGUE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Maurice Podoloff, president of the International-American Hockey League, announced yesterday the Buffalo Bisons have withdrawn from the league because of financial difficulties.

"With no rink in Buffalo to play on, the Bisons had to play their home games in Niagara Falls, 23 miles away, and they couldn't make a go of it," Podoloff explained.

As the result of Buffalo's withdrawal, Podoloff said a revised schedule would be drawn up for the seven other clubs. It will be announced in two or three days.

"For the time being, at least, the league will operate with seven clubs," Podoloff said. "There's only a slim chance the Buffalo franchise will be placed elsewhere."

In their final game the Bisons snapped the Springfield Indians' seven-game winning streak with a 2-0 victory. It was Buffalo's third triumph in 12 games.

DECREASE ATTRIBUTED TO SIEGE OF BAD WEATHER

Only Hawthorne and Washington Park Showed a Gain Over Preceding Season, Board Reports.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—Wagering on horse racing in Illinois totaled $32,133,764, a decrease of approximately $2,000,000 compared with 1935.

George Foster, secretary of the Illinois Racing Commission, announced the figures last night, covering the six tracks, all in the Chicago metropolitan area. Foster said the drop in betting could be attributed to the weather.

Arlington Park, for instance, leading all tracks in total handle of $8,932,625, ran into 10 days of intense heat during its meeting in July. Even so, Arlington Park, which always presented a brilliant race program with a purse distribution of $400,000, was only $200,000 short of the 1935 figures.

Washington Park and Hawthorne were the only two race courses to show a gain over 1935. Hawthorne with two more racing days than in the preceding year realized a gain of $200,000, while Washington Park's gain was close to $400,000. Lincoln Fields and Sportsman's Park were victims of cold, rainy weather and in each spot the mutuel handle was $1,000,000 less than in 1935.

Arlington Park led the attendance, with 186,845 paid admissions. Hawthorne and Washington Park were close behind.

"The past season as a whole cannot be termed poor," Secretary Foster said, "when compared with the $26,000,000 handled by the six Illinois tracks in 1934."

jockey may not bet on any horse in a race other than the one he rides and then only with the permission of the owner.

Race track cheaters of all sorts have become so brazenly bold that only by whacking off offending heads as fast as they bob up can officials hope to retain public confidence.

If that ever goes, it will be out the window for all racing promotions.

And a dead goose can't lay golden eggs.

The Papke-Ketchel Feud.

"HOW many times did the late Billy Papke fight Stanley Ketchel and with what result?" asks a correspondent.

The feud between this great pair of middleweights began June 4, 1908, in Milwaukee and ended July 5, 1909, at Colma, Cal. The men battled four times for a total of 53 rounds. Ketchel won three of the four fights, each man scoring one knockout victory.

Ketchel was the cock of the walk, at that time. He had come out of the mining regions of Montana with a knockout record a page long. His merit was discounted until he took on some of the good boys and beat them. When he knocked out Joe Thomas he was hailed king of the middleweights.

When Papke met him in Milwaukee, Ketchel had scored 36 knockouts in his 43 fights. Billy was just coming up, but he made such a fine showing in their bout that, although Ketchel won, they were rematched later the same year at Los Angeles.

Papke. Faux Pas.

IT was in this bout that Papke was given the national razzberry for a trick he pulled, one that won him the fight. As the men advanced to the center of the ring Ketchel put out his glove for the customary handshake. Papke responded with a sock to the jaw that sent Ketchel sprawling to the floor, almost out.

He did not recover fully from the effects of this blow, although he stood a merciless punishment for 12 rounds before Papke finally finished him.

Such was the furor raised by the incident that two months and a half later Papke was forced to grant a return match and they fought in San Francisco. This time Ketchel reversed the result, knocking out Papke in the eleventh round.

Still unsatisfied, each having scored a knockout, the men were rematched the following July 5 for a 20-round go at Colma and this bitterly contested battle went the limit, with Ketchel gaining the decision.

NEWMAN MEETS TOM O'TOOLE IN WRESTLING BOUT

Eddie Newman, New York Hebrew, and Tommy O'Toole, Texas Irishman, will meet in the feature finish match of Promoter Bill Schwabe's wrestling show at the Coliseum tonight. The program begins at 8:30 o'clock.

This will be the first meeting of the two heavyweights, though each has appeared in St. Louis several times in the past year.

The semi-windup bout, another finish affair, brings together Tuffy Cleet of Detroit and George Sauer, brother of Ray Steele. The two are lightheavyweights.

Lightheavyweights will meet in the main preliminary when Mileo Occhi, who won the Ozark A. A. U. 165-pound title seven years in a row before turning professional, takes on Tuffy Truesdale, the Arkansas Traveler. This bout, as well as the other two preliminaries, is scheduled for 30 minutes.

In the second match, two local heavyweights, Ray McCabe, 210-pound Irishman, and Ray Eckert, 205-pound swimming pool life guard, will meet. The opening event brings together Walter McMillan, St. Louis County lightheavyweight champion, and Herb Lowery.

Pro Football Players Harder to Fool Than College Stars, Says League's Best Gainer

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—It costs more to be gullible in professional football than in the college game, Tuffy Leemans, the Joe Di Maggio of the pro league, observed today as he sat back for a rest from his first season of cash play.

"Its easier to deceive college rivals than these experienced performers of the professional circuit but, generally, your gains are longer when you do get away with something than in the college game," he said.

After leading the National Professional League in ground gained—830 yards—and earning recognition as perhaps the best of the rookie lot, Leemans returned to the capital here for the winter.

For three years he played with George Washington University here. Leemans was little known nationally until he sprang to fame after his exploits in the games between the college all-stars and the pro clubs early last fall.

Tuffy found it easier to gain in the pro league than in college, but he argues that the professional lines and blocking was far superior to that he knew in college. He thinks the collegians tackle just as hard as the pros, but that the cash players block much harder.

Play a Waiting Game.

Professional forwards play more of a waiting game than the college boys, who often crash through and try to outguess their rivals, and for this reason—plus better blocking—pro runners are caught behind the scrimmage line less often than collegians.

Leemans believes there is as much teamwork and will to win in pro as in college football. "Those fellows not only play their position but they're glad to help out a mate and they take a licking pretty hard," he said.

Tuffy says his freshman year in pro ranks has been an education.

"You quickly find there's lots more to learn about football when you tie up with these veteran players. I had to learn the finer points of blocking and carrying a ball," he said. "I think I'll be a better player next fall for what I've picked up."

He thinks the Detroit Lions had the best team he faced; that the Boston Redskins had the best line; that Cliff Battles, Boston halfback, was the best all-round player and that Tilly Manton, the New York Giants' fullback, was the best rookie.

Bears to Play Missouri Five Saturday Night

Coach Hudson Hellmich is working fast to get his Washington University team in shape for the opening game of the basketball season Saturday night, when the Bears play Missouri at Columbia. The Tigers started their schedule against St. Louis U. last Tuesday, winning 31 to 26.

Hellmich has had a full squad to work with for the last 10 days, several of the football men being absent before then.

The Tigers are tall and gave St. Louis U. trouble. The Bears are not as large in height as Missouri players, three of the Washington players of last year, Louis Sauer, Capt. Tommy Ozment and Dick Douglas being well short of the six-foot mark.

The Washington coach plans on trying out a few sophomores in the game. Adolph Uhlemeyer and Bob Gerst, who played on the champion Beaumont High team two years ago, will see action, as will Claude Beeler and Charles Gilles.

Tigers Hard at Work.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 10.—With the varsity home debut scheduled for Saturday night in a game with Washington University, Coach George Edwards today pushed preparations of his University of Missouri five into the semi-final stage.

Edwards drafted a comprehensive work sheet for practice, since the Tigers jog-trotted through a brief warmup session yesterday, following Tuesday's contest with St. Louis University.

The Tiger coach has not indicated what the lineup will be when the Bengals attempt to keep their 1936 athletic record clean so far as St. Louis opponents are concerned. Don Faurot's football team kept the record spic and span in this connection, defeating both St. Louis University and Washington. The basket team won round one of its tourney Tuesday night, 31 to 26.

There was some speculation whether Edwards would use Henderson, an old hand at the pivot position, or whether Dutton Brookfield, sophomore understudy of the veteran, would draw the starting berth. Henderson's eligibility expires Jan. 1. Conceded an edge over his probable successor, it was believed today he would start the game with other veterans who probably will begin the action Saturday night.

DON FAUROT WILL SPEAK AT NORMANDY BANQUET NIGHT

Missouri University's football coach tonight will address the football players of Normandy High School at the annual football banquet at the school, at which 28 will receive their letters for the 1936 season.

Coach Jim Major's unbeaten team will also elect a captain at the dinner, which is to be followed by a dance.

Ends—Norbert Bednark, Elmer Aussieker, Jack Listor, Ira Smith and Charles Cech.

Centers—Meredith Kiburz and Everett Russler.

Backs—Vernon Tracy, Art Schumacher, Bob Waters, Mel Klausmeyer, Mel Schad, Bob Cook, Roy Niehaus, Carroll Mueller, George Patterson and Bill Williams.

Unbeaten in eight bouts, Alan Beck of the St. Louis fencing team won first place in the prep foil tournament last night at Christian Brothers' College, which was held under the auspices of the St. Louis division of the Amateur Fencers League of America.

Beck won matches from Talbott, Gottschalk, George Curtis of Webster Groves High School, Bohne, Harker and Oris Poupeney of Salle d'Armes Vical to go straight through preliminary, semifinal and final matches.

Curtis gained second place in a field of 16 entrants. James Quirk, captain of the C. B. C. team was third, and Poupeney fourth.

SOUTHEASTERN TEAMS SCORED 97 TOUCHDOWNS BY USE OF PASS

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 10. — The popularized forward pass, gaining favor on all fronts, came in handy for Southeastern Conference football machines relying more on aerial warfare than on stealth in the topsy-turvy campaign of 1936.

The increased usage of the pass was encouraging to aerial enthusiasts and productive of needed touchdowns in many instances. Figures for the season show the 13 teams scored 286 times from scrimmage and 97, or more than a third of the touchdowns, were overhead blasts.

A year ago the elevens scored 26 fewer touchdowns by the aerial route when their total number of tallies was 14 more than for 1936. All teams except Auburn, Mississippi, Vanderbilt and Kentucky registered more scores on aerials than during the previous season. Each of these duplicated their 1935 touchdown passes.

The four-year-old conference continued its spectacular football, 54 touchdowns being reeled off on runs of 50 yards or more. There were 13 dashes for 80 yards or more, including one for 100, another for 98 and two for 96 yards.

Of a total of 308 touchdowns, Southeastern teams scored five times on punt returns, seven times on blocked punts, six times on intercepted passes and twice each from kickoffs and fumbles.

Scored 14 Times on Passes.

Louisiana State's two-time champions, who led the league with 42 touchdowns, set the aerial pace with 14 scoring passes. Six of these were flagged by All-American Gaynell Tinsley, including one totaling 78 yards, one for 55 and another for 46. Jack Walker and Rock Reed also caught touchdown flips for L. S. U., covering 65 and 60 yards, respectively.

To Sewanee's Dexter Stamphill went honors for the Southeastern's longest sprint—a 100-yard run after recovering a Florida fumble, Dennis Cross raced 98 yards from scrimmage for Mississippi State. Both tallies from kickoff were registered by Mississippi's Ray Hapes and each were 96-yard gallops.

Bob Davis, Kentucky's high-scoring halfback, had the most long touchdown runs. His 11 tallies totaled 401 yards, including two for 82, one for 68 and another for 67. Dutch Konemann of Georgia Tech covered 276 yards in his eight tallies.

Kentucky's overhead effectiveness was far short of the average. The Bluegrass Wildcats, who totaled 27 touchdowns, counted only three times with passes.

The Southeastern's second longest counting toss—pass and run—was caught by Auburn's Jimmy Fenton for 74 yards. Dick Plasman received one totaling 67 yards for Vanderbilt. Alabama's Tut Warren got one for 66.

Other long touchdown dashes included two for Auburn's Ralph O'Gwynn, 90 and 83; Jess Milnker of L. S. U., 90; Bucky Bryan of Tulane, 80; and Joe Kilgrow of Alabama, 83—all from rushing.

Foreign Boxers Lose Three Out of Four Matches

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—Invasion of foreign fighters in the Chicago Stadium was disastrous to them last night. Three out of four were knocked out.

Eddie Unknown Winston, Negro heavyweight of Holyoke, Mass., disposed of Maurice Strickland, heavyweight champion of New Zealand, in the fourth round of their scheduled 10-round bout. Winston knocked out the New Zealander with a right to the chin, after outroughing and outslugging him all the way. Strickland weighed 180, Winston 197¼.

JEFFRA VICTOR OVER ESCOBAR IN NON-TITLE FIGHT IN EAST

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Harry Jeffra, hard-hitting Baltimore bantamweight, defeated Sixto Escobar, world's 118-pound champion, in a hard 10-round bout in the New York Hipme last night. Escobar's title was not at stake. Weights were 121 for Escobar and 119½ for Jeffra.

It was the Southerner's second victory over Escobar in a little more than two months. On Oct. 5 in Baltimore, Jeffra won on a split decision.

The verdict was roundly cheered by a crowd of 4000 who paid $6401.80 to see the spirited struggle.

On the Associated Press scorecard, Jeffra was credited with six rounds; Escobar, with three, and one was called even. There were no knockdowns but Jeffra narrowly missed scoring one in the second when he knocked the champion almost through the ropes with a vicious right to the pit of the stomach. Only the ropes saved Escobar from a visit to the deck.

Hits With Either Hand.

Jeffra, paying his first visit to the big town, showed the fans a busy fighter, always on the go, who could hit with either hand and take his full share of punishment. Except in a few scattered spots he both out-hit and out-boxed Escobar.

The Puerto Rican held back at the start, obviously waiting for a chance to slip over a haymaker, but once he did settle down and go to work, his timing was off and his punches lacked their customary authority.

Badly beaten in the first two rounds, Escobar rallied to pull up on even terms with Jeffra through the fourth, but the Southerner forged into the lead in the fifth and from there on never was headed.

Marino Gains Victory.

The best fight of the evening was the eight-round semifinal in which Tony Marino of Pittsburgh won a bloody mauling match from Cristobal Jaramillo, another Puerto Rican and one of Escobar's sparring partners.

It was a slugfest all the way, close at times but with Marino getting the unanimous decision of the referee and two judges. Marino weighed 118, Jaramillo, 120½.

Decatur Gets Tourney.

DECATUR, Ill., Dec. 10.—Decatur has been chosen as the site for the 1937 State YMCA basketball tournament, Feb. 18-19-20, A. R. Krapp of the Decatur YMCA announced today. Peorria will defend the title.

TURNS DOWN MRS. ROOSEVELT

Gutzon Borglum, Sculptor, Won't Use Likeness of Suffragist.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 10.—Gutzon Borglum, sculptor, said yesterday he had received a letter from Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt asking that a likeness of the late Susan B. Anthony be included in the memorial which is being carved on the face of Mount Rushmore in South Dakota.

However, the likeness of the suffragist, will not appear, said Borglum, for the purpose of the memorial is solely "to portray the men who founded, defended and expanded the United States."

WIFE SHOOTS HUSBAND, TRIES TO END OWN LIFE

Mrs. Bertha Richardson Fires and Then Swallows Poison in Madison (Ill.) Garage.

Mrs. Bertha Richardson, jealous 40-year-old wife of James H. Richardson, 31, Madison garage mechanic, shot him beneath the heart yesterday and swallowed poison. Both were taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital where physicians said her recovery seemed assured. Richardson's condition was reported as critical.

The shooting took place in the Gordon Motor Co. garage in downtown Madison, where Richardson was employed, after his wife had left a small restaurant operated by her in charge of a neighbor and gone to East St. Louis where she bought a revolver.

Entering the garage shop with the revolver wrapped in a piece of brown paper, Mrs. Richardson renewed a quarrel of the night before which had resulted in her husband leaving home and his promise to return yesterday for his clothing.

"Jim, why didn't you come to get your clothes," Mrs. Richardson began, according to garage employes who witnessed the shooting.

"I did, but you weren't there," Richardson replied, looking up as she removed the paper from the revolver. "Don't—."

A shot sounded and Richardson stumbled forward, seizing the revolver. Mrs. Richardson backed away, opening a bottle of poison she had carried in a pocket.

M. H. Spencer, another mechanic, seized Mrs. Richardson, but not before she had swallowed part of the contents of the bottle.

Kenneth Leaton, a salesman, who witnessed the shooting, took the Richardsons to the hospital.

Mrs. Frances Kunkle, 207A Madison avenue, who was asked to watch the Richardson restaurant at 206 Madison avenue, told police of frequent quarrels. She said she thought Mrs. Richardson was joking when she told her she was going to buy a revolver to kill her husband, because he had been associating with another woman.

The Richardsons, who were married nine years ago, went to Madison six months ago from Indiana. A daughter of Mrs. Richardson by former marriage resides at Indianapolis.

FUNERAL FOR GIRL KILLED BY CHUM AT EAST LANSING

Pastor Who Was to Have Officiated at Wedding Conducts Funeral.

By the Associated Press.

EAST LANSING, Mich., Dec. 10.—A clergyman who was to have officiated at Miss Elizabeth Giltner's wedding conducted funeral services instead, today, for the 25-year-old daughter of a college dean who was killed by her lifelong chum.

While the Rev. N. A. McCune, pastor of People's Church, read final rites in the little chapel on the edge of the Michigan State College campus, Miss Hope Morgan, 25, who confessed the strange killing on an "impulse to kill," sat in a cell at the county jail, 12 miles away, awaiting a mental examination.

Miss Giltner and Capt. David S. Babcock, an army officer stationed at the college, were to have been married Saturday. The victim was addressing wedding invitations when she was shot Tuesday in the home of her father, Ward S. Giltner, dean of veterinary science.

Louis Fischer, 8449 North Broadway, who operated the Loop Taxicab Co. in Baden, was found dead of carbon monoxide in his automobile in Chain of Rocks Park yesterday afternoon. He had been missing since Tuesday.

The body was found by Charles Adams, former deputy constable, who reported that motor fumes were carried inside the car through a piece of fire hose attached to the exhaust pipe. The motor was running.

Strictly speaking, Standard Red Crown is not that fast. But it does start an engine in good condition in one second. And it gives even speedier warm-up than last year's Red Crown which gave 35% faster warm-up at zero. That means it gets you under way without stalling for time.

Standard Red Crown starts an engine so quickly and gets you under way so speedily that the proper light grade of winter oil is advisable. Standard's famous ISO-VIS "D" motor oil does the trick.

12TH STREET NATIONAL PAYS CLAIMS IN FULL

Stockholders, Assessed 100 Pct., Get $12,872 and Residue —Receivership Terminated.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The Twelfth Street National Bank of St. Louis was among 16 receiverships completed during November, the Comptroller of the Currency announced yesterday.

The Twelfth Street National, which failed Jan. 19, 1933, paid depositors and other creditors 100 per cent on their principal, with interest. Disbursements totaled $1,256,948, or 3.33 per cent in excess of all claims and 6.01 per cent in excess of unsecured claims.

Stockholders received $12,872, together with the assets remaining uncollected. Under the double liability law affecting stockholders in national banks, a 100 per cent assessment was levied against holders of the bank's $300,000 capital stock.

Since the 1933 banking holiday, 530 receiverships have been closed or the banks restored to solvency.

DELAY ON BILL TO CURB CHARITY PROMOTERS

Aldermanic Committee Fails to Muster Quorum to Consider Measure.

A bill intended to curb the activities of professional promoters of "charitable organizations" operated chiefly for the profit of the promoters, which has been gathering dust in the files of the legislation committee of the Board of Aldermen for more than two months, remained undisturbed yesterday because the committee could not muster a quorum to consider the bill.

Alderman L. E. Couplin, who introduced the measure, and Scott R. DeKins, director of the Charities Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, one of its sponsors, were at the City Hall to speak in favor of the bill at a scheduled meeting of the committee but only three of the committee's seven members, one short of a quorum, were present.

Lack of a quorum had delayed consideration of the bill before, Alderman Allan E. Petersen, chairman of the committee, told a Post-Dispatch reporter who inquired why no action had yet been taken on the bill. Aldermen are paid $1800 a year by the city, but other interests sometimes prevent their attendance at committee meetings.

Petersen for Bill.

Petersen said he favored passage of the bill, but would amend it to give the Better Business Bureau no voice in the administration of the Charity Solicitation Committee which the bill would create.

There was, Petersen said, "nothing personal" in his opposition to the Better Business Bureau which, he said, others had criticised.

Early this year the bureau made known that it had received complaints from business firms which had been solicited to buy advertising in a "Municipal Reference Book" published by Alderman Petersen and Alderman Charles Routledge. The book, in addition to advertisements and information about public offices, contained a "roster of friends," who made contributions without purchasing advertising. Another edition of the book is in preparation, but this time Routledge alone is sponsoring it.

Four Members Absent.

Members of the legislation committee who were present for yesterday's session were Petersen, Eilert F. Gummels and George A. Byrnes. The absent members were Harry Israel, Michael J. Scott, John A. Genteman, and Phelim O'Toole.

As introduced by Alderman Couplin the bill would create a Charity Solicitations Committee, consisting of the Chief of Police, the Director of Public Welfare, and three citizens appointed by the Mayor, one to be nominated by the Better Business Bureau, one by the Chamber of Commerce, and one by the Associated Retailers. Solicitors for any charity which has paid employes would be required to obtain licenses and submit financial reports.

Sponsors of the bill assert that it would put out of business professional promoters, operating chiefly by telephone solicitation, who, they estimate, annually obtain $200,000 in contributions from St. Louisans, most of which is pocketed by the promoters.

ESTIMATE BOARD APPROVES $101,000 RELIEF ALLOTMENT

No Money for It, Says Comptroller's Aid, but Legislative aAppropriation Is Expected.

The City Board of Estimate and Apportionment today gave its approval to a proposed ordinance appropriating $101,000 for unemployment relief needs in December, in addition to a previous appropriation of $147,000, making a total of $248,000 for the month.

W. C. Connett, chairman of the St. Louis Relief Committee, recently informed the committee that the fuds on hand were down to $35,000, and that $101,000 was needed to get the relief recipients through the month.

Deputy Comptroller Charles L. Cunningham, who attended the meeting of the Board of Estimate, reported to the members that the city did not have funds to meet the appropriation. It was approved, Cunningham said later, in the belief that the State Legislature would appropriate funds from the St. Louis proceeds of the sales tax to meet relief needs in this city.

The pending bill for a supplementary relief appropriation was introduced by Alderman Joseph B. Schweppe.

"LIE-DOWN" PICKETS TELL OF BEING TERRORIZED IN JAIL

Women Strikers at Reading, Pa., Released After Union Pays Fines.

READING, Pa., Dec. 10.—The American Federation of Hosiery Workers obtained the release of six young women imprisoned in Berks County jail as "lie-down" pickets to escape what the union called a 'campaign of terrorism being carried out against the strikers at the Berks prison."

The union paid the fines last night after asserting that the strikers imprisoned were forbidden "many privileges which are extended even to the hardened felons."

The women were among pickets arrested at the Berkshire Knitting Mills last week. They were the only woman pickets left at the jail, all others having been transferred to the prisons of four neighboring counties.

Gov. Earle refused union leaders' appeals for a mandate to close the Berkshire mills. He said "conditions did not warrant such action."

MIXUP CAUSES RECESS IN PRISON INQUIRY

Hearing Put Over for Day After Confusion Over Matters to Be Taken Up.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 10.—Attorney-General McKittrick's penal institution investigation was adjourned today until tomorrow, after a two-hour closed conference between McKittrick and Penal Board members, without hearing any of the witnesses called to testify today concerning alleged illegal requisitioning of prison and reformatory subsistence supplies by penal officials for their own use.

McKittrick announced after the executive session that the delay was due to a misunderstanding on the part of counsel as to what testimony would be introduced today, concerning subsistence requisitions by Parole Commissioner George D. Bryant, a Penal Board member. McKittrick said this testimony would be offered at some later hearing. Board members referred all inquiries to the Attorney-Genearl.

Bryant's Lawyer Attends.

State Representative H. P. Lauf. an attorney of Jefferson City, who has been attending the hearings as counsel for Bryant, participated in the conference but other attorneys representing Superintendent Guy McLain of the intermediate reformatory, were outside the conference room.

"All of the testimony relating to both the penitentiary and intermediate reformatory commissary transactions will be taken up later," McKittrick said. "I had announced yesterday that these matters would be brought up in the hearing today, but counsel, through a misunderstanding, thought that the reformatory transactions should not be considered today."

"The board there deferred this phase of the inquiry until some later hearing," McKittrick said. "We will proceed tomorrow with the inquiry as to the management of the intermediate reformatory."

WILLS CHILDREN 5 CENTS EACH TO BUY ROPE TO HANG SELVES

New York Man Who Left $17,000 to Friend Not Insane, Court Rules.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—The will of Giuseppe Gallo, who left 5 cents to each of his five children with the expressed wish that they buy rope and hang themselves, was upheld yesterday by Surrogate John Hetherington.

The children attacked the will, in which the father left about $17,000 to "my dear friend, Emelia Mozzara." The surrogate held they had not established that Gallo was of unsound mind, or had been unduly influenced.

Only 25 cents was set aside in the will for the children.

AUTO UNION AND FLAT GLASS WORKERS ESTABLISH COUNCIL

Two Organizations Control Virtually All Unionized Employes of Automobile Industry.

DETROIT, Dec. 10.—Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, said last night that his union and the Federation of Flat Glass Workers have established a joint council.

He said the arrangement was perfected by himself and Glen W. McCabe, president of the Federation of Flat Glass Workers. Martin said the two unions control virtually all the unionized employes in the automotive industry.

Prisoner Escaped, Officers Fired.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 10.—A. L. Bowen, director of the State Department of Welfare, announced last night the discharge of Paul Starne, Springfield, and D. B. Kelly, Peoria, parole officers from whom a prisoner escaped. The officers said the prisoner, Roy Cunningham, a paroled burglar from Decatur, Ill., escaped while being driven by automobile from Springfield to Joliet prison as a parole violator. He produced, a pistol, forced the officers to give him the key to his handcuffs, and told them to drive to Chicago. He leaped from the car when it collided with another machine.

FEDERAL JUDGE UPHOLDS VALIDITY OF WINDFALL TAX

$900,000 INVOLVED IN TEST CASE

Processors Had Sought Injunction to Prevent Internal Revenue Agent From Collecting.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 10.—United States District Judge Robert C. Baltzell of the Southern Indiana District Court upheld today the validity of the "windfall tax" passed by Congress to levy on tax money refunded to processors after the Supreme Court declared the Agricultural Adjustment Act unconstitutional.

The "windfall tax" was attacked by Kingan & Co., an Indianapolis packing concern which alleged it would be required to pay $900,000 on refunds of $2,543,832 received after the Supreme Court's ruling on the AAA.

The company asked for an injunction to prohibit Will H. Smith, internal revenue collector, from collecting the tax. The company attacked the constitutionality of the tax which was a part of the 1936 revenue act.

Several other Indiana processors also filed injunction suits and joined with the Kingan company in the hearing on the case.

Court attaches said they thought the ruling was the first in the country on the tax.

In his opinion Judge Baltzell said: "The complainant (Kingan & Co.) had a perfect right to refuse to pay the taxes levied under the AAA and to contest its validity but if it collected from others the amount of such taxes and retained the amount it collected it then had an income from an entirely different source than that derived from the conduct of its ordinary business, and entirely different from other processors who paid the tax and were not reimbursed.

"The act in question seeks to levy and collect a tax on this income and it applies equally to all persons in that class. . . . Congress had the power to place in a separate class all persons having such an income and to enact legislation imposing a tax thereon."

The ruling involves approximately $6,000,000 returned to processors in Indiana after invalidation of the AAA.

DEVICE SAID TO MEASURE ULTRA-VIOLET RAYS OF SUN

Two Northwestern U. Professors Announce Development of "Sunburnometer."

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—Two Northwestern University physicists, Professors Walter S. Huxford and Robert J. Cashman, announced today they had deevloped a "sunburnometer" which measures the ultra-violet rays in sunlight, real or artificial.

They have found, they said, that the sunlight over Iowa and Nebraska was richer in ultra-violet rays than that around Chicago, and the rays were still stronger in the higher altitudes of South Dakota.

The new device, controlled by a type of photo-electric cell sensitive only to ultra-violet rays, can be used to gauge the possibility of sunburn, by measuring the ultrav-violet ray content of the sunlight on a particular day just as the temperatures of water and air are recorded.

The device is intended primarily for use in hospitals and clinics to test the value of sunlamps and other therapeutics units. It is constructed of pure magnesium enclosed in an envelope of corex glass.

HITLER YOUTH EXERCISES BARRED IN CHURCH HOURS

Nazis Say There Is No Attempt to Lead Children Away From Religion.

BERLIN, Dec. 10.—Exercises of the Hitler youth organization must not conflict with the hours of church services or other traditional religious ceremonies, Baldur von Schirach, German youth leader, declared in a radio address last night. He assured parents their children would not be led away from religion. He said the boys and girls swearing allegiance to the flag in the Hitler youth movement would have to add, "so help me God."

Nazi Persecution of Jewish Race Is Basis of Defense in Swiss Trial Of Man Who Killed Hitler Agent

By JOHN T. WHITAKER.
(Copyright, 1936, New York Tribune, Inc.)

CHUR, Switzerland, Dec. 10.—In the most dramatic trial since Nazi Germany began its anti-Semitic drive, David Frankfurter, 27-year-old Yugoslav Jewish medical student, stands at the bar of Swiss justice here to test whether murder under the provocation of Nazi persecution can be condoned by unwritten law.

Men kill men who steal the affections of their wives, and Frankfurter, who loves his race passionately, turned a pistol in hysterical fury last Feb. 4 on Wilhelm Gustloff, Nazi Germany's special agent in Switzerland.

The trial for that murder, committed in nearby Davos, began yesterday in a village courtroom divided almost equally between Nazis and Jews, who will see whether Frankfurter can successfully plead the unwritten law of "high emotion born of a natural cause."

Article 50 of the criminal code which guides this Canton recognizes this "high emotion," together with an exemplary previous record and immediate surrender to the police, as mitigating circumstances which should recommend a person who killed to the clemency of the court.

The Five Judges.

This must be decided by a bearded gentleman who looks like a caricature of the American idea of a European professor, and four colleagues who all look, strangely enough, like country doctors—that unusual blending of the benign and the stern. They are the five Judges of the Cantonal Court of the Grisons, which has no trial by jury.

While these five men looked down upon Frankfurter, who wiped his perspiring hands uneasily in the Canton Chamber of Deputies, the Judges were aware that every reader of the streamlined propaganda in modern Germany, and every Swiss aware of the power of the great state to the north, were watching them.

It is not pan-Germanism alone. Chancellor Adolf Hitler preached Gustloff's funeral oration. Declaring that National Socialists never had taken life but had suffered many assassinations, Hitler said in that address:

"Behind each of these murders there is the same heinous power of our Jewish enemies, to whom we have done no harm, but who try to subjugate the German people in slavery and who are responsible for all the evils which have come to Germany in 1918 and since."

Nazi Germany charges, therefore, that Frankfurter acted in conspiracy with other Jews. It was one of the sensations of this crowded first day of the trial that the judges promptly dismissed this charge by their own direct examination of Frankfurter, after the State prosecutor had demanded that he be found guilty and sentenced to 18 years' hard labor.

Thought of Killing Hitler.

Another sensation came when the judges asked the Jewish student why, if his motive was to avenge the persecution of his race, he had not killed Hitler or Colonel-General Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Prussian Premier, or Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, Nazi Minister of Propaganda and Public Enlightenment, instead of Gustloff.

"I thought of that," Frankfurter replied, "but I was afraid of what might happen to the Jews in Germany."

The most sensational event of the day was a lengthy and dramatic statement by Dr. J. B. Joerger, the State's alienist, who said Frankfurter suffered both physical and mental disturbances which should be taken into account "as factors causing limitation of responsibility."

The spectacle of rival alienists disputing the sanity of the defendant is unknown to the commonsense people of Switzerland. There is only one alienist—a man of integrity like Dr. Joerger, selected by the Court to speak for the state.

While the prisoner followed him closely, the alienist talked of this Yugoslav youth who has undergone five operations for tuberculosis of the bone. Dr. Joerger said he had found no mental state to which the murder could be attributed, but he did feel that the limitation of responsibility was plain.

The physical disability was aggravated, he said, by the inadequacy of Frankfurter as a medical student, who, having been unable to stand the examinations at Leipzig, failed once at Frankfurt and later withdrew because of what he felt to be the anti-Semitic prejudice of his examiners.

The mother to whom he was passionately attached, died, and the father required much of the boy, who could offer little. Physical pain kept him sleepless and unable to concentrate, so that he wrote home of great successes and nursed in his heart a sense of his complete failure, and this at a time when Jewish persecution preyed on his mind.

When he decided to kill Gustloff, Dr. Joerger said, Frankfurter wrote to his father:

"I know you won't approve, but my life has been worthless, and I hope to stand before the throne of God and testify that I have done something for my people."

The alienist concluded that Frankfurter might have committed suicide, but that, in any event, his internal collapse was so real that some display of exhibitionism was inevitable. Political considerations, he said, played no part in an expression of violence which was as inevitable as the catharsis of a Greek tragedy.

Frankfurter heard this without undue emotion. He answered the interruptions of the judges in a clear voice. It was plain to see that only weakness was in his full cheeks and dark blue eyes.

RICHBERG QUITS AS SPECIAL AID OF ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Former NRA Administrator Out Since Nov. 30, Has Entered Law Partnership.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Donald Richberg, former NRA administrator who recently prepared a government case against six oil and pipe line companies, has resigned from the Justice Department.

His resignation as special assistant Attorney-General, which took effect Nov. 30, was disclosed yesterday by Attorney-General Cummings at a press conference.

Richberg was appointed to the Justice Department's land division last April 17. He was assigned specifically to the Osage Indian cases, in which the government filed suits against the oil companies in the Northern District of Oklahoma last week. The companies were charged by the government with illegally deducting money due Indians for oil leases.

Cummings gave no reason for the resignation. Richberg joined a law partnership a few days ago.

FARLEY BACK FROM EUROPE

Reports Enthusiasm Overseas for Re-election of Roosevelt.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—James A. Farley, Postmaster-General and chairman of the National Democratic Committee, returned from a vacation trip to Ireland today, enthusiastic about another president—Eamon De Valera of the Irish Free State.

"De Valera is a great fellow and is doing a great job," said Farley as the liner Washington steamed up the bay from quarantine. "Everywhere I found the masses of people for him. They call him 'Dev.' Farley said he found the greatest of enthusiasm in Ireland, England and France over President Roosevelt's re-election. "Everyone feels that the President's position in the United States is such that his work for peace and economic freedom will be felt all over the world," he said.

BANK OF FRANCE'S GOLD CUT TO $2,967,000,000

Reduced by Four Billion Francs Because of Repayment of British Advance.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 10.—The gold reserve of the Bank of France has been reduced by four billion francs as a result of the repayment in gold of the £40,000,000 obtained by the Government from England in February, the bank's statement for the week ending Dec. 4 disclosed today.

The payment cuts the bank's reserves to about sixty billion francs (about $2,967,000,000 at the arbitrary rate of 4.96 cents to the franc adopted by the bank in valuing its gold holdings.)

Although the gold had been subtracted in the statement, officials said the entire amount had not yet been paid. A total of £22,000,000 was paid by two checks for £8,000,000 each on Nov. 20 and 27, and a check for £6,000,000 on Dec. 5. The remainder of the loan will be paid by three checks for £6,000,000 each Dec. 12, 19 and 26.

SCULPTOR'S ASHES SCATTERED

Lorado Taft's Wish to Rest at Elmwood Fulfilled.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ELMWOOD, Ill., Dec. 10.—In accordance with the wishes of Lorado Taft, noted sculptor who died in Chicago several weks ago, his ashes were scattered over a plot of ground in the Elmwood Cemetery this morning. The rites were carried out by Dr. Robert Hieronymus, a community adviser at the University of Illinois, one of the sculptor's closest friends.

Mr. Taft shortly before his death had intimated a desire some day to return to Elmwood, his birthplace, for his final rest. One of his best-known works of art, "The Pioneers," stands in the Elmwood City Park. The sculptor was born in Elmwood in 1860.

HOUSE COMMITTEE REPORT ASSAILS TOWNSEND PLAN

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—A majority of a congressional investigating committee said today that the Townsend old age pension plan would "bring chaos" to the country and that "most of the key men in the movement were making large profits out of it."

This view was expressed in a report made by five members of the eight-man committee which inquired into the $200-a-month pension movement, advanced by Dr. Francis E. Townsend.

Two other members dissented. Representative Tolan (Dem.), California, said in a minority report that the investigation originated with "certai Congressmen who were fearful of the growing strength of the Townsend people." Representative Collins (Rep.), California, merely said he disagreed with the "conclusions and opinions" of the majority.

Those who signed the majority report were Bell (Dem.), Missouri; Gavagan (Dem.), New York; Ditter (Rep.), Pennsylvania; Hollister (Rep.), Ohio, and Lucas (Dem.), Illinois.

Representative Hoffman (Rep.), Michigan, signed no report, saying his views had been expressed elsewhere.

Follows Indictments.

The reports were made public less than a week after Townsend and two aids were indicted by a Federal grand jury for defying the House during the investigation. The California physician walked out on the committee, of which Representative Bell is chairman. The Rev. Clinton Wunder of New York and Jo' B. Kiefer of Chicago, both former regional directors of the pension organization, ignored committee subpenas.

The majority report said that un-

'STATE OF CALAMITY' DECREED IN PHILIPPINE FLOOD DISTRICT

President Manuel Quezon Takes Action to Freeze Prices, Prevent Profiteering.

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, Dec. 10. — President Manuel Quezon proclaimed "a state of calamity" last night in the Cagayan River Valley, where many reports of flood damage came out of the stricken area.

Quezon issued the proclamation in order to prevent profiteering. It is designed to hold the price of necessaries to the levels prevailing before the disaster.

National Relief Agent Rosalio Reyes said several thousand persons were missing. The Governor and other officials of Isabella Province said possibly several hundred, if not thousands, were among the dead or missing. However, Lieut. George Hansen, who also flew over the flood area, expressed doubt that thousands had been drowned.

The Governor of Isabela Province, 100 miles up the swollen Cagayan River, appealed for aid to prevent famine.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 10.—Georges Bonnet, former French Finance Minister, has decided to accept the ambassadorship to Washington, his friends said today.

Bonnet conferred at length today with Edouard Herriot, president of the Chamber of Deputies. Their associates said they discussed the question of war debts, but details were not disclosed. Andre Leboulaye is the present French Ambassador to the United States.

BILL ON CAMPAIGN PLEDGES

Alabama Senate Would Make It Crime to Break Them.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 10.—The State Senate passed yesterday the Bonner bill which penalizes with imprisonment office holders who go back on written campaign pledges.

Prohibiting false written campaign statements by candidates for city, county or state office, a measure went through by a vote of 21 to 5. The bill now goes to the House.

ARMY NAVY BOARD OFFERS INDUSTRIAL PLAN FOR WARTIME

Proposes Regulation of Business and Finance Including Government Control of Prices.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Drastic regulation of industry and finance, including government control of prices was proposed today by the Army and Navy in an industrial mobilization plan designed for use in time.

A revision of the 1931 and 1933 mobilization programs, the new plan will be submitted to Congress with the draft of proposed legislation.

It would commit the government to a sweeping policy of industrial preparedness so that adequate munitions and equipment might be produced when needed with a minimum disruption of normal conditions.

President's Powers.

The President, at his discretion in time of war, would be empowered to:

1. Fix prices of commodities and regulate their manufacture, use, sale and distribution. Real estate prices and rentals also could be "frozen."
2. Draft industrial management personnel into government service and commandeer manufacturing plants or other industrial establishments under certain conditions.
3. Regulate commodity and security exchanges, closing them if necessary.
4. Invoke regulations against profiteering, speculation, hoarding and waste.
5. Set up a $500,000,000 revolving fund for emergency capital loans to industry.

A war resources administration would be created somewhat along the lines of the 1917-18 War Industries Board, but with broader powers and jurisdiction. It would have divisions of war trade, war finance, price control and other

A. F. L. ADMITS ITS FIGURES ON JOBLESS MAY BE WAY OFF

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Admitting its last figure on unemployment may have been too high by more than 1,000,000, the American Federation of Labor is preparing a new estimate of the jobless.

The last estimate, for August showed 10,740,000 unemployed. The monthly report then was discontinued to await completion of the Government 1936 business census. As soon as figures from this are obtained, a new estimate will be published.

"Federal indexes of employment which we have used to bring the (1930) census unemployment figure up to date give a close representation of changes in employment in the United States during periods of industrial decline but in a time of rising business activity they do not show the full extent of re-employment," the Executive Council said.

"This is due to the fact that no satisfactory method has yet been devised to record the employment given by new firms starting in business."

PIRANDELLO, NOTED ITALIAN WRITER, DIES

By the Associated Pess

ROME, Dec. 10.—Luigi Pirandello, noted Italian playwright and novelist, died of pneumonia today after a brief illness. He was the 1934 winner of the Nobel prize for literature. "As You Desire Me" and "Six Characters in Search of an Author" were his best known plays in America. He was 69 years old.

He was at work on a new play when he died. Friends saw him in public for the last time three days ago.

His wife and their son, Landi, an actor, were at the bedside.

Pirandello left instructions in his will that he should receive the humblest sort of a funeral. He directed that his death should not be announced immediately, that there be no flowers and that no mourners follow his casket to the grave.

As he lay ill, "Six Characters in Search of an Author" was being revived by a repertory company in Rome.

CHINESE REPORT THEY WIPED OUT MANCHOUKUAN DIVISION

Suiyuanese Defenders Said to Have Captured Mongol Stronghold.

By the Associated Press.

KWEISUI, Suiyuan Province, China, Dec. 10. — Gen. Fu Tsoyi announced today his Suiyuanese defenders had annihilated a division of irregular Manchoukuan troops, thus opening a wide area of Inner Mongolia to Chinese domination.

Gen. Fu's headquarters reported capture of the irregular Mongol stronghold of Tamiao, 75 miles east of Pailingmiao, which fell before the Chinese advance two weeks ago.

The victory, if confirmed, would herald an early end to the fighting in Suiyuan province, which is now largely under Chinese domination, observers said, and the spread of the Central Government's authority throughout the Northern provinces.

It's Safer

to Name a Trust Company as Your Executor and Trustee

SAFER . . . Because a large trust company such as St. Louis Union has handled thousands of estates and is more experienced than any individual.

SAFER . . . Because a trust company is financially responsible, while an individual may not be.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Mayor Millar on County Government.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I WAS very much interested in two editorials of the Post-Dispatch of Dec. 3—one on the St. Louis area smoke problem and the other on the government of St. Louis County.

Both in Mr. Atkins' report and in the editorial, it was stressed that the plan would not interfere with the county municipalities. I thought you might be interested in knowing that the various administrations of the county municipalities are, I believe, whole-heartedly in accord with the sentiment of your editorial. Two years ago, the St. Louis County League of Municipalities made an extensive survey of the question of the St. Louis County government, as distinguished from the government of the municipalities in the county, and presented a definite plan for its improvement, including the introduction of a bill in the Legislature tending toward that end, which, unfortunately, did not get out of committee.

Last year, as president of the St. Louis County League of Municipalities, I appointed a special committee on county reorganization, which has held several conferences with a committee of the St. Louis County Chamber of Commerce and with Mr. Atkins, with the view of co-ordinating efforts.

Mayor Douglas of Brentwood, who has just been installed to succeed me as president of the league for the ensuing year, in his suggestions to the league has made the identical recommendation that I did last year. I think from this you will see that the need for reorganization of the St. Louis County government is not only apparent to the leaders of the various municipalities, but is and has been receiving consideration from them, and while I cannot speak for others than myself, I think that any comprehensive plan will receive the active aid of the cities.

In my opinion, the county now has two major problems: one is that of smoke, which is bound up with the rest of the St. Louis area, and the other is that of a simple and adequate form of county government designed for the peculiar metropolitan situation that we have here.

The municipalities justify their interest in the county government, of course, due to the fact that the major portion of the people live in the incorporated areas and, of course, most of the assessed valuation lies in those areas, so that the cities are primarily charged with maintaining the county government. The benefits to be derived from a reorganized form of government would accrue principally to the unincorporated areas; nevertheless the municipalities are very much interested in the county as a whole.

While on the subject, I might add that I certainly concur with you that St. Louis' No. 1 problem is smoke. We have been conferring with St. Louis from time to time, in the hope of working out a joint solution. I have recently made some concrete suggestions to our Board of Aldermen with respect to proceeding independently, more along the lines of the City of Clayton, to get some action.

DAVID L. MILLAR, Mayor,

A Criticism of the King.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

HE lives a narrow existence who is not interested in anything except what happens to himself.

King Edward VIII is not merely a national figure but a world figure, and everybody is interested in what he does. Those who have followed his actions for years must have noticed his disinclination to conform to tradition.

While some attribute that to an independent spirit, it was not a normal one. This is manifest in his private life as well as his public life, and in choosing a third-hand wife he has alienated all normal social instincts and makes himself a foreign element in society. While he may be impelled by fate, he should suffer his fate alone and not impose it upon his country.

What a Ton of Coal Produces.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE book, "Problems in General Science," by Hunter and Whitman, says that artificial gas may be manufactured by the process of destructive distillation of coal.

"In making gas, a ton of coal produces on an average two-thirds of a ton of coke, 13 gallons of coal tar, 20 pounds of ammonium sulphate, 12,000 cubic feet of gas. The products obtained from the by-product coal tar are probably far more valuable than the gas or coke which is produced. Such substances as aniline colors, light and heavy oils, carbolic acid and naphthalene flakes are some of the products obtained."

If these facts are true, why does St. Louis continue to burn coal as a fuel instead of changing it into these valuable products? By using the coke and gas thus produced, it would be possible to eliminate the smoke nuisance.

Romantic or Not?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHEN, in our circle of acquaintances, a man courts a woman who is the wife of another and she accepts his attention before she is legally free, we describe the situation with unflattering terms; at a distance of 4000 miles, enhanced by the glamour of a throne, it becomes beautifully romantic. Or does it?

HOUDINI FINANCE.

The Van Sweringen brothers are dead, but the fabulous story of their career, from humble real estate beginnings in Cleveland, O., to imperial power and possession in the railroad world, goes bewilderingly on. A posthumous chapter is now being written in the testimony before the Interstate Commerce Committee of the Senate. The chairman of the committee, Senator Wheeler of Montana, who is conducting the inquiry, is confessedly dazed by the magic of the financial operations which, transcending all ordinary experience, soar into the reaches of wizardry that would surely make Aladdin rub his eyes as well as his lamp.

The brothers—twin Alexanders of Macedon—came at last upon evil days as the depression plumbed ever darker depths. Finally, they faced foreclosure when loans came due which they could not meet. One loan, amounting to $48,000,000, was from the Morgan firm; the collateral was stock of the Alleghany Co., at the time the parent holding company of the Van Sweringen system. The money was not obtainable. The auctioneer's hammer presumably was about to syncopate the requiem of the Van Sweringens.

The presumption was wrong. Two men were found to come to the rescue. They were George A. Ball, a glass jar manufacturer of Muncie, Ind., and a Cleveland shipping magnate, George A. Tomlinson. All told, Ball and Tomlinson put up $3,100,000 with which to save the Van Sweringens and recapture a truly far-flung empire, running into several billions of book value.

How could it be done? We don't know. We have read Mr. Ball's explanation before the Senate committee, read it a half-dozen times, and are still in the dark. So, too, Senator Wheeler, who, listening to the recital, can only say it was a Houdini stunt in finance.

But this much is clear: for the sum of $274,682, Ball and Tomlinson purchased the stock of the Alleghany Co., on which J. P. Morgan & Co. had lent $48,000,000. It was the loss on this transaction which enabled the Morgan partners to file non-taxable income for 1935.

It appears, too, that an arrangement had been made for the Morgan firm, on the day of auction, to bid $100,000 less than Ball and Tomlinson. Mr. Ball says he was not informed as to that. Anyhow, the Ball-Tomlinson bid went through as if on schedule. Meantime, an agreement had been signed to continue the Van Sweringens in active control of the properties, with a drawing account of $100,000 a year. There was also a provision to safeguard the Van Sweringens from the importunities of creditors.

But the end is not yet. Another holding company was organized, the Mid-America, which topped the whole domain and dominion, and in this connection a contract was drawn up by which the Van Sweringens were privileged to buy control of Mid-America, which meant control of all the Van Sweringen properties, for a pittance of $8250.

To dignify such manipulations as financial operations is not merely fatuous; it is plain falsehood. This is high-powered trickery—holding company chicanery at its virulent worst.

SPEED UP EXPRESS HIGHWAY TRAFFIC.

Opposition to the proposal to lift the 30-mile-an-hour restriction on the new express highway through Forest Park is voiced by Director of Streets and Sewers McDevitt. In his report to the City Traffic Commission, he frowns on the Chamber of Commerce suggestion that speed limits on the new highway and several streets that are part of the State highway system be increased to 45 miles an hour. In this connection, Mr. McDevitt says: "Consideration must continue to be given to the safety of the pedestrians."

This warning note does not apply to the express highway, for there are no pedestrians and no intersections on this thoroughfare. The new highway is fenced off, with overpasses for persons on foot. It was built to speed up traffic; then why maintain the same 30-mile limit imposed on unprotected streets? It is absurd to impose a snail's pace on a speed highway. As it is, few motorists now adhere strictly to the 30-mile rate when driving over this broad and unobstructed thoroughfare.

Mr. McDevitt is justified in his efforts to protect the pedestrian, but no precautions are necessary on the new express highway. The Board of Aldermen should act to speed up traffic on the safest street in the city.

ARMS LIMITATION AT BUENOS AIRES.

Chile has presented to the Buenos Aires peace conference a plan for arms limitation by the 21 American republics. It is urged that these countries can "give a practical example of our desire for peace" by an agreement to "limit armaments to the essentials."

Armaments are a heavy economic burden upon all the nations and a menace to world peace. It would be a blessing to mankind could limitation be agreed upon. But is it practical for one nation or group of nations to set the example? Would not this action rather endanger the idealistic nations? To ask this is not to be alarmist. Mr. Roosevelt himself, in his address at Buenos Aires, recognized the danger when he called for a united American front against "others who, driven by war madness or land hunger, might seek to commit acts of aggression against us." There are war-mad and land-hungry nations today, with no respect for treaties, that would seek to expand into any territories that seem inadequately defended.

America still needs its defenses. If the Chilean proposal means that armaments shall be maintained at a strong defense level, well and good, for no American nation has ambitions of conquest. Like it or not, the world is engaged in an armaments race, and the nations of this hemisphere must meet its menace. It is their duty to work for the day when a general arms reduction agreement can be made, but it would add to world unrest if they failed to safeguard their territories and thereby invited aggression.

IN THE SPOTLIGHT.

So far as immediate results are concerned, Mayor Dickmann's conference with the St. Louis members of the new Legislature leaves the city's critical relief problem unchanged. Some 20 of the city's delegation of six Senators and 19 Representatives were present. They heard the Mayor ask them to sponsor a resolution appropriating $542,000 of State funds to take care of the relief needs of St. Louis during January and February. All were in sympathy with the city's problem, but no one volunteered to shoulder the burden in the forthcoming Legislature. Senator Mike Kinney seemed to sum up the view of the legislators when he said: "We'll just have to work it out some way."

So they will. St. Louis has not had a cent of relief money from the State since last March. Yet we have gone on week after week since paying about 30 per cent of the State's sales tax, levied primarily to raise funds for meeting the cost of relief. The forthcoming Legislature is obligated to provide a solution to this problem. The St. Louis members are responsible for proposing and pressing well-considered legislation to that end. Mayor Dickmann's meeting with the legislators may leave the work yet to be done; nevertheless, responsibility has been placed where it belongs. The spotlight is on the St. Louis delegation and their constituents are watching closely to see what they do.

THE BOARD'S EXPLANATION.

A lengthy explanation of its decision to build an elementary school on the campus of Vashon High School has been issued by the Board of Education. It is a formidable document, replete with adroit arguments and statistical tables. It attempts to rationalize a situation that has aroused the indignation of the Negro community as few issues have in recent years. The feeling of the Negroes is attested by signed petitions, by sermons in the churches, by mass meetings, by the formation of an organized opposition, by the filing of an injunction suit and by mobilization of Negro societies against the proposed action.

Is it not odd that a plan to which the Board of Education ascribes so many virtues is so bitterly denounced by the very people who are supposed to benefit by it? It may be that the people of the Vashon High School district cannot qualify as educational experts, but they and everyone else can understand the undesirability of jamming a grade school into the very shadow of a high school—a condition that exists nowhere else in the city—statistical tables to the contrary notwithstanding.

One of these statistical studies attempts to show that, under the new set-up, the Negro children will have as much space as is enjoyed by the children of other schools. But to make this showing, it is necessary for the statisticians to add the area of the nearby playground to the area of the campus proper. If the study is confined to the area of the campus proper, it shows that the Negro children henceforth will have only 112,734 square feet of open space, or 59 feet per pupil. At Beaumont High School, the children have 356,875 square feet, or 143 per pupil, and at Roosevelt 454,182, or 152 per pupil.

To be quite fair, the closing of Cardinal avenue will make the municipal playground a natural adjunct to the campus for play purposes. But this will not alter the fact that two school buildings, for children of different ages and habits, will be in unpleasant proximity. It will not alter the fact that when the younger children go outside at recess time, they will play under the high school windows, to the disturbance of classes. On the contrary, the throwing together of the campus and the playground, along with the new community center, now being constructed on one corner of the playground, will bring together Negroes of all ages, creating a problem of morals and discipline which is one of the principal grounds for the Negroes' objections to the board's plan.

We believe when the board pleads economy as one reason for not selecting another site it is not acting in very good spirit. It has been richly supplied with funds by the people of St. Louis. The money it is now spending for new construction comes out of a special bond issue voted for the purpose. In addition, it is receiving large grants of Federal funds. If it does cost a considerable sum to acquire a proper site for the new Negro school, we do not believe the people of St. Louis will cavil. And the power of condemnation will insure the board against paying an exorbitant price. But the main reason economy is a poor argument in this case is that the Negroes of St. Louis have been treated none too handsomely in the past in the matter of educational facilities.

As we have said before, the settlement of this controversy should not turn on narrow legalisms. It should be decided with broad regard for the wishes and aspirations—yes, and the judgment—of the people most intimately affected.

THE BABBITTS OF BALTIMORE.

It was a shock to read in the papers yesterday that some of the members of the Baltimore Advertising Club had proposed for Mrs. Simpson one of the awards it annually bestows on the two citizens who have served the city with distinction.

That was not in the Baltimore manner. Baltimore has been esteemed the aristocrat of American cities, in the true sense of the word. The fine art of living is a mellowed heritage there. The city has dined well, always, has bantered gracefully over the nuts and wine, has contrived to retain, unstilted, traditions of dignity and chivalry in an atmosphere of bright, sparkling gentility.

To capitalize a notoriety which has touched the tragic is a crassly shoddy thing. Condolences to Baltimore. Every city has its Babbitts.

A STYMIED WORLD.

Of course, that royal love affair has been a bad thing for business. They didn't put it so crudely over there, to be sure. They spoke of "national and imperial interests." But business is what they meant, and on that count England and the dominions were not the only places to feel the effects of the kingly indecision.

Take our own country! Oh, bring it right home by examining our own city. What did we hear wherever we went? The King and Wally. Wally and the King. Would he give her up? Would he abdicate? What ought he to do? These are the questions everybody has been asking, and everybody answering, some gropingly, some cocksurely, while here and there an orator seized the floor and talked on and on and on.

Nobody has any idea what a social, commercial and recreational stymie this love of the century really has been. How many dinner parties were practically wrecked every night of the week because the guests, getting warmed up to the subject, ardently pursued every angle, tangent and nuance, blandly forgetful of a hostess biting her nails? A casual stroll through a tavern would reveal cocktails or highballs untasted while the people who should have been refreshing themselves were debating this vexatious, though fascinating, theme. At the bridge tables, the once fierce concentration disappeared and rubbers languished and cards lay in neglected confusion while facts were spread out and cock-eyed theories advanced and nobody wholly agreed with what anyone said.

From all reports, the Christmas shopping season is zipping along handsomely, but, just the same, its tempo has been slowed down and its momentum reduced, and all because a man and a woman, whom most of us will never see, have looked into each other's eyes and have heard the violins murmur and the organ roll and the drums beat and seen the stars dance.

GEORGE BALL: I GOT IT AT A BARGAIN SALE.

Bossism: the Invisible Government

Unrestrained control by bosses over elected officials is viewed by New York lawyer as most serious defect in American party system; politicians choose candidates who will do their bidding when in office; writer urges ending this practice by a thorough revision of state election laws, to return real power to the people.

Edward A. Alexander in the Panel, Published by the Association of Grand Jurors of New York County.

ONE of the most serious defects in the American system of government by parties is the control exercised by the politicians who hold no public office over the elected and appointed officials who actually are supposed to administer the government.

While the people have the legal authority to elect the office-holders to administer the government, these public officials, when elected and called upon to exercise their powers of government, consider themselves to be bound morally, if not legally, by the rules of their party, to carry out the wishes of their organization. If the latter is under the control of a group of selfish or corrupt party leaders, the government may not be administered in the interests of the people, but on the contrary, for the benefit of those who are in immediate control of the party.

The masses of the people have no voice in nominating candidates for public office. As a practical matter, the candidates are nominated by members of the party committees who actually select them. The politicians who make up these party committees usually take great care in selecting candidates for nomination who, if elected to office, will do their bidding.

These public officials have the legal authority, when in office, to make appointments of large numbers of employes who are to perform the work of administering the various departments of the government. This large and lucrative patronage is supposed to belong to the party or the organization which puts them into power. This usually means that it belongs to the few individuals who are in control of the party machinery and they dictate such appointments. This is the method through which a political organization obtains and maintains its power.

This invisible government, which largely monopolizes nominations and appointments, is not controlled by law, inasmuch as the political bosses are private citizens and not public officials. For this reason, they are not regulated and restrained by law to an extent that the people have any real power over them. Just as Louis XIV said: "I am the state," so may the political bosses well say they are the state, and they wield the people's sovereign power.

There are good politicians and bad ones, just as there are good public officials and bad ones. The political system, however, is defective. It is based on the election laws of each state, which create political parties and define how they are to be operated.

In the United States, politics has become the greatest racket in the country—the racket of all rackets. Politics underlies and operates all rackets. There are lawful as well as unlawful rackets. Sometimes the lawful are far more injurious to the nation than the unlawful.

It may be asked: "What is a lawful racket?" As the name indicates, it is one carried on in strict accordance with law. For illustration, if powerful politicians, in temporary control of their party machine, cause puppet legislators whom they cause to be nominated and elected to pass a statute in favor of one or more great corporations which may reap therefrom unjust profits at the expense of the masses of the people, no crime has been committed.

The process used, however, is even more reprehensible and more immoral than that employed by gangsters, who openly violate the law. The gangster takes a chance of conviction. Not so, however, the respectable, smooth, designing citizens who operate behind closed doors, who pull wires from behind the scenes, who commit, not legal crimes, but moral ones, more monstrous, deadly and far-reaching than all of those of gunmen and gangsters.

If this invisible government is in control of law enforcement agencies, it is in a position to prevent and stifle prosecutions where they ought to be instituted and carried on, and to cause unjust prosecutions to be started against its enemies or any public-spirited citizens who may seek to lessen or destroy its power.

The important thing, therefore, is to improve our political system so that each foundation stone of government, which consists of the local community, selects honest and righteous men as district leaders.

No structure of government can be stronger than the foundations on which it has been built. The disease germ is nurtured in the smallest unit of government. If the soil in this local community is unhealthy, it breeds disease. The whole structure of our government is built upon the foundations of the local assembly district.

With honest men as district leaders, supported by honest followers, there is peace and contentment. With dishonest leaders supported by crooked followers obtaining illicit favors, there arise envy and hatred, causing an enmity against the government.

Can we enforce equal and exact justice to all, through the present political system which puts the invisible government into power? We do not believe it can be done.

This government is just as much, or even more, a part of the governing machinery as are the officials in office, and many times the invisible government is of far greater importance and influence in conducting the business of the government.

The public has not yet grasped the idea that party nominations are of vitally more importance than elections, and that party organizations operate, to a great extent, under self-made rules, in the very important function of choosing candidates for nomination and appointment to office.

The evils which result from the abuse of power wrongfully exercised by party committees, consisting of district leaders and other political bosses, can be lessened and in some instances prevented only by a complete revision of the election laws of each state.

TODAY and TOMORROW

The Love and Duty of a King

WHY is it, one may ask, that King Edward was forced to make a choice between love and duty? He was by no means the first King who fell in love with a woman disqualified to be his Queen or even his consort. There have been plenty of Kings before him who have found it easy enough to reconcile their private loves with their royal position. Yet here was a King who could not do that, and he found himself the storm center of a constitutional crisis. Somehow or other, the times have changed radically, even since the reign of his grandfather.

It is evident enough that the change is due to the growth of democracy, that is to say, to the rise of a newspaper-reading public, to the development of a free press, to the perfection of the camera and other means of communication.

In former days, a King who wished to love and live with a commoner could do so in reasonable privacy. And Kings did just that. For, while such affairs were known to the court and the aristocracy, the news went no further. An aristocracy is almost always worldly and easy-going in matters of this sort, insisting rather on decorum and the absence of public scandal than on the strict observance of the moral code. But for Edward VIII, such aristocratic liberties have become impossible, even if, which is unlikely, he wished to exercise them now.

He could not do what so many of his ancestors did—which was to make a mistress of the woman who could not be Queen—because the press and the camera have destroyed the privacy which his ancestors enjoyed. Where they could take a mistress and yet have her treated with respect by the upper class, who were in the know, today a King's mistress, who is photographed and written about in the whole press of the world, would be in a degrading position, and her relations with a King would be an even greater defiance of public morals than a proposal to amend the Royal Marriage Act and make her his lawful wife.

This amounts to saying that the masses, and the King as well, take the moral code more seriously than has been customary among the ruling classes. And it is because the masses are now in the know, thanks to the press and the candid camera, that Edward VIII was caught in his tragic dilemma. For him, the traditional solution was ruled out, because in a democratic society a King cannot openly live in what his people consider a state of sin. He must marry or he must renounce. And since a King's marriage is an affair of state, if he loves the wrong woman he must choose between his love and his throne.

Thus the affair throws new light on one of the principal reasons why during the past century the British monarchy adapted itself so successfully to the rise of the British democracy. There have been two long reigns, that of Queen Victoria and that of George V, and both monarchs lived personal lives in strict conformity with the moral standards of the British masses. They remade the life of the court in the image of a respectable middle-class household. In other words, they transformed an aristocratic monarchy into a bourgeois monarchy.

Victoria came to the throne soon after the reform bill, and she reigned during the age when the British masses acquired the right to vote and learned to read and write. She was the first monarch in a democratic Britain. Her own Victorian moral standards conformed with the moral standards of the new rulers of the British state. Edward VII conformed outwardly, at least, and, in any event, his reign was short. King George V and his Queen conformed perfectly, and when the reign of George V ended, it seemed as if there had been accomplished the miracle of adapting the ancient institution of monarchy to a modern democratic society.

Yet it is always an anomaly that the head of a democratic society should be selected not by the people but by the accident of birth. The plight of Edward VIII shows how much the perpetuation of this anomaly, so useful to the Empire, depends upon the monarch's intuitive sense of his own curious position, and upon the thoroughness with which he has been trained to appreciate it.

Queen Victoria and King George were a new kind of royalty precisely because they had no taste for the traditional private privilege of royalty. They suited the new democracy because they were old-fashioned in their morals. For the indubitable fact is that democracy is old-fashioned in its morals.

It is because democracy takes its moral code seriously that the King was forced to choose between his throne and a marriage with Mrs. Simpson. In an aristocratic society, that choice would have been unnecessary, would probably not even have been considered. But though there are still Kings and noblemen in the British Constitution, the Empire is no longer an aristocratic society, and a King who does not conform to the moral expectations of the British masses can, therefore, no longer be the King.

The French Riviera and the drawing rooms of London, Paris and even New York are populated with royalty who did not know how to adapt themselves to the rise of democracy, to its desires and its morals and, if you like, its prejudices. They were unable to realize that the preservation of monarchy in a democracy requires that the public and the private life of the royal family shall conform to the standards which its subjects profess, that it shall reflect the image which the people have of royalty, renouncing the liberties which royalty used once to enjoy before the people could read, or the newspapers were circulated.

Milles said he thought the fountain would be completed in the summer of 1938. He has now finished most of the clay models, he said, and they are now to be done in plaster, after which they will be cast in bronze.

The fountain, which will cost about $60,000, will symbolize the union of the Mississippi and Missouri rivers. The principal figures, resembling Neptune and Venus, will be about 10 feet high.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

THE holiday program for the sub-debutante school set is more extensive than that of the debutantes. Dozens of invitations, issued within the last few days, give advance notice of dances, both afternoon and evening, dinners, luncheons and even a breakfast party.

Mary Institute juniors are giving almost as many parties as there are class members. Miss Sally Wright, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd B. Wright, 6607 Waterman avenue, class president, will entertain 36 girls for luncheon at the St. Louis Woman's Club Saturday, Dec. 19, in honor of Miss Mary Pitcairn, a junior at Miss Master's School, Dobbs Ferry, New York.

Four of Miss Wright's classmates will give a progressive dinner the following Saturday night, Dec. 26. Miss Mary Jo Wood will be hostess at the first course at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. V. V. Wood, 6368 Washington boulevard; the second hostess will be Miss Dorothy Schnure, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Schnure, 6230 Waterman avenue; the third Miss Marcia Toensfeldt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralf T. Toensfeldt, 5423 Cabanne avenue, and the party will end at the home of Mrs. Harold Simpkins, 5328 Waterman avenue, whose daughter, Miss Frances Simpkins, will be hostess.

Other Christmas parties, in chronological order, are: a tea given by Mrs. Thomas A. O'Reilly, 7427 Stratford avenue, for her daughters, Miss Mary Elizabeth and Miss Peggy O'Reilly, from 4 to 6 p. m., Sunday, Dec. 20; an informal dance by Theodore Winthrop Sill Jr., at his home, 5062 Westminster place, Tuesday, Dec. 22, when guests are invited for 8:30 p. m. The host, a student at Kent School in Connecticut, from which he will return Dec. 19, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Sill.

Her friends who go Christmas shopping Wednesday, Dec. 23, have been invited by Miss Toensfeldt to have luncheon at the Missouri Athletic Association afterward.

Mrs. Jerome Schotten and Mrs. Robert A. Holland Jr., the mothers of two other Mary Institute juniors, Miss Grace Schotten and Miss Julia Holland, have sent cards for a dinner dance in their honor Thursday, Christmas eve, at 8 o'clock at the Bellerive Country Club.

Miss Polly Walsh, who attends Villa Duchesne, and her mother, Mrs. Robert A. Barnes Walsh, have invited friends for tea and dancing at their home, 24 Portland place, Christmas day, from 5 to 7 p. m.

There will be at least three parties Monday, Dec. 28, and six the following day. The Dec. 28 hostesses include Miss Joan Gundlach, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Gundlach, 70 Lake Forest, and Miss Elsa Lungstras, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lungstras, 3938 Flora boulevard, Mary Institute juniors, who will give a luncheon together at the Glen Echo Country Club; Miss Joan Blue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Avon Blue Jr., 5112 Westminster place, who will entertain friends at luncheon at her parents' home in honor of Miss Jane Butler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart M. Butler, who will be at home for the holidays from Rosemary Hall, and Mrs. Alexander M. Cornwell, 536 Overhills drive, who will give a tea from 4 to 6 o'clock that afternoon for her four daughters, Miss Dorothy and Miss Virginia, students at the John Burroughs School here, and Miss Margaret and Miss Helen, who attend Sweetbriar College in Virginia and will be at home Dec. 19 for the holidays.

Parties to be given Tuesday, Dec. 29, include a luncheon for which Mrs. Raymond William Peters and her daughter, Miss Margaret have sent invitations, for 1 o'clock at their home, 14 Clermont lane. Miss Peters attends Westover School in Connecticut, will be home next week.

There will be two parties that afternoon. Mrs. Wilson Linn Hemingway, 7711 Maryland drive, and her daughter, Miss Frances Miriam, a junior at Mary Institute, will entertain her friends at tea from 4 to 6 o'clock at their home, and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick B. Ewing will give a tea dance in the crystal room of Hotel Chase for their daughter, Miss Mary Louise, and their son, Frederick B. Jr., a Dartmouth College student.

In the evening Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Polk and Mrs. Polk's daughter, Miss Elaine Wheaton, will give a dinner at 7:30 o'clock at their home, preceding a dance at which Mr. and Mrs. John C. Roberts, 109 Aberdeen place, will entertain friends of their daughter, Miss Berkley Roberts, at dancing at the St. Louis Woman's Club at 9 o'clock.

A tea dance complimenting Miss Rosalie Randolph will be one of the two parties for the younger group Wednesday, Dec. 30. The party will be given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Fitzhugh Randolph, from 4 to 6 o'clock at their home, 315 East Bodley avenue, Kirkwood. At 8:30 o'clock that night, Miss Catherine Weed and Miss Jean Hermann will give a dance together at the Bellerive Country Club.

Miss Rosebud Valier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Valier, 625 Skinker boulevard, a junior at Mary Institute, and Miss Martha Lyter, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. Curtis Lyter, 5053 Westminster place, have invited friends to a dance at the Bellerive Country Club New Year's Eve, beginning at 10 o'clock. Another group will dance from 10 to 2 o'clock with supper as the year becomes 1937 at the St. Louis Woman's Club in response to invitations sent by Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Russell, 89 Arundel place. They will entertain in honor of their daughter, Miss Nancy, a student at Miss Master's School, Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., and their son, Ned, who attends Cornell.

The Fortnightly Dancing Club has postponed its Christmas dance from Dec. 28 to Jan. 2 because of conflict with the Princeton Triangle Club play. The dance will be at the St. Louis Woman's Club instead of at the Bogey Club where other of this season's parties have been held.

A post-holiday party will be given by Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson Nardin Jan. 9 in honor of their younger son, Don.

Invitations have been received from Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Burns, 30 Lenox place, to a tea Tuesday, Dec. 22, from 6 to 8 p. m., in honor of Miss Blanche and Miss Virginia Fischel, daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Walter Fischel, 14 Lenox place. Miss Blanche Fischel, a debutante of last year, is attending Smith College this winter and expects to return home for the holidays, about Dec. 20. Miss Virginia Fischel made her debut this year.

Miss Mary Purcell, niece of George W. Wilson, 4451 Lindell boulevard, will entertain Sunday morning at a breakfast and miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Helen Forrest, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Forrest, 1805 South Spring avenue, whose marriage to Francis J. Beahn will take place Dec. 28. Mr. Beahn is the son of Vincent Beahn of Philadelphia.

THE wedding of Miss Stella Melville Switzer, daughter of Mrs. Roland Switzer, 9 Arundel place, and Dr. John Albion Saxon, whose engagement was announced Monday, will take place Tuesday night, Dec. 29. The Rev. Dr. Karl Morgan Block of the Church of St. Michael and St. George will perform the ceremony at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother. Guests, limited to members of the two families, will remain for an informal reception.

Miss Grace Switzer will be her sister's maid of honor, and Clifford Saxton will be best man for his brother. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Edith Clifford Saxton, 4644 Maryland avenue.

Dr. Saxton and his bride will go immediately after the wedding to Princeton, N. J., where he is an assistant at the Rockefeller Institute, and where they will live.

Mrs. William Franklin Gephart, 811 Glen Ridge, entertained debutantes and other friends at luncheon today at the Glen Echo Country Club in honor of Miss Margaret Ann Corley.

Debutante guests were seated at a table decorated with dark red and white flowers arranged between silver candelabra holding putty colored tapers. The favors were circular ash trays in the jewel tones—amethyst, sapphire, emerald and topaz—and mirror match boxes. Mrs. Gephart gave the guest of honor moss green crocheted coasters.

The guests were: Miss Ruth Donnell, Miss Susan Thompson, Miss Carroll Wright Taussig, Miss Grizelda Polk, Miss Josephine Lamy and her two guests, Miss Suzette Crawford and Miss Helen Sewell, Miss Harriet Edwards and Miss Betty Hulburd.

At Mrs. Gephart's table, similarly decorated, were: Mrs. Francis Wade Corley, Mrs. J. R. Eakin and Mrs. C. Earl Hulburd.

Miss Betty Berkley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Berkley of the St. Regis Apartments, sailed yesterday on the Berengaria for Europe, to be gone all winter and probably next summer. In Paris she will join Miss Eleanor Carter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Scott Carter, 7 Oakleigh lane, who attends school in Tours, France, and together they will travel to Kitzbuehel, Austria, for winter sports.

After the holidays, Miss Berkley will go to Rome to attend a convent school. Mrs. Berkley accompanied her to New York and will return the last of the week. Miss Betty will make her debut next season.

Mrs. Edwin T. Nugent of the St. Louis Country Club grounds returned Monday from Philadelphia where she has been visiting her sister, Mrs. John B. S. Rex. She left about 10 days ago and attended the Army-Navy game. Mrs. Nugent and her daughter, Miss Edwine C. Nugent, will spend Christmas in Cincinnati where they will visit Mrs. Nugent's daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Conroy. They will return here for New Year's.

Mrs. Thomas K. Niedringhaus, a former St. Louisan living in New York, will depart shortly for Palm Beach, Fla., to spend three months with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Joseph E. Johnson, at her winter home.

Invitations have been received from Mr. and Mrs. Frederick William Russe, and their daughter, Miss Ann, for their annual holiday eggnog party, to be given this year Sunday, Dec. 20, at their home, 5247 Westminster place. Guests have been invited from noon until 2 o'clock.

Miss Elaine Bonnet Meyer, daughter of Mrs. Irma Teichmann Meyer, 7542 Byron place, entertained Miss Josephine Lamy and her two guests, Miss Suzette Crawford of Chicago and Miss Helen Sewell of Albany, N. Y., at luncheon Monday at her home.

Mrs. D. H. Mudd, 6918 Washington boulevard, has left for New York to join her daughter, Miss Margaret Mudd. They are guests at the Ambassador Hotel.

BOY, 10, IN COMA SINCE MAY 18, DIES

Clifford Eckenfels Victim of Sleeping Sickness Was Fed Through Tube.

Clifford Eckenfels, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Eckenfels, 225 President street, died at City Hospital yesterday of sleeping sickness, after having been in a coma since May 18.

During that time he was fed a special liquid diet through a nasal tube. Every two hours nurses turned him from one side to the other in order to prevent lung congestion and possible pneumonia. While on the special diet he gained weight. Yesterday his condition took a sudden turn.

He entered the hospital May 4. At that time his father, a laborer, told physicians the boy had suffered a dizzy spell and had collapsed. He had been suffering from such spells since he was 2 years old.

During the seven-month period of unconsciousness, he failed to recognize his parents, three brothers or his sister when they came to visit him. He was kept in a small room off Division 12. The encephalitis was not of the contagious type.

The boy received eight blood tranfusions, but they were of little help.

The funeral will be at 1:30 p. m. Saturday from the Hoffmeister undertaking establishment, 7814 South Broadway. Burial will be in Mount Hope Cemetery.

AUTOMOBILE CLUB INDORSES SAFETY COMMITTEE'S PROGRAM

This Includes State Drivers' License Law; for Delay or New Highway Taxes.

The Board of Governors of the Missouri Automobile Club last night adopted a resolution indorsing the program of the Missouri Traffic Safety Committee, which includes recommendations for enactment of a State drivers' license law, enlargement of the personnel of the State Highway Patrol, and uniform statewide motor vehicle regulations.

At the same time the board voted approval of a recommendation by the Citizens' Road Association that no new highway or motor vehicle tax legislation be sought until completion of highway planning surveys now under way.

There was no pressing need for new legislation of that kind by the next General Assembly, it was stated, for it would not go into effect until November, 1938, the time of expiration of constitutional provisions limiting the amount of State gasoline taxes and registration fees.

STILL TIME FOR THE HOLIDAY FRUIT CAKE

Light Fruit Cake for Those Who Dislike Richer One—A New Technique.

Christmas is fruit-cake time and if you haven't made your cake there is still time. A white fruit cake, which is really not white, but light colored, is good if you do not like the richer darker variety. Cooking the give-away fruit cake in grapefruit or orange shells is one of the newer wrinkles in fruit-cake baking. The fruit shell takes the place of the usual container and helps keep the cake moist.

White Fruit Cake.

Shred one-fourth pound each, candied cherries, pineapple and Sultana raisins. Slice thinly one-half pound shelled nuts. Mix together and cover with one-fourth cup of orange juice, or better still, sherry, and leave over night. Pour a tablespoon of rose water over two tablespoons shredded coconut and leave 15 minutes. Cream one-half cup of butter with three-fourths cup sugar. Add two well beaten egg yolks and the coconut. Beat well, flavor with one teaspoon vanilla or one-half teaspoon lemon extract. Fold in one cup sifted flour, then the fruit and Brazil nuts with the liquid on them, then another cup of flour, and finally fold in the whites of two eggs stiffly beaten. Turn into a buttered and paper lined pan and bake slowly in a very moderate oven. This cake requires no leavening, but you may add one-half teaspoonful of baking powder sifted with the flour if you wish a very light cake. Ice thickly when cold and decorate with candied cherries and sliced nut meats.

Fruit Cakes in Candied Grapefruit Shells.

Select large seeded grapefruit of good shape and color. Wash carefully, break oil cells by grating lightly on fine grater. Cut slice from stem end and remove insides, being careful not to break shell. Cover shell with cold salted water, bring to a boil and cool about 10 minutes. Drain off water. Repeat process three to four times. Cool shell.

Put shell in syrup made of equal parts of sugar and water, allowing one tablespoon glycerine for each cup water. Be sure to use sufficient syrup to float fruit. Cook to 200 degrees Fahrenheit (medium thick syrup) and let fruit stand in syrup at least 24 hours. Turn several times during cooling period. Recook; heat to 228 degrees Fehrenheit (very thick syrup). Remove from syrup and cool. Fill with following fruit cake recipe:

Dark Fruit Cake.

One-half cup shortening
One-half cup brown sugar
Four eggs
One cup flour
One-half teaspoon nutmeg
One-fourth teaspoon cloves
One-fourth teaspoon salt
Two cups seedless raisins
One-half cup citron, chopped
One-half cup candied orange peel, chopped
Two-thirds cup walnuts, chopped

Cream shortening and sugar and add eggs, one at a time, beating vigorously after each egg is added. Mix and sift flour, nutmeg, cloves and salt and add to creamed mixture. Fill crystallized grapefruit shell with cake mixture. Steam for one hour and then bake in a slow oven (300 degrees Fahrenheit) for 30 minutes. Roll fruit in powdered sugar when cool. This amount will fill two to three grapefruit shells, depending on size of fruit. From three to five weeks is sufficient for aging these cakes. Store, wrapped in cloth, in dark, cool place.

The addition of the glycerine in the syrup in which shells are boiled will keep fruit soft while it is being candied.

Fruit Cakes in Candied Orange Shells.

Select the most perfect shape oranges possible. Try to get fruit free from marks. Wash carefully, break oil cells by grating lightly on fine grater and cut slice from top of each orange. Remove insides of oranges and be careful not to break shell. Cover shells with cold salted water and bring to a boil, and cook about 10 minutes. Drain off water. Repeat about three times or until bitter flavor is removed from orange shells. Cool shells. Put in syrup made of equal parts of sugar and water and add one tablespoon of glycerine for each cup water used. Be sure enough syrup is used to float fruit. Cook to 200 degrees Fahrenheit (medium thick syrup) and allow fruit to stand in syrup at least 24 hours. Reheat syrup to 228 degrees Fahrenheit (very thick syrup). Remove from syrup and cool. Fill with cake recipe given above and steam about 50 minutes and bake in oven of 300 degrees Fahrenheit for 20 minutes.

THIS MOIST DELICIOUS FRUIT CAKE MAKES A SPLENDID HOLIDAY GIFT

Fruit cake made from an excellent recipe and baked at the correct temperature becomes almost a confection. Experienced fruit cake bakers suggest using tube pans for this particular type of cake because the oven heat penetrates the inside portion more quickly and reduces the baking period.

Honey and bananas as well as many fruits and citrus peels in the following recipe make this a moist delicious fruit cake you will want to share as a gift to friends on Christmas day.

Confection Fruit Cake.

Six cups seedless raisins
Two cups prunes
Two and three-quarters cups of candied cherries
Two cups sliced preserved lemon peel
Two cups sliced preserved orange peel
Four cups sliced citron
One cup strained honey
One pound butter
Two and a half cups sugar
Twelve eggs
Six and one-quarter cups sifted flour
Two teaspoons salt
One teaspoon soda
Three teaspoons cinnamon
One teaspoon cloves
Two teaspoons allspice
Two teaspoons mace
Two teaspoons ginger
One cup crushed bananas
Three cups broken walnut kernels
Two tablespoons brandy extract

Yield approximately 11¾ pounds. Recipe may be reduced by half if desired.

Rinse raisins, drain and dry on a towel. Cook prunes 20 minutes, drain, cool, remove pits and slice. Rinse cherries, drain, dry and cut into halves. Rinse all peel before slicing and dry. Combine fruits, peels and honey, blend well and let stand over night.

Cream butter, add sugar and blend thoroughly. Add a portion of the well beaten eggs and mix; then add a portion of the flour sifted with salt, soda, spices, and beat. Stir in the crushed bananas, and alternately, the remainder of the eggs and flour.

Mix in the fruit-honey mixture, nut kernels and extract. Pour into paper-lined tube pans and bake in a slow oven (300 degrees).

A two and one-half pound cake will require approximately two and three-quarters hours to bake; a five and one-half pound cake, approximately three and three-quarters hours. Test for doneness with wooden picks or a cake tester.

To Separate Lettuce.

Cut out the core of the head of lettuce with a pointed knife. Then hold the head, cut side up, under running water so that the water will force its way between the leaves and separate them. Then drain the excess water from the leaves, and store in a covered refrigerator pan in the refrigerator until the lettuce is ready to be used.

SERVE FAMILY DRESSED-UP COMPANY DESSERT

You don't have to wait for company to serve a dessert like this one. The family will relish it.

Grape Juice Chiffon Dessert.

One tablespoon plain gelatin.
One-fourth cup cold water.
Two tablespoons lemon juice.
One-half cup sugar.
Three eggs.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
Two-thirds cup grape juice.
One-half cup whipping cream.

Beat egg yolks slightly and add lemon juice, sugar and salt. Cook in double boiler, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Remove from fire, and add the gelatin that has been soaked in the one-fourth cup of cold water. Stir until dissolved. Add the grape juice and cool. When the mixture starts to stiffen, fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into greased molds or pile in parfait glasses. Chill again and serve, topped with whipped cream and maraschino cherries. Serves six-eight.

Make known your want through Post-Dispatch Want Ads and have it filled.

Broiled Calves' Liver.

Arrange slices of calves' liver, bacon and Bermuda onion (sliced about one-fourth inch thick) on a rack of the broiler pan. Brush with melted butter and season with salt and pepper. Turn oven switch to broil. Broil, turning once or twice, for 10-15 minutes, or until the mixed grill is cooked to the desired degree of doneness.

Pan Broiled Steak.

The real flavor of broiled steak may be imparted to steak cooked on top of the stove (pan-broiled) by getting the frying pan very hot, sprinkling with salt in the bottom of the pan and searing the steak quickly. Do not add fat. If the pan is hot enough the meat will not stick.

Savory Sauce.

Add one-quarter teaspoon peppercorns, two whole cloves and one-half small onion to cream sauce to make it savory. Remove seasonings before serving.

SPOON BREAD IS SERVED FROM BAKING DISH

Most of us look at spoon bread as just another form of corn bread. It is, but not as crisp was was usually spooned out of the baking dish.

Southern Spoon Bread.

One and one-half cups coarse corn meal.

Two and one-half cups boiling water.

Four tablespoons margarine or other shortening.

One teaspoon salt.

One and one-half cups buttermilk.
Three-fourths teaspoon soda.
Whites two eggs.

Add corn meal gradually to boiling water. Add margarine and salt. Mix, beat smooth and let cool for a few minutes. Add eggs yolks and buttermilk to which soda has been added. Beat one minute and then add stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into a pudding dish rubbed over with margarine and bake in a hot oven (425 degrees) for 40 minutes. Spread with margarine and serve hot from dish in which it is baked.

CANDIES ARE PART OF HOLIDAY SPIRIT

Home-Made Kinds May Be Turned Out With Very Little Effort.

There is no better indication of the holiday spirit than the making of candies. A good candy thermometer, some granite saucepans and a slab are about all the equipment needed to turn out confections that are delicious.

Fruit Souffle.

Three cups seedless raisins.
One-half cup white syrup.
Two cups sugar.
One-half cup water.
Five tablespoons butter.
One-half cup hard cocoa butter or nut margarine.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One-half cup chopped candied orange peel.
One-half cup chopped candied lemon peel.
One cup fondant.
One and one-half cups marshmallow creme.

Rinse raisins, drain, and dry thoroughly on a towel. Allow mixture of corn syrup, sugar, and water to come to good boil, then add butter and cocoa butter and cook until it will form a stiff ball (244 degrees F.) when tested in cold water. Add half the raisins and cook until it will form a stiffer ball (248 degrees F.) when tested in cold water. Remove from fire, add salt and chopped peels. Add fondant and mix thoroughly. Beat in the marshmallow creme and remaining raisins. Pour onto greased slab or into pan. When cold cut into any desired shapes.

A stiffer ball is one that is stiff to the touch, but not hard. It may still be dented, but not so easily.

Chocolate Cream Squares.

One and one-half cups seedless raisins.
One cup sugar.
One and one-half tablespoons syrup.
One and one-half tablespoons butter.
One-half cup milk.
One one-ounce square chocolate.
One-quarter teaspoon salt.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One-half cup fondant.
One-half cup marshmallow creme.

Rinse raisins, drain, and dry thoroughly on a towel. Combine sugar, corn syrup, butter, and one-quarter cup milk and bring to a good boil, then add rest of milk gradually enough not to stop candy from boiling. When it will form a soft ball when tested in cold water (238 degrees Fahrenheit) add chocolate and cook to a hard ball (245 degrees Fahrenheit). Remove from fire, add salt, vanilla, fondant, and marshmallow creme; beat fast and thoroughly. When well mixed add raisins and pour into greased pan. When cold cut into squares.

A soft ball will hold together and can be formed into a soft mass or roll between the fingers.

Raisin Cocomallow.

Two and one-half cups seedless raisins.
One cup sugar.
Two-thirds cup white syrup.
One-half cup water.
One tablespoon butter.
One-half cup marshmallow creme.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One-quarter teaspoon salt.
One-half pound shredded coconut.

Rinse raisins, drain, and dry thoroughly on a towel. Combine sugar, corn syrup and water, and boil until it will form a soft ball (238 degrees Fahrenheit) when tested in cold water. Stir constantly. Remove from fire, add butter, marshmallow creme, vanilla, salt, raisins, and coconut and mix thoroughly. Pour onto a greased slab or pan. When set, cut into desired shapes.

Fruit Butter Creams.

One and one-half cups seedless raisins.
Two and one-quarter cups sugar.
Three-quarters cup cream.
One-quarter cup white syrup.
One-quarter cup water.
One tablespoon butter.
One-half teaspoon vanilla.
One-quarter teaspoon salt.
One square dipping chocolate.

Rinse raisins, drain, and dry thoroughly on a towel. Mix together sugar, cream, corn syrup and water and bring to a heavy boil. Wipe down sides of pan with a wet cloth. Add butter and cook until it forms a medium ball when tested in cold water or 240 degrees F. Remove from fire and then pour out onto a greased platter to cool or set in a pan of cold water. When lukewarm or about 110 degrees F, add vanilla and salt and beat with a wooden spoon until white and creamy. Add raisins and spread out on a greased pan to harden. When set melt chocolate over warm water. Allow it to cool, and spread a thin layer over the candy. When set cut into squares.

Nut Chews.

Three cups seedless raisins.
One cup brown sugar.
One cup white syrup.
One and one-third cups table cream.
One cup chopped walnut kernels.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One and one-half teaspoons vanilla.

Rinse raisins, drain and dry thoroughly on a towel. Boil sugar, corn syrup and cream, stirring constantly, until it forms a firm but not brittle ball (240 degrees F.) when tested in cold water. Remove immediately from fire; add nuts, raisins, salt and vanilla and mix thoroughly. Pour into greased pan (sufficient to fill a 10-inch square cake pan). Set in cool place until thoroughly cold. Cut in desired sizes and shapes. May be dipped in chocolate, but should set overnight or at least three hours before dipping.

For dipping, prepare chocolate as follows: Melt one pound of dipping chocolate over warm water; remove and allow to cool until it is lukewarm. Dip a piece of candy and if chocolate runs off thicken it by adding four or five drops of cold water.

HERE IS A NEW TOPPING FOR SUNDAY MORNING PANCAKES

If you want a topping that is different for the Sunday morning stack of pancakes or tender crepes suzette, try a syrup of this kind:

Maple Marshmallow Syrup.

One-half pound marshmallows.
One cup water.
Five to six drops maple flavoring.

Place marshmallows and water in a saucepan and heat over low flame until marshmallows are melted. Increase heat and boil syrup for three minutes. Remove from flame and add flavoring. Serve slightly warm. Makes one and one-half cups of syrup.

COLD WEATHER CALLS FOR ENERGY FOODS

May Be Simple and Yet Include All Important Items for Health.

When wintry blasts ruffle our dispositions and the sun seems to find it impossible to penetrate the dense layers of smoke that blanket the city, food becomes a paramount issue. The heat creating starches and sugars are an important part of the winter diet. Energy foods and protective vitamins should appear in every menu.

With the Christmas holidays coming nearer many housewives are tempted to try short cuts by serving simple foods to the family. Foods may be simple and yet include all the important items for health.

Rice and Red Beans.

One cup rice, uncooked.
One pound beans.
One-half pound salt meat.
Seasoning.

Soak beans overnight. Cook beans, salt, meat, onion and seasonings with enough water to cover well until beans are cooked. Add enough water from time to time so that there will be plenty of thick rich gravy. Boil one cup rice in two quarts boiling salted water 12 to 25 minutes (until a grain pressed between thumb and forefinger feels soft). Put into colander and run hot water through rice; place strainer over hot water and steam until grains are fluffy. Arrange on platter and top with bean mixture; pour gravy over all.

Baked Hash.

One cup cooked beef.
One cup cooked rice.
One cup milk.
One teaspoon salt.
One teaspoon pepper.
Two teaspoons butter.
One egg.

Into a stewpan put chopped cold beef, cooked rice, milk, butter, salt and pepper. Stir for one minute, then add well-beaten egg. Add a minced clove of garlic if desired. Turn into baking dish and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 20 minutes. Four servings.

Bananas With Bacon.

Twelve strips bacon.
Six bananas.

Peel bananas and cut in half crosswise; roll half lengths of bananas in strips of bacon and secure with toothpick. Broil, or bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.), about 15 minutes or until bananas are tender and bacon is crisp. Baste at least once during baking. Serve as main course for luncheon. Serves six.

Banana Cream Pie.

Line pie tin with flaky cooked pastry shell. Slice ripe bananas into bottom of pastry shell and pour favorite cooled cream (or chocolate) filling over them. Cover with whipped cream and arrange sliced bananas on top.

Sweet Potatoes Glace.

Parboil sweet potatoes and cut into strips; put into well-oiled baking dish; add half cup of dark karo and a tablespoon or more of butter; cover and bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) about 1½ hours.

Peanut Butter Pie de Luxe.

One cup sugar.
Three eggs.
One cup white syrup.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
One-half teaspoon vanilla.
One-third cup peanut butter.

Blend ingredients well; pour into nine-inch pie tin which has been lined with chilled uncooked pie crust. Cover with another pie tin, inverted, and bake in hot oven (450 degrees) for 10 minutes; reduce heat to 350 degrees F. After 50 minutes remove cover and continue baking until silver knife inserted shows firm filling and slightly crisp top (15-30 minutes). Serve in small portions.

Onion-Stuffed Apples.

Select large tart apples, wash, cover and make cut through the skin midway between stem and blossom ends; fill cavity with chopped raw onion and put into baking pan; pour one-fourth inch water into pan; cover and bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees to 4000 degrees).

Christmas Cookies Are In the Best Tradition

Whether You Follow Old World Recipes or Use Good American Ones the Results Are the Same.

There are still great numbers of us who feel that Christmas isn't Christmas without some home-baked cookies. Perhaps it is the pleasant hurry which attends the turning out of two or three kinds of cookies in one session that accounts for the Christmas feeling. Or it may be those delightful cutters and cookie presses that turn out various shapes and kinds from stars to Christmas trees that help the feeling.

Our traditions here are sufficiently French and German to warrant the making of these dainties as part of the holiday spirit. The markets just now are stocked with all the ingredients for interesting cookies. If you like to trim yours to make them look more festive there are colored sugars and candies of all kinds for this purpose.

When cookies are baked in quantities it is a good idea to press some of the members of the family into service. One whose sole duty is to watch the oven so the cookies will not be overbaked is quite a help. If you happen to have among your kitchen accessories some cookie sheets which fit your oven you will find the turning out of cookies in quantity very much simplified.

Chocolate Shells.

Beat four egg whites stiff and add one-half pound of sugar, one-half pound ground almonds, not blanched, six tablespoons grated sweet chocolate, one-half teaspoon cinnamon and a pinch of cloves. Sprinkle sugar on a board and roll out to half an inch thick, cut in fancy shapes and bake on a greased cookie sheet in a very slow oven.

Peppernuts.

Beat four whole eggs and four egg yolks with two cups of sugar for one hour. Add one-half pound blanched, ground almonds, eight tablespoons finely cut citron and orange peel, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon cloves and three and one-half cups sifted flour. Form into little balls and bake in a slow oven (325 degrees) until light brown.

Honey Treasures.

Eight cups sifted flour; one-half teaspoon soda; one and one-half teaspoon cinnamon; one-fourth teaspoon cloves; one-fourth teaspoon nutmeg; one and one-third cups strained honey (one pound); one cup brown sugar, firmly packed; one-fourth cup water; two eggs, slightly beaten; one and one-half cups (six ounces) candied orange peel, shredded; one and one-half cups (six ounces) candied citron, shredded; two cups (three-fourths pound) almonds, blanched and shredded.

Sift flour once, measure, add soda and spices, and sift together three times. Boil honey, sugar and water five minutes. Cool. Add flour, eggs, fruits and nuts. Work into loaf and place in refrigerator. Let ripen two or three days. Roll one-fourth inch thick on slightly floured board. Cut in strips, 1 by 3 inches. Bake on greased baking sheet in moderate oven (350 degrees) 15 minutes. When cool, cover with glaze. These should ripen in cake box at least one day before they are served. Makes 10 dozen.

Glaze for Honey Treasures.

Two teaspoons baking powder. sugar; three tablespoons boiling water; one teaspoon vanilla.

Combine sugar and water. Add vanilla. Beat thoroughly. Drop from teaspoon on cooky. Makes enough glaze to cover 10 dozen cookies.

Note: Keeps three to four weeks.

Frosted Spices.

One and one-half cups flour.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
Three-fourths cup sugar.
Two teaspoons cinnamon.
One teaspoon nutmeg.
One teaspoon allspice.
One-half teaspoon cloves.
Six tablespoons shortening.
One-half cup milk.
Two eggs.

Sift flour, baking powder, salt, sugar and spices together three times. Add melted shortening, milk and well-beaten eggs. Beat vigorously one minute. Drop into well-greased muffin pans. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees) 20 minutes. Top with swirls of boiled frosting. Makes about one dozen spices.

Christmas Circles.

One cup butter.
Two cups sugar.
Four eggs.
One teaspoon almond extract.
One teaspoon lemon extract.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One cup chopped blanched almonds.
Four cups flour.
One teaspoon cream of tartar.
One-quarter teaspoon salt.
One-half cup colored sugar or fine candies.

Cream butter, sugar. Add eggs, beat well. Add extracts, almonds, flour, cream of tartar, salt. Chill four hours. Roll out until one-eighth inch thick. Cut out circles and sprinkle with colored sugar. Bake seven minutes in moderate oven.

Date Delights.

Two-thirds cup butter.
Two cups dark brown sugar.
One teaspoon cinnamon.
One-half teaspoon cloves.
One-half teaspoon nutmeg.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One-quarter teaspoon salt.
Two eggs.
Three tablespoons cream.
Four cups flour.
One and one-half teaspoons baking powder.

Cream butter, sugar. Add rest of ingredients, mixing lightly. Chill dough overnight. Roll out dough until very thin. Cut out circles. On half cookies spread date mixture. Cover with other circles. Press edges together, using fork. Prick tops. Bake 12 minutes in moderate oven.

Date Filling.

One-half cup sugar.
Two tablespoons flour.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
One-cup cup orange juice.
One-half teaspoon lemon extract.
One-half cup chopped dates.
One-half cup nuts.
Two tablespoons butter.

Viking Cookies.

Two-thirds cup fat.
Two cups dark brown sugar.
Two eggs.
One-third cup grapejuice.
Two teaspoons cinnamon.
One teaspoon cloves.
One-quarter teaspoon salt.
Four and one-half cups flour.
One cup chopped dates.
One cup chopped figs.
One cup chopped raisins.
One-quarter cup chopped citron.
Two-thirds cup nuts.
One teaspoon soda.
One teaspoon vanilla.

TAPIOCA HELPS A SOUFFLE KEEP ITS STANDING

If you've never had luck with souffles you will have luck with this one because it uses a bit of tapioca to prevent its collapse in the oven and at table while it is being served.

Spicy Apple Souffle.

One-third cup quick-cooking tapioca; one-half cup sugar; ½ teaspoon salt; 2 cups milk; 2 tablespoons butter; one-quarter teaspoon cinnamon; one-eighth teaspoon nutmeg; one and a half tablespoon lemon juice; one cup grated raw apple; three egg yolks, beaten until thick and lemon-colored; three egg whites, stiffly beaten.

Combine quick-cooking tapioca, sugar, salt, and milk in top of double boiler. Place over rapidly boiling water, bring to scalding point (allow 3 to 5 minutes), and cook five minutes, stirring frequently. Add butter, spices, lemon juice, and apple. Cool slightly while beating eggs. Add egg yolks and mix well. Fold into egg whites. Turn into greased baking dish. Place in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 50 to 60 minutes, or until souffle is firm. Serve hot with whipped cream. Serves eight.

HEARTY SANDWICHES THAT INCLUDE APPLES ARE NEW TIP FOR HOSTESS

The best sandwiches offer contrast of textures in their component parts as well as pleasing combinations of colors and flavors. Paper thin slices of apples dipped in lemon juice or French dressing and tucked in meat, cheese or fruit sandwiches add a delightful, nippy crunch. Care must be taken in cutting the sandwiches so they can be eaten without coming apart. It is usually best to cut them diagonally to make four triangles of each whole slice sandwich.

Cold roast lamb, veal, pork or ham make good sandwiches with sliced apple. The meat should be carved in thin slices and two or three of these used for the sandwiches rather than one thicker slice. A few bruised mint leaves added to the lemon juice or French dressing in which the apple is marinated is good when the apple slices are to be used in lamb or veal sandwiches.

Raisins or pasteurized dates and chopped Brazil nuts mixed with salad dressing or mayonnaise to spread consistency is especially good when crisped with apple. Spread two slices of bread with the dried fruit and nut mixture. Place thin slices of apple between and cut the sandwiches diagonally in halves. The apples for these sandwiches will not need to be dipped in lemon juice or French dressing as the acid in the salad dressing or mayonnaise used for the filling will be sufficient to keep the apples from darkening.

For sandwiches when the fruit is to be minced for the filling the apples may be chopped and mixed in the filling.

To serve apple crisped sandwiches, use a large round salver or other sandwich plate. Heap well-polished good-looking apples in the center and arrange the sandwiches around the apples.

Cranberry Pie.

Two cups cranberries, coarsely chopped, one cup seeded raisins, four tablespoons flour, one cup sugar one-eighth teaspoon salt, two tablespoons butter, rich pastry. Mix cranberries and raisins. Add flour, sugar and salt. Line pie pan with rich pastry, and fill with the cranberry mixture. Dot with small bits of butter. Lay strips of pastry crisscross over top of pie. Press edges together and trim pastry. Bake in a quick oven (425 degrees Fahrenheit) 10 minutes. Reduce heat (375 degrees) 25 minutes.

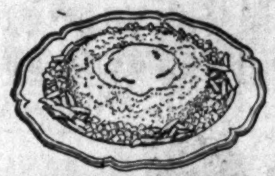
BUTTER FOR DELICIOUSNESS

FOODS that are good for us are not always among our favorites, but every one likes butter. Not only in food but with food. Piping hot biscuits, Southern spoon bread, crisp toast, in short, many of our most delectable dishes depend on butter to supply the important finishing touch. And by butter I mean PEVELY Butter!

Here are two unusual recipes featuring the use of butter. Each has been tried, tested and found to be perfect.



CABBAGE RING SOUFFLE Filled with Never-Fail HOLLANDAISE SAUCE

Cut up and boil medium sized cabbage in salted water. When tender, drain and chop fine, using 4 cupfuls. Season with 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper. Add 3 tablespoons Pevely Cream. Beat 6 egg whites until very stiff. Add to the cabbage and place mixture in a well buttered 8-inch ring mold. Set in pan of hot water and bake about 25 minutes in 350° F. oven until firm. Turn cabbage ring onto round platter and garnish with buttered carrots and string beans in alternate piles around it. Fill center with following:

2 sticks Pevely Butter
6 egg yolks
Strained juice of 1 lemon
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Break butter into pieces. Place in yellow bowl. Add unbeaten egg yolks. Place bowl over boiling water in bottom of double boiler. Stir until mixture reaches desired consistency. Remove from stove and add lemon juice and seasonings and beat just a minute with Dover egg beater. Set aside until ready to use.

If mixture should curdle, add ¼ cup Pevely Cream (or more) a little at a time, beating with Dover egg beater. Cabbage Ring and Sauce serves 8.

BUTTERSCOTCH BISCUITS

2 cups sifted flour
5 level teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
4 level tablespoons Pevely Butter
½ cup Pevely Milk

Resift flour with baking powder and salt. Cut butter into dry ingredients until mixture is consistency of coarse corn meal. Stir in milk as quickly as possible. Roll to quarter-inch thickness and spread with one-third cup butter which has been creamed with three-quarters cup brown sugar.

Roll up like jelly roll. Cut off pieces one-inch thick. Put in small greased muffin pans and bake 15 to 20 minutes in 400° F. oven. Yield: Twelve 1½-inch biscuits.

AND speaking of butter, the fine churn-fresh flavor of Pevely's Butter makes it the favorite of thousands of St. Louis women. Pevely is offering a new butter cover dish that takes one stick at a time and keeps it firm and fresh. The base is of amber crystal glass, the tight-fitting cover of clear crystal glass. This novel dish costs only 19c with two one-lb. empty Pevely Butter cartons. Order from your Pevelyman or grocer or phone me at GRand 4400.

ICE CREAM

Ivory Frosting.

Two egg whites, unbeaten; one-quarter cup of brown sugar, firmly packed; one and one-quarter cups of granulated sugar, five tablespoons of water, one teaspoon of vanilla.

Combine egg whites, sugars and water in the top of a double boiler, beating with a rotary egg-beater until thoroughly mixed. Place over rapidly boiling water, beat constantly with a rotary egg-beater, and cook seven minutes, or until the frosting will stand in peaks. Remove from the boiling water; add vanilla and beat until thick enough to spread. Makes enough frosting to cover two nine-inch layers generously.

Cheese melted in the sauce of creamed chipped beef is a good addition.

HE MADE A TEN-YEAR TEST WITH ALL-BRAN

Say good-bye to the headaches, the low spirits, the sleeplessness that often follow common constipation. Just read this letter:

"In 1926, I started using ALL-BRAN. And now, after ten years, during which I have put Kellogg's ALL-BRAN to a long, hard test, I am writing you this letter. It is better to eat this food and be in condition, than to resort to laxatives." —Bernard Altman, 63 Goodale Road, Mattapan, Mass.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will help you too. Its "bulk" absorbs moisture within the body, forms a soft mass, gently cleanses the system. Tests prove it is safe and effective.

ALL-BRAN is guaranteed. Try it a week. If not satisfactory, your money will be refunded by the Kellogg Company.

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily. Either as a cereal, or in recipes. How much better to use this food than to take patent medicines. Buy ALL-BRAN at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

A finer shortening... in money-saving cartons!

The Vegetable fat in Jewel is given remarkable shortening properties through Swift's special blending of it with other bland cooking fats. Jewel actually gives better results than the costliest types of plain all-vegetable shortening.

JEWEL SPECIAL-BLEND MAKES MORE TENDER BAKED FOODS; CREAMS FASTER, TOO!

Memphis Muffins
Mrs. E. J. Schoolar, Memphis, Tenn.

Sift together 1 c. flour, 4 tsps. baking powder, ¾ tsp. salt and 2 tbsps. sugar. Mix in 1 c. graham flour. Melt 4 tbsps. Jewel, the famous southern Special-Blend Shortening. Add a beaten egg and 1 c. milk. Combine liquid and dry ingredients, stirring only enough to blend. Place a spoonful of batter, a scant tsp. of tart jelly, and another spoonful of batter in each greased muffin pan. Bake in a hot oven (450°) for about 25 minutes. (12 muffins) When you taste these delicious, extra-tender muffins, you'll understand perfectly why fine cooks throughout the South have long preferred Jewel Special-Blend even to the costliest shortenings.

CHRISTMAS COOKIES IN ORDER NOW

Make Them Now and Store Them in Tight Tin Boxes For Holidays.

Christmas wouldn't be Christmas without an interesting assortment of cookies on hand to pack in attractive boxes as gifts, offer the holiday caller, or simply indulge the family sweet-tooth. In some households, Christmas cooky-making is a rite requiring much preparation and labor, but few of us are willing to give much time to elaboration when there are so many excellent recipes available for quickly made refrigerator and drop cookies. These are just as well liked as types involving laborious processes and many variations of a good basic recipe are possible.

Holiday Cookies.

Two cups brown sugar.
One cup butter.
Two eggs.
Two and one-half cups flour.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
One teaspoon soda.
One cup nutmeats, chopped.

Cream butter and sugar. Add the well-beaten eggs. Sift flour with baking powder and soda. Combine all ingredients. Make into a roll, wrap in cloth or waxed paper and put into refrigerator. Slice thinly when chilled and bake as needed in a hot oven (400 degrees) 12 to 15 minutes.

Spice Bars.

One-half cup butter or other shortening.
One cup light brown sugar, packed.
Two cups flour.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
One teaspoon cinnamon.
One teaspoon allspice.
Two eggs.
One-half cup milk.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One-half cup broken nut meats.
One-half cup raisins or chopped dates.
One-fourth cup shredded citron, lemon or orange peel.

Blend first six ingredients to consistency of coarse cornmeal. Reserve two-third cup of the mixture. Add other ingredients to butter mixture in order given. Pour batter to thickness of one-half-inch into greased and floured pan. Cover with the reserved sugar mixture. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 25 minutes. Cool in the pan. Cut in uniform bars. Roll in powdered sugar. Yields: 36 bars, 3x1½ inches.

Nut Queens.

One-half cup butter or other shortening.
One cup sugar.
Two eggs.
One teaspoon vanilla.
Two cups flour.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
Two teaspoons baking powder.

Cream butter and sugar very light. Add two egg yolks and one white which have been well beaten. Sift baking powder, salt and flour together three times. Add vanilla. Mix to stiff batter. Spread in greased floured layer pan (9x11x2). Cover with the following mixture:

One-half cup broken nut meats.
One-half cup brown sugar.
One egg white.
One teaspoon vanilla.

Beat remaining egg white stiff, fold in sugar and nuts, add flavoring. Spread over batter. Bake 40 minutes in slow oven (325 degrees). Cool in pan. Cut in blocks 2x1½ inches. Yield: 36 cookies.

Twinzies.

Two squares unsweetened chocolate.
One-half cup butter.
One-half cup sugar.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One-half teaspoon cinnamon.
Two eggs.
Two and one-half cups flour.
Two teaspoons boiling water.
One-fourth cup milk.

Melt chocolate with butter. Remove from fire, add sugar, stir until smooth. Add vanilla. Add eggs, one at a time, and beat vigorously. Sift baking powder, cinnamon and flour together three times. Add flour to chocolate mixture, alternating with milk. Mix to a stiff dough. Place in refrigerator, chill thoroughly. Roll one-fourth-inch thick, cut with small round cutter. Place on greased sheet. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 15 to 18 minutes. Remove from sheet at once. Cool. Put two cookies together with filling made as follows:

Two tablespoons butter.
One cup confectioners' sugar.
One teaspoon vanilla.

Cream butter, add vanilla and sugar and mix until of good consistency to spread. Hot water may be added to thin the mixture if necessary for softening. Yield: 36 small cookies.

Hermits.

One and one-half cups light brown sugar, packed.
One cup butter or other shortening.
Three eggs.
One-half cup milk.
Two and one-half cups soft wheat flour.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
One-half teaspoon nutmeg.
One-half teaspoon cloves.
One teaspoon cinnamon.
One teaspoon allspice.
One teaspoon cocoa.
One and one-half cups raisins or currants.
One cup broken nut meats.

Cream butter and sugar until very light. Add well-beaten eggs. Sift spices, baking powder and flour together three times. Mix nuts and fruit with flour, add alternately with milk and butter mixture. Add flavoring. Mix to a smooth batter. Drop from teaspoon on greased baking sheet, allowing two inches space between cookies as the batter spreads in the oven. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 25 minutes. Yield: 60 cookies.

THIS TRADITIONAL PLUM PUDDING DATES BACK TO 1832

HERE is a traditional plum pudding, at least, it goes back to 1832.

Plum Pudding.

"Suet, chopped fine, six ounces; malaga raisins, stoned; six ounces; currants, nicely washed and picked, eight ounces; bread crumbs, three ounces; flour, three ounces; eggs, three; sixth of a nutmeg; small blade of mace; same quantity of cinnamon; pounded as fine as possible; half a teaspoon salt: scant half pint of milk; sugar, four ounces; to which may be added, candied lemon, one ounce; citron, half an ounce.

Beat the eggs and spices well together; mix the milk with them by degrees, then the rest of the ingredients; dip a fine close linen cloth in boiling water and put it in a hair-sieve; flour it a little and tie it up close; put it into a saucepan containing six quarts of boiling water; keep a kettle of boiling water alongside of it and fill up your pot as it wastes; be sure to keep it boiling six hours at least."

The pudding, of course, is turned into a floured cloth which is tied up and then taken out of the sieve.

DINNER SALAD

One small head lettuce.
One-half bunch watercress.
One-third cupful diced celery.
One cupful red cabbage, shredded.
One pimiento, minced.
Two carrots, grated.
One-half cupful French dressing.

Arrange lettuce leaves in bowl. Sprinkle with remaining vegetables, grating the carrots on last. Pour over the dressing and mix thoroughly at the table before serving with a salad fork and spoon.

A Cleaning Note.

Highly enameled surfaces should be wiped with a soft cloth wrung out of tepid water. A small quantity of neutral white soap solution in the water can be used if there are fingermarks or other grease spots, but do not use a strong soap, for alkalis are ruinous.

THIS RECIPE FOLLOWS GOOD SWEDISH TRADITION

With Swedish art gaining in pouplarity there is no reason why Swedish cooking should lag. Here is a recipe that is worthy of the culinary tradition of the country.

Swedish Tea Rolls.

Two cups sifted flour.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-half cup butter or other shortening.
Two-thirds cup milk.
One-third cup sugar.
One teaspoon cinnamon.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Cut in shortening; add milk all at once and stir carefully until all flour is dampened. Then stir vigorously until mixture forms a soft dough and follows spoon around bowl. Turn out immediately on slightly floured board and knead 30 seconds. Roll one-fourth inch thick. Cut in two and one-half inch squares. Fold each square in half and press cut edges into mixture of sugar and cinnamon. Sprinkle thickly with more sugar and cinnamon. Place on ungreased baking sheet and bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) 15 minutes. Makes 15 to 18 rolls.

COFFEE COCOANUT CREAM

Three-fourths tablespoon plain gelatin
One-fourth cup cold water.
One egg
One-half cup brown sugar
Three-fourths cup strong hot coffee
One teaspoon butter
One-half cup cream, whipped
One-half cup canned cocoanut.

Soak gelatin in cold water. Make custard of egg yolk, brown sugar and hot coffee by blending egg and sugar, adding the coffee gradually, and cooking over hot water, stirring constantly, until mixture will coat spoon. Add butter, pour over softened gelatine, stir until dissolved; cool. When mixture begins to congeal, fold in the stiffly beaten egg white and the cream and cocoanut. Serve very cold, piled in glasses, with additional whipped cream on top if desired. Serves eight.

CHOCOLATE SPICE SQUARES

One-quarter cup butter.
One cup sugar.
Two eggs.
One-half cup boiling water.
Two squares bitter chocolate (melted over hot water).
One-half teaspoon soda.
One and one-half cups sifted flour.
One and one-half teaspoons baking powder.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-half cup sour milk.
One-quarter cup apple butter.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One-half cup nutmeats (black walnuts or pecans).

Cream butter, add sugar gradually and cream thoroughly. Add eggs and beat after addition of each until mixture is light and fluffy. Pour boiling water into chocolate and mix quickly, then add soda and stir until thick. Cool until lukewarm. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together; add to butter mixture alternately with milk and apple butter which have been well blended. Add vanilla and nut meats. Add chocolate and mix thoroughly. Pour into a shallow greased pan 8x12 inches, the bottom of which has been lined with waxed paper. Bake in a moderately slow oven (350 degrees) for 25 minutes. Cool and frost with a fluffy white frosting. Cut into small squares.

OYSTER FRITTERS

One and one-half cups oysters.
Two eggs.
One cup milk.
Two cups flour.
Two teaspoons baking powder.
One-half teaspoon salt.

Chop the oysters. Make a batter of the eggs, milk, flour, baking powder and salt. Stir the oysters into the batter and drop by spoonfuls into deep hot fat (360 to 370 degrees).

Stuffed Tomatoes.

Choose small tomatoes and allow two for each person to be served. Scald them and then dip into very cold water. The skins will slip off. Scoop out the centers and sprinkle the inside with salt. Invert on a plate, cover and chill several hours. Fill with salad mixture.

MINTED PRUNES

Water.
Three or four sticks of cinnamon.
One teaspoon whole cloves.
One cup liquid in which prunes were cooked.
One-half cup vinegar.
One cup brown sugar (packed).
Ten to 12 drops oil of peppermint.

Rinse prunes, cover generously with water, add cinnamon and cloves and boil one hour. Drain off liquid (if there is less than one cup, add water to make cupful). Combine prune liquid, vinegar, sugar and bring to a boil. Add prunes and boil five minutes; add peppermint and continue boiling five minutes.

Makes about one and one-half pints.

CHUTNEY FRENCH DRESSING

One-quarter cupful sweet pickle vinegar.
One-quarter cupful lemon juice.
One teaspoonful salt.
One-half teaspoonful dry mustard.
Two teaspoonfuls granulated sugar.
One-half teaspoonful onion juice.
One-half teaspoonful Worcestershire sauce.
Two tablespoonfuls chutney.
One cupful salad oil.
Few drops tabasco sauce.

Combine ingredients, blend thoroughly and chill. Shake before serving.

SWEET POTATO COCOANUT PIE

One cup cocoanut.
One-half cup sugar.
One-half cup brown sugar, firmly packed.
One tablespoon flour.

Fruit Nut Filling.

One-third cup of chopped dates, one-third cup of chopped raisins, three-quarters cup of sugar, one cup of water, one-third cup of broken walnut meats, one tablespoon of lemon juice, one teaspoon of grated lemon rind. Combine dates, raisins, sugar and water in saucepan. Cook over low flame 15 minutes or until thick enough to spread, stirring constantly. Cool; add nuts, lemon juice and rind. Chill before spreading. NORTH, East, South and West there are "bean-hungry" men looking for their favorite dish. Some like 'em with tomato sauce, some with pork and a benediction of molasses. And with many, sweet-sauced kidney beans are a "red-hot" favorite.

All are agreed on one thing. They like their beans "really oven-baked", not just steamed or boiled. And that's the way Heinz bakes them—through and through in hot, dry ovens to bring out every particle of flavor from mealy, plump, hand-selected beans.

So, let your men-folk vote! Four husky candidates from Heinz provide a sure-fire way to please. Call your grocer today.

1 Oven-Baked Beans with Pork, Boston-Style. The beans of Pilgrim days. Rich with tradition and a luscious molasses sauce. Plump, tender chunks of pork, too.
2 Oven-Baked Beans with Pork and Tomato Sauce. These come flavored with selected pork and a delicious tomato sauce. All the rich, nutty flavor of the best home-baked beans is retained.
3 Oven-Baked Beans in Tomato Sauce without Meat—Vegetarian. Pure, delicious baked-bean goodness and nutrient value without meat of any kind. You'll like them hot or cold.
4 Oven-Baked Red Kidney Beans. Kidney beans—rotund red ones richly flavored with a sauce all their own. A deliciously different vegetable for dinner.

ON THE Promise-to-Pay Plan
ARE AS SIMPLE AS THEY ARE REVOLUTIONARY

So unbelievably simple that many refuse to believe that we actually loan money—as much as $300 in cash—with no security whatsoever except our faith in your promise-to-pay. Any single person or married couple who can make regular payments can borrow on just a plain note without any mortgages, endorsers, or wage assignments. If you have any doubts—check our reputation the past fifty years and see if we do not back up what we say. Better still, stop in at our office and make us prove it! COMPLETE VOTE GIVES ROOSEVELT 11 MILLION LEAD

President Polled Nearly 5,000,000 More Than in 1932—Plurality a Record by 2,000,000.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Final returns from the presidential election, official in every State save one, showed today that the record-breaking total vote was 45,812,155. The record Roosevelt plurality was 11,069,699. His plurality in 1932 was 7,060,016.

Only in Rhode Island, where litigation has kept the voting machines under lock, has no official count been made. Including the complete unofficial figures for that State, the totals are:

Roosevelt	27,751,612
Landon	16,681,913
Others	1,378,630
Lemke (Union)	891,858
Thomas (Socialist)	187,342
Browder (Communist)	80,181
Colvin (Prohibition)	37,609
Aiken (Social-Labor)	12,729
Scattering and void	168,911

In percentages, as compared with 1932:

	1936.	1932.
Democratic	60.7	57.3
Republican	36.4	39.6
Others	2.9	3.1

The total was almost 6,000,000 more than was ever cast at a previous election. Roosevelt received almost 5,000,000 more votes than he did in 1932, when he got 22,821,857.

Landon, however, received the second largest vote ever given a Republican ticket. Hoover and Curtis received 21,392,190 in 1928 and 15,761,841 in 1932.

Roosevelt's plurality was almost 2,000,000 more than the total which elected Wilson in 1916. It exceeded the total vote given any Democratic nominee prior to Alfred E. Smith's 15,000,000 in 1928.

The Union Party candidate, Representative William Lemke, polled less than a quarter of the votes received in the third party totals of Theodore Roosevelt in 1912 and Robert M. LaFollette in 1924.

All minor parties showed declines this year. The best comparative showing was made by the Communist candidate, Earl W. Browder, who got three-fourths as many votes as the party polled in 1932.

The Socialists, with Norman Thomas as standard-bearer, dropped to fourth place after running third in 1932. This year they polled slightly more than a fifth as many votes as they did in 1932.

$92,600 GRANT BY PWA FOR NEGRO HOSPITAL EQUIPMENT

$70,000 More To Be Advanced for Negro Community Center on Gamble Street.

Mayor Dickmann was notified yesterday that the PWA had approved an additional grant of $92,600 for equipment for the new Homer G. Phillips Hospital for the Colored, now under construction at Kennerly and Goode avenues and scheduled to be completed in February. A total of about $270,000 already has been alloted by the PWA for the hospital.

Also the Mayor was notified that the PWA would grant an additional $70,000 for construction of another Negro community center in the 2900 block of Gamble street. Total cost of the building has been estimated at $156,000. One Negro community center is now under construction near Vashon High School at Compton and Market streets and plans have been completed for a second at Tandy Park, in the 2600 block of Goode avenue.

DEATH SENTENCE FOR WOMAN AFFIRMED BY ILLINOIS COURT

Execution of Mrs. Mildred Bolton, Who Killed Husband, Set for Feb. 26.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 10.—The Illinois Supreme Court today affirmed the death sentence of Mrs. Mildred Bolton of Chicago for the murder last summer of her husband, Joseph W. Bolton Jr.

The Court fixed the date of execution as Feb. 26.

The Court found the killing of Bolton was "deliberately planned." Mrs. Bolton had gone to his office for a temporary alimony payment.

"This Court will not hesitate to uphold the death penalty, even though she be a woman," said the opinion by Justice Orr.

WEIR SAYS LOW INCOMES DESERVE MORE ATTENTION

Steel Man Asserts Any Increase Would Result at Once in Demands for Goods.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—E. T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corporation, suggested last night that industry give more attention to low-income groups "because any increase of income in these groups would be largely and quickly converted into increased demands for goods, increased production and increased total wealth."

Weir told 2000 of the country's business leaders, attending the congress of American industry, that industry must undertake a "constructive program" to solve the problems arising out of the depression and that one of the first steps must be to increase "real income."

He said attention must be given not only to increasing the total national income, but to "distribution of the increase through the whole population." Industry, he declared, also must seek to "improve its relations with the public" by making its aims understood.

FORMER MAYOR MILLER LIVING IN KANSAS CITY

Making Home With Mother, Health Improved But Not Practicing Law.

Victor J. Miller, who was Mayor of St. Louis from 1925 to 1933, is now living at 3236 East Twenty-ninth street, Kansas City, friends in St. Louis learned today. He is making his home with his mother, Mrs. Julius Miller, formerly of Joplin.

While much improved in health, according to those who have seen him in the last few months, the former Mayor has not undertaken to engage in law practice or resume political activity. Dr. Max C. Starkloff, former Health Commissioner, who saw Miller in September, said he showed marked improvement, as compared with his condition early in 1933, when he left St. Louis before the end of his second term as Mayor, and stayed first at a resort on Long Island Sound, then in Florida. His malady was diagnosed as paresis.

Mrs. Miller obtained a divorce in Miami in October, 1934, and was married soon afterward to Leonard C. Schofield, Chicago grain broker. Before the divorce, Miller went to the home of his brother, Julius C. Miller, in Owensboro, Ky., where he remained more than a year. He spent last summer at a Michigan resort, and was in St. Louis in September, but saw few of his former political associates.

ARMY, NAVY BOARD OFFERS INDUSTRIAL PLAN FOR WARTIME

The legislative recommendations in the plan embrace many features of the anti-war profits bill presented last year by the Senate Munitions Committee and reported favorably by the Senate Finance Committee.

Statement by Board.

The Army and Navy Munitions Board, which prepared the plan, said:

"The objective of any warring nation is victory, immediate and complete. It is conceivable that a war might be conducted with such great regard for individual justice and administrative efficiency as to make impossible those evils whose existence in past wars is well known.

"It is also conceivable that the outcome of a war so conducted might be defeat.

"The measures adopted must be such as to minimize damaging effects of sudden changes in industrial activity and to maintain an approximate economic equilibrium throughout the nation.

"Individual speculation must be opposed. There must be no competitive efforts among Government purchasing agencies to secure materials or the output of facilities the availability of which has been found to be inadequate for the supply of military requirements or where competitive efforts would be detrimental to the Government's interests."

An another point, the report said: "The support of public opinion is so essential that anything that may appeal to the majority of the people as unnecessary, unfair or unjust cannot be permitted in the plans. The economic burden of war must be equitably distributed.

"This entails a proper control of prices, a problem that must be solved if profiteering is to be prevented and the cost of the war kept to the minimum."

der the Townsend plan, "10 per cent of the people would receive half of the national income from the labor of the other 90 per cent."

Asserting "at least a million dollars" was collected by the Townsend organization, the committee said Townsend received between $52,000 and $53,000 in salaries, dividends and profits from his connection with the movement up to April 1, 1936.

Robert E. Clements, co-founder of the organization who resigned during the inquiry, made about $79,000 from the movement in a little over a year, the committee said. In addition, the report continued, living expenses of both men were paid.

"Large Profits."

"Some of the leaders of the Townsend movement, aside from Dr. Townsend and Mr. Clements, were men of notoriously bad character and records," the report said, "and most of the key men in the movement were making large profits out of it together with receiving their living expenses on a lavish scale."

Tolan, in his minority report, said he felt Townsend was "sincere and honest" and that the record disclosed he "never intended and actually did not profit personally by the Townsend movement." Tolan offered testimony he said proved that Townsend had turned back to the organization most of his salary and dividends.

STOCKS FIRM; COPPERS AND STEELS LEAD BRISK RALLY

Settlement of England's "Constitutional" Crisis With Abdication of the King Is Followed by Active Trade Period.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—With England's royal alliance controversy apparently settled with abdication of the King, the stock market today shook off his apathy and had a sharp rally.

Led by the steels and coppers, numerous issues pushed up fractions to 2 or more points. There was a little late selling but most of the favorites closed near their tops of the day. Transfers were around 2,350,000 shares.

The list dallied in a rather restricted range until the announcement Edward had renounced his throne. A buying rush immediately got under way with such momentum the ticker tape, for about half an hour, was a much as three minutes behind floor transactions.

There was a slowing down later, accompanied by some offerings in the most pronounced gainers. Early advances were reduced in many instances, but the leaders gave ground grudgingly. Prices again stiffened after noon and the pace quickened near the finish.

In addition to the lessening of tension over Britain's martimonial crisis, brokers thought the steady flow of optimistic domestic business news had much to do with inspiring the recovery.

Securities at London moved up substantially while the Paris Bourse was unsettled. With the exception of U. S. Governments, bonds improved. Wheat at Chicago was down ½ cent a bushel to up as much. Corn was off 1⅛ to ¼c higher. Cotton exhibited strength. European currencies were up in terms of the dollar.

Outstanding shares on the forward sortie included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Gulf States Steel, A. M. Byers, American Rolling Mill, Chrysler, General Motors, Deere, International Harvester, J. I. Case, Anaconda, Kennecott, International Nickel, Dome Mines, Phelps Dodge, McIntyre Porcupine, Westinghouse, U. S. Rubber, Goodrich, Pullman, International Hydro-Electric, General Railway Signal, Southern Railway, Houston Oil, Great Northern, Loew's, Newport Industries, International Paper & Power, U. S. Realty, Barber Co., Johns-Manville and Holland Furnace.

A trifle hesitant were Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Consolidated Edison, National Distillers, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, North American, Standard Oil of New Jersey, American Can, N. Y. Central and Pennsylvania.

News of the Day.

Merger of Motor Products and Briggs Mfg., long discussed in the financial sector, brought out no great amount of either company's stock. Both issues were small fractions ahead at one time.

Although carrier shares lost some of their buoyancy of Wednesday, they were still watched closely, in view of the opening of Interstate Commerce hearings on extension of emergency freight rates. A supporting influence also were estimates that New York Central's 1936 earnings may be the best since 1930.

So-called lower-priced utilities were unusually lively, apparently responding to expanding electric power consumption and the likelihood some of the concerns in this line, despite prospects of more rate regulation, may reveal excellent profits statements during the coming year.

With a strong export market for copper and a rise in zinc prices, some of the mining issues came to the fore. Better action of the steels reflected belated appreciation of the high operating rate prevailing in this industry. U. S. Steel announced the highest November shipments since 1929.

An upward tilt was shown in the last hour by Texas Pacific Land Trust, Walworth, Foster-Wheeler, Allied Chemical, Woolworth and Bigelow-Sanford Carpet. Under pressure were Allegheny Corp. shares with declines of fractions to 3 or so.

Sterling, at mid-afternoon, was up ⅞ of a cent at $4.90⅞, and the French franc was up .00⅜ of a cent at 4.66½ cents.

Overnight Developments.

Among other cheering market items was the report of the Federal Reserve Board disclosing department store sales in November were the largest in five years. Hopes that December volumes will at least equal those of the same 1930 month were expressed, but some observers thought the margin of increase over last year might be narrowed considerably.

Recent activity of preferred stocks was noted in the boardrooms. Revived popularity of these issues was attributed partly to the clearing up of arrears on senior shares by a number of companies and the belief other corporations will soon follow suit.

A reduction of 4,000,000,000 francs in the gold holdings of the Bank of France was explained by the repayment to Great Britain of a £20,000,000 loan.

FINANCIAL BAROMETER.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Rising sharply in the latest week, total loans and investments of Federal Reserve member banks in leading centers mirrored substantial increases in loans to business and securities owned other than Federal Government. Advances to industry measured the upturn in activity, financial circles said, while the boost in "other" securities was accounted for by a New York State note issue.

Loans and investments of reporting members in 101 cities, according to the Federal Reserve Board, compared as follows:

Week ended Dec. 2.	$22,459,000,000
Previous week	22,401,000,000
Same period last year	20,518,000,000

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The stock market closed strong prior to the official announcement of the King's abdication, traders having seemed to discount the development. Confidence in Government securities was reflected by a steady tone in the gilt-edged division. War loan bonds rallied after early weakness and oil and mining shares also moved higher. Rubber shares and home rails sold lower and European bonds remained steady. Trans-Atlantic issues advanced in price and Courtaulds was a strong stock in the textile group.

PARIS, Dec. 10.—The bourse closed with a mixed tone, rentes advancing 20 to 40 centimes. Railroad stocks rose sharply and banking securities were also in demand. Royal Dutch and Canadian Pacific sold above yesterday's close.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 10.—Wheat futures gained 1⅜d to 1⅞d in a firm market. Italy purchased six cargoes of Argentine wheat and a good milling demand came from the United Kingdom.

Local and Bombay buying of cotton was attracted by American reports of the continuance of the soil conservation plan. Prices finished 2 to 4 points higher.

Elected to Bank Board.

Charles M. Day, vice-president of Hickman, Williams & Co. and secretary and treasurer of the Valley Dolomite Corporation, has been elected to the board of directors of the Security National Bank. He succeeds the late Joseph W. Lewis.

GRAIN MARKET CLOSES MIXED AFTER UPTURN

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—In late dealings today, wheat got as high here as $1.29¾ a bushel December delivery, but as on preceding upswings reacted because of profit-taking.

Persistent demand for wheat to be shipped to importing countries furnished the chief incentive for market upturns. Canadian wheat export business today was estimated to total 500,000 bushels.

All grains reached new peak prices in forenoon today, with wheat climbing about 1½ cents a bushel.

At the close wheat was ½c lower to ½c higher, compared with yesterday's finish; December $1.28⅜@1.28½, May $1.23⅞@1.24; corn 1⅛c down to ¼c up, December $1.09⅝@1.09¾, May new $1.03⅜@1.03½; oats unchanged to ¼c off, and provisions unchanged to 22c higher.

The fact that Italy was reported continuing to buy wheat, and that season's high price records were overtopped at Liverpool did much to stimulate increased buying here on declines. Selling orders became more numerous after advances, however, and top prices showing one cent overnight gain were followed by reactions to but little above yesterday's finish. Speculitive trading, taking as a whole, lacked the volume which recently prevailed.

Temporarily, Chicago December wheat contracts sold at 1.29 a bushel, the highest price for any future here since 1929. Simultaneous with this achievement, May wheat reached $1.25, these upturns took place paralleling an advance of securities that accompanied announcement of British Governmental changes. Considerable wheat buying was attributed to houses with eastern connections.

Corn, oats, rye and provisions developed a general upward trend of prices when wheat values mounted.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 40,577,000 bushels, corn 7,327,000. Open interest in wheat was 94,932,000 bushels, and in corn 52,313,000.

Local wheat receipts, which were 30,400 bu., compared with 24,000 a week ago and 3000 a year ago included six cars local, and 13 through. Corn receipts, which were 54,400 bu., compared with 99,000 a week ago and 42,000 a year ago included 33 cars local and one through. Oats receipts which were 24,000 bu., compared with 24,000 a week ago and 26,000 a year ago, included 12 cars local. Hay receipts were two cars local.

COTTON MARKET CLOSES 12 TO 21 POINTS HIGHER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Further advances of 14 to 17 points in cotton today on active trade, foreign and commission house buying carried all crop deliveries above the 12-cent level. Heavy realizing caused partial reactions, but prices maintained part of their gains in mid-afternoon, when the market held 6 to 14 points net higher. March, which rallied from 12.26 to 12.39, sold at 12.33.

Futures closed very steady, 12 to 21 higher. December, 12.66@67; January, 12.40; March, 12.38; May, 12.24@25; July, 12.07@08; October, 11.64@65. Spot steady; middling, 12.98.

Later in the morning prices advanced further as other markets rose with the removal of some of the uncertainties in the British situation. New speculative buying continued. Mill covering was also more active on the advance which carried prices up to net gains of 14 to 17 points with March selling at 12.39c and July 12.07c. Heavy realizing at the highs caused reactions of 1 to 4 points and the market at mid-day was 10 to 15 points net higher.

December opened 12.56; Jan., 12.30; Mar., 12.27; May, 12.13; July, 11.98; Oct., 11.50.

The demand was fairly general and was believed to reflect a rather favorable overnight view of the 1937 soil conservation plan as it applies to cotton.

Late months were in demand and December also was firm on covering by trade shorts with but one December notice issued. Further rallies to new highs, however, attracted increased profit-taking and some hedge selling. July advanced to within a point of the 12-cent mark. These offerings were quite readily taken on reactions of few points from the best, however, and the undertone held firm.

March advanced from 12.26 to 12.31 and was 12.30 at the end of the first hour with prices generally 3 to 7 points net higher.

Liverpool was a good buyer here but some realizing was credited to continental sources.

HULL EXPLAINS HIS NEUTRALITY PROPOSAL

Says It Wouldn't Affect Exports to Europe—Moves Neither Way on Sanctions.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 10.—Secretary of State Cordell Hull, head of the United States delegation to the inter-American peace conference, issued a statement last night, emphasizing the scope of his neutrality proposal was "continental and not world-wide."

The statement was made after conversations seeming to harmonize the Argentine non-isolationist view of neutrality with proposals by the United States and Brazil.

"The American republics would only be called upon under the proposal to consult through the suggested committee when the peace and safety of one or more of the nations of this continent is involved," Hull said.

"I may say further that it neither moves in the direction nor away from sanctions. It does not in any way affect exports from this hemisphere to other countries, either in time of peace or in time of war."

Under the Argentine theory, it was understood, inter-American consultative machinery would be created to act in case of outside aggression against any American nation or any aggression within the Americas.

The conference's Committe on Peace Organization unanimously approved today a United States resolution urging favorable action by all nations which have not completed ratification of five existing inter-American peace treaties. Secretary Hull presented the proposal, which was expected to be adopted by the full conference early next week. The five accords provide for outlawry of aggression and the peaceful settlement of international American disputes.

The resolution as approved with Chilean and Peruvian amendments urges ratification not only of those pacts, but also of a plan for bilateral conciliation commissions adopted by the Montevideo Pan-American Conference in 1933 and recommendations of that parley for inter-American bilateral trade treaties and opposing increases in trade barriers.

German Foreign Office Praises United States Peace Proposal.

BERLIN, Dec. 10.—The German Foreign Office, through its publication, the Deutsche Diplomatische Politische Korrespondenz, declared last night the United States' peace plan introduced at Buenos Aires was superior to the League of Nations' methods for safeguarding peace.

"While peace preservation theories grown on Geneva soil lose themselves in the organization of war against war—in the compulsion toward collective war and thus toward the automatic spreading of war—America begins with the idea of peaceful arbitration," the publication said.

"Beyond this, however, Hull (Secretary of State Cordell Hull) has enunciated the idea that neutrality is to be valued as fundamentally positive—namely, a powerful means for averting war."

This conception, the paper said, is diametrically opposed to what it called the Geneva theory of neutrality as something "synonymous with neglect of duty toward the community of nations."

It said recent proposals for strengthening Article 16 (the sanctions article) of the League Covenant would "make it impossible for any state to remain out of war."

RECOUNT OF COMMITTEEMAN BALLOTS FROM 26TH WARD

A recount of the ballots cast for Democratic City Committeeman of the Twenty-sixth Ward, in the primary election Aug. 4, was started today by the Board of Election Commissioners, on order of the Circuit Court.

Charles J. Hunt, defeated for re-election as committeeman by John B. Sullivan by a vote of 2645 to 2528 in the official count, is contesting Sullivan's election, alleging irregularities in the counting of the ballots and asserting that a correct count would have resulted in his re-election.

This was the second recount made by the Election Board in connection with election contests arising from the August primary, the first being in a contest filed by Hendy J. Phelan, defeated for Democratic City Committeeman of the Thirteenth Ward by James H. Stewart, incumbent, on the basis of official returns. The recount apparently reversed the official count and made Phelan the winner, but the final outcome will be determined by the Circuit Court.

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU—By BOB BURNS

WHEN you hear me makin' lighthearted remarks about my kinfolks, you little dream that I secretly yearn for refined, cultured kinfolks. I'll never fergit how proud I was of my Cousin Fabian when he visited me. When he once got in the library, I never could git him out. He stayed in there, pourin' over them books at night, long after everybody else was asleep. I was so proud of him that I invited a lot of company to the house, so I could tell 'em that my cousin was in the library. This kept up for two months till it was time for him to go back home. Jest before he left, I says, "Fabian, I sure am proud of you and I'm awfully glad you enjoyed my books so much." Fabian says "Yes, I sure had a good time with 'em, but there's jest one thing I want to know." I says "Whats that?" And he says "When you 'read them dern things, what do you read—the black or white?"

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By Martha Carr

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I WISH to quit school, because I am low in my grades. I am only 13 years old and I don't learn anything.

My people are mean to me and don't allow me to go out. I know some boys and they have asked me for dates. I have a promise of a job taking care of children. Will you please tell me if I can quit school and go to work? SUE.

You must try to understand that when you are low in your grades, it is the worst time in the world to quit school. That is what is known as being "cowardly under fire," as they would tell you in the army. Before you even think of giving up, try just as hard as you can to study and work; so that it will not be said among your schoolmates and by the teachers that you are not smart enough or sensible enough to learn. If you leave now and let people see that you are both lazy and ignorant, the story will follow you as long as you live. You will regret later that others seem to know so much more than you, and you will be very unpopular and wonder why; no, I don't mean with the boys alone (although they will make fun of you and talk about it, too).

Just buckle on your good will and your interest and surprise all those in your class by becoming a good student. Then you will be interested and want to know what is going on in the world and get better work and more money later; besides making a pleasanter place for yourself.

Dates with boys? OF COURSE your parents will not let you do that. It isn't worth wasting your time now, you have too much else to do and you are too young to know how to take care of yourself. Out of school hours play ball and hike and learn to excel in outdoor games, so that you will have fine health added to a cultivated mind.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM COMING to you for the third time for advice. This time it is about sending a Christmas present. I have been a real good friend to a girl for about a year. And I have known her brother real well for a long time, though it was not until about four months ago that I started going with this girl. I should like to know what would be in good taste for me to give the boy for Christmas. I think he intends to give me something. R. E.

I have just compiled a rather long list of Christmas presents, suitable for girls to give boys and men for Christmas. This was done in answer to the many requests for this information sent into the column; however, it is rather long to print in the column and so I will ask you to send an addressed, stamped envelope right away, in which I may mail the list to you.

My dear Martha Carr:

I AM A girl 23 years old and would like to join a social club for young people. I am interested in dramatics, dancing and many other things. Do you know of one that I may join? LONELY.

There are a number of clubs of this kind, some connected with the churches and others non-sectarian; others are connected with some local, established organization.

The Girls' Club of Christ Church Cathedral, 1210 Locust street, is non-sectarian in its membership and will give you many advantages in the lines you mention. This club has an organization of 150 young men, also, and the social acquaintances there is well supervised.

I would suggest this might also be the opportunity for others who have asked for such information.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM the secretary of a group of girls organized into a club. I am asking you to print this in your column so as to help us. We want our club to expand and so are asking for nice Jewish girls, 17 to 19, to join. Those who are interested can call MU. 3835 or PA. 2427W.

THANKS A LOT.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

WHEN two couples are lunching after the show and just order drinks, what is the proper procedure? Both girls first, then boys, or one girl, then her escort and then the next couple? I hope you understand what I mean.

WONDERING.

This depends upon who is host and who are guests. The girls are asked first, of course, what they will prefer, by the one who pays for these refreshments; then the boys. But there is not much formality on such on occasion. The waiter who knows what is proper will offer the list of drinks first to the girls, or, if the host takes it from the waiter, he offers it to the girls and they make their own choice.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

A PHYSICIAN UPHOLDS FAITH

Science, Says Dr. Iago Galdston, Fails to Allow for Human Element

By Marguerite Martyn

DR. IAGO GALDSTON . . . FAVORS EXHORTATION

IF the impulse of united benevolence that fixed the attention of the whole country on the rescue of those three men entombed in a mine at Moose River, Nova Scotia, last spring—if that same impulse could be aroused and enlisted against poverty, crime, war, disease, those problems could be banished from the earth, said Dr. Iago Galdston in an interview previous to his address on "Science vs. Human Beings" at the annual luncheon of the Tuberculosis Society.

He spoke not so much in his role of noted physician representing the New York Academy of Medicine as in his other roles of publicist through his newspaper column on medical subjects and as exhorter, preacher, teacher. There was implied the idea that the fight against tuberculosis might be won by dramatization as in the case of the mine rescue. But how to do it?

Recounting vividly the drama in the obscure village watched with breathless anxiety by the world for 10 days and pointing the analogy to fights against great odds going on without drama elsewhere every day, he asked, "What was this something sublime, that something transcending that enlisted the heart of the world and made it beat in one rhythmic pulse of benevolence?" And demanded, "Since it was so where three men were concerned, why cannot it be so where all mankind is involved? If we knew how, could we not enlist human benevolence in the struggle against adversity as it afflicts not three entombed men, but masses, millions of them? Could we not then resolve our life-sapping problems, our economic disorganization and our international hatreds? Crime and poverty, malice, suspicion, destructive aggression, could they not be made to vanish, once the united benevolence of mankind were enlisted?

"I would be content if at least there were some cohesive group of men who devoted themselves to a study of this matter and gave promise of fathoming its mystery."

He spoke in favor of the exhortative appeal, which "speaking the language of poets and prophets, speaks directly to the soul." Reforms, he believes, cannot be accomplished by "appeal to reason" on scientific lines. Especially he inveighs against science, materialism, mechanical invention, when they fail to take into account human elements and moral problems.

"In no age, not even that of Pericles," he said, "has reason so dominated as in ours. And yet, with all our wealth of wonders, we are still poor and much of our poverty, as most of our wealth, we can credit to the inordinate dominance of reason's late-born creature—inductive science. Man does not live by bread alone, may not even if you throw into the bargain cake, an automobile and a radio. Man has other needs: to know God, to save his soul. All men know this, they speak of it loudly and often. Our age is not indifferent. It is merely misguided, misguided in its inordinate faith in science and scientific methods.

"From every side we hear things are wrong," he continued, "but in the same breath we hear the pontifical assurance that science and the scientific method will, in due time, solve our dilemmas."

People can be appealed to more generally through their emotions and sympathies than through reason, he pointed out. The rise to power of Mussolini, of Hitler and most other leaders can be attributed to this sort of mass appeal. Woodrow Wilson had the power to enchant the world by speaking to men's souls. Franklin Roosevelt sways people through the sound of his voice and the way he says, "My friends and neighbors," more than by any exposition of economic theories. There was little or no scientific exposition in Lincoln's greatest oration.

"People are grateful to their scientists, but they love their poets and prophets," observed Dr. Galdston. "It is not Newton and Galileo they remember, but the gentle Christ, after Him, others, sweetest among them, the humble Francis of Assisi." By Socrates the populace was swayed to extremes of reason, but finally, for all his teachings that men do evil only out of ignorance, they served him the cup of hemlock. By Plato, in turn, they were swayed to blind faith. "Salvation has not been found in either," Dr. Galdston declared. "My appeal is for a combination of both—body and soul—brain and spirit."

"RIGHT now," he continued, "I am concerned with man, the spiritual animal, and the fact that science fails to take that phase of his being into consideration. Go to science to inquire about the soul and you will find it like Mother Hubbard's cupboard, bare. Science doesn't know what it means to 'enlist the benevolence of mankind.' Benevolence has no 'ph,' and doesn't fit into a test tube. It can't be seen under a microscope, measured by a galvanometer, analyzed or synthesized in the chem lab. Benevolence smacks of the soul and the soul has gone out of style. Even the psychiatrists who go farther than others in seeking causes through personality, even they, and though the Greek word for soul is the root of the name of their specialty, defy its existence. The extreme among them are out and out mechanists who explain 'it all' by conditioning and conditioned reflexes. Even Freud shies away from the soul and speaks of the id and of the superego. The soul belongs to the realm of the mystic, the ecclesiastic, and science has a thinly veiled derisive disregard for both." There are a few exceptions, he admitted. The late T. S. Haldane, world famous physiologist, contended for the soul and all it implies. So does Dr. Carrel in his "Man, the Unknown." "But the vast majority of their scientific confreres remain unconvinced, and what is worse, uninterested.

"So this is our plight," he concluded. "We see the miracles of what I have called united benevolence. We know it arises, is engendered somehow, but we scientists—I call myself one—know not how. We have no Alladin's lamp, no scientific formula to conjure it up.

"Concretely I urge the development of a science of man as a spiritual being. I am not ready nor able to say how such a science may be developed. There are many roads to Rome. To some the religion of their fathers, to others a new humanism may light the way. I am but a voice crying in the wilderness. But I am convinced that by propagating the awareness of the need of such a science, we make a solid contribution. I am not convinced that 'it can't happen here.' I urge that unless science concerns itself with the moral problems of the world, it and we may be buried by the debris of our crumbling civilization, brought down by unsolved economic, social and international difficulties."

Dr. Galdston does not speak extemporaneously. Questions in the interview were generally answered by reference to his written manuscript. He was not to be diverted by reference to the present upheaval in England as an example of his theory of how an entire people may be aroused by the dramatization of a situation with emotional appeal.

"I do not wish to comment on that affair," he said with a chuckle that for an instant threatened his dignity. He is a large ponderous man of middle age with a benignant manner, profoundly thoughtful, with great sympathy for human problems, one can see, and a great longing for the popular touch.

"Where can I find a good bookshop?" he asked as his interviewer departed. Several big ones were recommended. "Oh, no," he said. "I mean a good second-hand bookshop.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

» by WYNN «

For Friday, Dec. 11.

FIRST of two days for withdrawing from the mad whirl to get your private bearings, especially in the emotional department; look ahead to your next phase of development. Today: favorable for quiet relaxation in small groups.

Our Life: The Wheel.

What the ancients called "The Wheel of Necessity" is our daily life of meeting the effects of what we and others have caused in the past; and what we do today, our reactions to the problems brought about by the blending of present vibrations and past performance, will in turn be the causes of new problems tomorrow and thereafter and so on. It is indeed a wheel—Karma.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead may hold responsibilities of financial and home nature, but it also has chances to earn more, especially from Feb. 17 on. Push toward occupational ideals: be alert to the new. Danger: Aug. 29-Oct. 26, 1937.

Saturday.

A Guess That Meant a Set For Contract

Game Contract Would Have Gone Down Three by Use of Singleton.

By
Ely Culbertson

"BUT how could I tell that you had a singleton diamond?" West asked his partner mournfully.

"Of course you couldn't tell," East answered amiably. "I was just hoping that you'd guess it!."

Ely Culbertson

As a matter of fact, East might well have been less amiable. The game contract just fulfilled against him would have gone down three tricks had West been able to "guess," and the real question (although, luckily, East was unaware of it) was whether it really had been such a "guess" after all.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♥	1♠	3♥	Pass
4♥	Pass	Pass	Pass

North's three heart bid was, despite his three honor tricks, a slight overbid. The fact that he had only three trumps, even though they included two honors, and bad distribution, needed considerable compensation.

On the bidding it appeared to West that the opponents' trumps were rather solid, so he disregarded the fact that a singleton trump lead usually is bad and opened it anyway. Dummy's jack was covered with East's king and the ace won. A heart was returned to the queen and a low diamond followed, declarer playing the jack and West winning with the queen.

AT THIS point West had only to count the diamonds already played and in sight to see that only the ace and nine still were outstanding. Declarer was, of course, marked with the former card, but certainly it should have taken no great acumen to note that if he had the nine, as well, East now would be void and would ruff. On the other hand, if East held the nine spot and declarer the blank ace a diamond return could do no harm.

On West's actual return of a club dummy's king won and the trumps were drawn. Then the king of clubs was cashed and a low diamond led to the ace.

Meanwhile West had been running into serious discard difficulties. Forced to reduce to four cards, he had to guard the diamond suit and therefore could keep only two spades, the ace-queen. Declarer led the diamond nine and, of course, West did not cover, since he could see that the nine blocked declarer from his established finesse. There was, however, an easy way out for declarer. He simply laid down the spade king, and after West had cashed his ace and queen, he was forced to make dummy a present of its diamond king. Thus five-odd were made.

It would have been a vastly different story had West returned a diamond after winning the queen. East would ruff and lead a spade. Another diamond lead would result in another ruff, and a second lead through the king of spades, two additional spade tricks. The four trick swing was not entirely a matter of a "bad guess."

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Miscellaneous Problems of Social Usage

School Is Also a Training Ground for Manners—Luncheon Engagements.

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post:

WILL you please tell me whether my son, who is 14, ought to continue to give up his seat on the school bus to girls going back and forth from high school? He complained the other day that if he has to continue this practice he will have to stand all winter, since the bus is too small to provide seats for everyone?

Emily Post

Answer: Since a school bus can hardly be rated as a public conveyance, I am afraid that as long as the seating is inadequate to take care of everyone, the boys will all have to give up their seats to the girls standing near them—and especially is this true if they know the girls. This seems very unfair, I know, but it would really be demoralizing to his social training were he to do otherwise. Even in a public bus a man who is a gentleman would not think of remaining seated if the woman standing in front of him were someone he knew.

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it necessary to ask the friends with whom a friend of mine is visiting to go out with us? I have always done this, but this year things are different and I haven't much money. However, I do not want her criticised for my failure to do something that would be very difficult for me to do right now, but which they may not appreciate.

Answer: Under practically all circumstances one is free to ask one's friend and not the persons with whom she happens to be staying, especially if the latter are strangers.

Dear Mrs. Post: When I first began working in this office several of the girls invited me to go to lunch with them and tried to make things pleasant for me. But now I don't seem to be able to get away ever from them and I find that their interests are not mine. I would rather not lunch with them, but seem to be getting deeper into the habit. What can you suggest for me to do?

Answer: Since you cannot very well tell them you do not want to sit with them, the only thing I can think of to suggest is that you make other engagements for yourself at noon, at first occasional and later on habitually.

Dear Mrs. Post: Socially I know it is proper for a young man to rise when women enter the room, but does this apply equally when a woman teacher enters the classroom?

Answer: If the class is very small the boys (or young men) would naturally rise for a woman teacher and, strictly speaking, for a man. But in a very big class, where the pupils are practically the audience and the teacher is a lecturer who takes her (or his) place on a platform, the students would remain seated.

HER NAME WAS WALLIS WARFIELD

By Edwina Wilson

CHAPTER THREE.

NEXT morning, the ominous day of confession. One by one, the timid approach to Miss Nan's quarters. The slow-spoken, hesitant, "I—I'm so terribly sorry. I'll never do it again—Miss Nan—honestly, I won't! But I—I did!"

Fifty-six girls in the school. Fifty-four confessions.

It was that morning that Wallis Warfield, making a clean breast of her guilt, heard Miss Nan McCulloch continue (perhaps with a bit of dry humor):

"While you are about it, Wallis, is there anything further you have to confess?"

A pause. Then, in a slow voice, "Yes, Miss Nan. I have two jars of jam—I brought them from home last time I was there—in my room. They're under the bed. And an Edam cheese in my suitcase."

The day, with its mass confessions, passed. There were no frightful consequences. No one was expelled. But the importance of Oldfield's rules—and the importance of abiding by them—had been emphasized, unforgettably.

There was another day when Miss Nan arose in the study hall and made an announcement—quite a different one.

"Girls," she began, in a clear voice, her face cameo-like, her light gray eyes unable to conceal the amusement her voice hid, "it seems that a curious epidemic has broken out in the school. I understand that a number of you, fully appreciating the desirability of a slender figure, have set about to lose weight and that, to do this, you have been taking doses of cod liver oil. Will all those who have cod liver oil in their possession please turn it over to the infirmary?"

Going to Oldfield's meant, to Wallis Warfield, separation from her mother for the first time in her life—for a period of any length. Before that, Wallis had attended Arundel School in Baltimore, a private day school for small boys and girls in the primary classes and for girls alone in the more advanced grades.

In 1908 Mrs. Warfield had married John Freeman Raisin Jr., son of the Democratic party leader of Baltimore. Newspaper reports of the marriage ceremony mention that "the beautiful young daughter of the bride" attended her mother.

JOHN FREEMAN RAISIN JR. died two years later. Widowed for a second time, Mrs. Raisin's interest—even more than most mothers'—centered in her daughter. The two were unusually devoated—and remained so always.

Mrs. Raisin saw to it that Wallis, as a youngster, always wore crisp, fresh schooldresses, that her hair-ribbons stood up in perky bows, that she was off promptly each morning in time to reach Arundel School by 9 o'clock.

Arithmetic, spelling, geography, history. Sums on the blackboard. Transitive verbs and intransitive. Participial phrases and compound sentences. "The State of Maryland is bound on the north by Pennsylvania, on the east by Delaware and the Atlantic Ocean, on the south by Virginia. . ."

Wallis Warfield, as every Maryland school child, learned how great names and deeds of the past have been associated with the State. Lord Baltimore, who founded the colony in 1652, endowing it with traditions of tolerance and independence; Charles Carroll of Carrollton, the fiery, intrepid signer of the Declaration of Independence; Fort McHenry and Francis Scott Key who saw "the rockets' red glare, the bombs bursting in air" and wrote the national anthem, "The Star Spangled Banner"; Edgar Allen Poe and the house where he lived and his grave.

There is another story—peculiarly Baltimore's own—that Wallis Warfield must have learned.

It is the story of a charming girl, beautiful and spirited, born in the city of sedate red brick houses and snow-white doorsteps 150 years ago. Betsy Patterson—the belle of a society the like of which has not flourished since. Betsy Patterson who, at 18, had suitors from north and south, east and west, who was known for her sparkling wit and her cleverness as well as her physical loveliness.

Beautiful Betsy Patterson who fell in love with a Prince——

He was Capt. Jerome Bonaparte, brother of Napoleon Bonaparte, the first Consul of France. Handsome and dashing and debonair, he came to America in 1803 and, in September, arrived in Baltimore in time for the races. (Then, as today, a Maryland tradition.)

It was Samuel Chase, another signer of the Declaration of Independence, who introduced them and for both, from that moment of first meeting the rest was inevitable. Soon Betsy Patterson and Capt. Bonaparte were engaged. Betsy's father, the doughty William Patterson, stormed. He sent his daughter away to forget—but she only remembered the more, and swore she "would rather be Jerome's wife for an hour than the wife of another for eternity."

William Patterson continued to forbid the marriage—but Betsy had a way with her. At last, though still grudgingly, he succumbed to her persuasion. The ceremony took place on Christmas Eve, and never was there a happier young couple.

Their gaiety, as historians have recorded, was "dancing over a volcano." Napoleon heard the news and was in a rage. Finally the verdict came. Capt. Jerome Bonaparte was to return to France at once with these added instructions:

"What the First Consul has prescribed, in the most positive manner, is that all captains of French vessels be prohibited from receiving on board the young person to whom the Citizen Jerome has connected himself, it being his intention that she shall, by no means, come to France, and it is his order that, should she arrive, she shall not be suffered to land, but be sent back to the United States."

Heart-sick, Jerome and Betsy decided to obey the edict. They sailed from Philadelphia, with an aunt as chaperone. But ill luck was soon upon them. First, the ship was wrecked off the Delaware coast and they were obliged to delay their voyage.

In 1804 Napoleon Bonaparte was made Emperor and letters to his brother grew more violent in their denouncements. Why had Capt. Bonaparte not obeyed his Emperor's orders?

At last the young couple reached London, where a French guard prevented her landing. Jerome, vowing undying love, set off for Paris to win permission from his brother for Betsy to enter France.

Betsy Patterson Bonaparte never saw her husband again.

Forbidden to step on French soil, she went to England and, at Camberwell, near London, her son was born. She christened him Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte. Bitter and humiliating months passed, with scant word from Jerome. Alone, in a strange country, the young mother showed a stanch and courageous nature to be marveled at.

But the blow was to fall—

Napoleon tried to force the Pope to annul the marriage of Betsy and Jerome; the Pope refused. Napoleon, thereupon, ordered French courts to declare the marriage null and void. They did—and weak, fickle Jerome went through a second marriage, dictated by his brother.

Betsy returned to Baltimore to live there until old age—a figure of mystery, tragedy and romance.

That is the story that Wallis Warfield, as every other Baltimore school child, must have learned. It is a story to be recalled for its similarity—in part, at least—with events of the times. But today there are differences, as well as similarities. Jerome Bonaparte has written his name in history as a weakling, as one to accept, with servility, the dictation of others, as a prince who was without royalty and who broke faith with his love.

WALLIS WARFIELD spent two summer at Miss Charlotte Noland's Camp for Girls, at her home, Burland, near Middleburg, Va.—the estate which today is owned by William Ziegler.

It was several years later that Miss Noland established Foxcroft, which today is so outstanding among fashionable and exclusive schools for girls in America.

The camp which Wallis Warfield and about 20 other girls, almost all from Baltimore, attended, was in no sense a school. It was designed for recreation, wholesome and out-of-doors—a place so delightful that, invariably, young charges, obliged to return home, wept.

At Miss Noland's there was horseback riding and swimming and games, rustic cottages and—for "old girls" who had been there before—the "tepee," a tent, to live in which was the absolute summit of ambition of every girl at Burland.

There was, too, "The Flying Yankee"—an old eighteenth century coach of amazing size and elegance into which 21 girls could—and did—crowd, all in their best, be-ruffled summer frocks and flower-decked straw hats, as, with Miss Noland, they set off to attend garden parties in the neighborhood.

Oh, yes, summers at Burland were, indeed, to be remembered!

The name "The Flying Yankee" was painted on the sides of the coach. There was another vehicle, unnamed and much less impressive, to ride in which was even more of a treat to Wallis Warfield and her particular circle of friends.

This was a carriage, owned by the parents of a young man named Lloyd Tabb. He was Wallis' first beau—a lad about 17 years old, whose parents' home was named "Glenora." Here Wallis and her friends often were invited to play tennis and attend Sunday evening suppers. "Glenora" impressed the girls particularly because, among other decorations in the living room, there was an altogether life-like stuffed owl.

Lloyd's guests invariably paused to pay their respects to his grandmother, arrayed in a ruffled white tea gown trimmed with lavender ribbons, as she enjoyed the afternoon from her comfortable chair on the lawn.

The equipage which transported the girls to and from "Glenora" was drawn by a horse with the somewhat strange name of "Almo Dobbin Spec Creature." There was a song about this animal which the young campers used to sing. It was an original composition and it went like this:

"Almo, sweet Almo, where have you been?
What is your home, dear? What is your phone, dear?
Your number please give.
A wedding ring is the only ring that Almo can hear."

Fragments of another melody, sung in those by-gone days, are recalled today. It is a song which was part of an amateur variety show which the girls at Burland presented. All—or almost all—of Middleburg attended the performance which was given in the town hall. It was a rather hastily rehearsed program, representing the respective talents of 20 girls ranging in age from 12 to 16 years.

The number in which Wallis Warfield took part was a sort of tableau. One girl, dressed as a dapper young man, appeared on the stage and sang a song called "Dear, Delightful Women." When the chorus was reached the "dear, delightful women" appeared, one by one, as they were named in the song:

"Dear, delightful women, how I simply love them all.
If they're bad, if they're bold,
If they're coy, if they're cold"——

So the words went—the "bad," the "bold," the "coy" and the "cold" stepping out from the wings in turn. One of these ravishing creatures (there appears to be no record which one) was Wallis Warfield, attired, like the others, in borrowed evening gowns, too large, no doubt, but very fine to 14-year-old eyes.

Middleburg liked the show, too, and applauded. Afterward there was dancing and the evening ended (rather early) as a distinct success.

Other events at Burland, still remembered, are the times the girls, invited to a garden party in Middleburg, were obliged to walk a mile to their destination; the times they went coon hunting and gigging for frogs; the time, on their way to go swimming, they crossed a cornfield and killed a black snake; "hobble skirt races" (hobble skirts were in vogue then), when they tied hair-ribbons about their pleated skirts and raced for a goal.

Burland—yes, Burland, indeed, where, from morning until night, the hours were crowded and carefree—where days were all sunlight and blue skies, and life itself as dream-like and guileless as the trail of a velvet-winged butterfly through tall, nodding poppies.

BUT summers at Burland, alas—as elsewhere—came to an end. In September there was Oldfield's again, where the rising bell rang, unfailingly, at 7 a. m., and, from then on until "lights out," hours of the day were apportioned in a schedule far different from the easy routine at camp.

There were no beaux, no "date nights" at Oldfield's. Visits from brothers, even, had to be arranged with some care.

Students were allowed two week-ends in town yearly, providing they made a certain average in scholarship.

If any student received a letter from a young man, she was instructed to take it to Miss Nan.

Students were required to make their own beds (a task which Wallis Warfield loathed.)

For going out on a wet day without rubbers the penalty was to learn a specified number of lines of poetry.

These were a few of the rules.

Religious education was given its full share of attention. Each day upon arising, five minutes were set apart for silent prayer. At the breakfast table, Miss Nan said grace. On Sundays, immediately after breakfast, the girls memorized the Collect and Gospel for the day. Then, walking two by two, attended by members of the faculty, they attended church.

Sunday dinner was served on their return from church. Afterward, one at a time, the girls appeared before Miss Nan to recite the Collect and Gospel, learned in the morning. Evensong, at 5:30 in the little stone chapel on the hill, was not obligatory, but everyone attended hymns after supper. "Hymns" was generally considered the most enjoyable part of the day, when each girl might suggest favorite religious songs and the whole group sang them.

During Lent, in particular, religious observances were marked. At 6:30 in the morning many a girl arose and, mid ice and snow, climbed the hill to the stone chapel to make devotions before breakfast. Each student, of course, made some Lenten sacrifice—usually of food, which to a school girl, is a sacrifice indeed.

But there was fun, too. Coasting in the winter . . . visiting in the pleasant intimacy of the dormitory after study hours . . . boxes from home . . . school plays . . . school parties . . . basketball . . .

There was a Sunday when nine girls from Oldfield's—including Wallis Warfield—accompanied by a teacher, set off for a walk. They passed a deserted old house with some of its windows broken. The temptation of those windows was too much! Someone picked up a stone and let it fly. A moment later, nine young ladies—far from sedate—were hurling missiles through the air. Their aim was excellent. Before the excitement ended, amid resounding sounds of smashing glass, 17 more windows showed gaping holes.

The nine had "had their fling," literally, and, without delay were to learn that, for such, there is a price.

For two weeks they were not allowed to join the other girls after study hours—easily the best part of the day. The guilty nine, instead, sat in a classroom, listening while an instructor read aloud to them. The first evening when, at the end of the hour's reading, the girls arose to go, they said good-night politely and spoke about how interesting the book had been.

"Really?" exclaimed the instructor, "I'm surprised, because I picked the dullest one I could find!"

Nothing could be a lovelier sight than May Day at Oldfield's. It was the climax of the year, in those days assuming the importance which today attaches to Commencement.

The countryside, on May Day, was newly green. The dogwood was in bloom and the carpet-like lawn, sloping down to the little wooded dell at the foot of the hill, provided a natural amphitheater for the truly beautiful ceremony.

The entire student body took part. The May Queen, elected by popular vote and amid much excitement, had chosen her court of attendants. Parents and relatives and friends and alumnae had arrived. The school was in a froth of last-minute bustle and anxiety and activity.

Then—suddenly—from open windows, from the top of the hill, came girlish voices, lifted high in the May Song; slowly, winding its way down the hillside, came the procession. First, the May Queen, in gleaming white, looking proud and young and lovely. Then her attendants, two by two. Lastly, the rest of the students, each wearing white, each carrying flowers to be presented to the Queen.

"Flowers of tender hue
We pick, dear Queen,
This day for you"——

Young voices chanted the song, placing the flowers before the Queen. Young faces, young hearts, a young world. It was all stirring and beautiful and a little exciting. Seventeen-year-old Wallis Warfield, taking part in this pageantry, must have felt its spell. She must have felt, too, vague regrets over saying good-by—for youth's regrets, usually, are vague.

Wallis was not returning to Oldfields next fall. It was a good-by—to childhood.

A DOCTOR TALKS OF HEALTH

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Dr. Clendening

THE amount of blood which goes to an extremity, either the foot or the hand, is controlled by a network of nerves which arise from the sympathetic nervous system, and at some places enmesh the arteries. By their action these vessels can be stimulated to go into spasm so that no blood gets to the surface, or they may dilate so that the foot is flooded with blood. When the muscles are working they need an extra supply of blood, and the vessels dilate to allow this.

Temperature changes also affect the vessels. Cold at first contracts. Because nature realizes that the part needs more blood to warm it up, it dilates them. To heat, they respond by a very short period of contraction and then by dilation. It is easy to see that if these mechanisms get out of control, the results will be uncomfortable and possibly quite serious.

For the prevention of chilblains, which is the simplest of the conditions in which the nervous control of the blood vessels is deranged, the important thing is to take special pains not to interfere with free circulation in the feet. Tight shoes and tight garters should be avoided. The temperature of the feet should be kept at a uniform level by wearing soft woolen socks or stockings. It is a good thing to raise and lower the feet every once in a while. Put your feet on your desk, in other words.

FOR the relief of itching and burning and cracking, the feet should be washed in cold salt water, wiped dry, and treated with equal parts of glycerin and tincture of iodine. This iodized glycerin should be smeared all over the foot, and the foot covered with a stocking on retiring.

The skin should be hardened by any form of alcohol, a homely old application being a solution of salt in brandy applied to the skin.

Another attack on all these foot and leg conditions is by limiting the amount of tobacco. Tobacco has a well-known influence in constricting blood vessels. Angina pectoris (pain in the heart) is probably due to a spasm of the blood vessels going to the heart, and in this connection the physician always stops the use of tobacco because tobacco increases the spasm. So in those cases called intermittent claudication, in which there is pain in the calves of the legs on walking due to spasm of the vessels, and in Berger's disease, tobacco is stopped.

If these cases become severe enough, a great deal of success has been attained by stripping away the nerves enmeshing the blood vessels and so relieving them of nervous control. Also machines, by which pressure is alternately increased and decreased around an extremity by suction, have been found valuable (Vapex machines.)

IN LOVE WITH A T-MAN

A Serial Romance

By ROB. EDEN

Paul Makes an Agreement with Nick for Carol's Safety, But Nick Indicates He Does Not Intend to Keep It.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR.

CAROL didn't want to speak, she had been telling herself that she wouldn't speak, that she couldn't be made to speak, that if she spoke she would fail Paul even more than she had done, and yet when Nick looked over at her, the smile frozen on his face, and she felt Jessica's firm fingers gripping her arm, and heard Jessica's sibilant whisper, she did cry out, "He's telling the truth, I am here! I"——

But that was enough for both Jessica and Nick. Mrs. Reynolds whipped the gag back on her mouth and Carol's eyes closed weakly.

A silence after this both in the corridor and in the room, a silence like slow water dripping against Carol's brain. Nick broke it finally.

"What are you going to do about it, Devlin? Like to consider my terms?"

—And I've done this to him, Carol thought—I shouldn't have spoken. If I hadn't, he wouldn't be considering any terms that Nick might make. I've done this to him—

"And what are your terms, Nick Oliver?"

"Let me get away. My car is right outside the bedroom window." Nick was speaking very fast, but very distinctly. "Call off your men for half an hour, that's all I need. Half an hour and Miss Mayo will be safe, I assure you."

"You'll leave her in the flat?"

"Naturally not. I'll take her with me, but when I'm safe away I'll drop her and she'll be all right. My word as a gentleman."

"I'm not considering your word as a gentleman, Oliver."

"Those are my terms. All your men and yourself withdrawn for half an hour. No monkey business about it. I take Miss Mayo with me, and drop her out of the car some place. No designated place. Any monkey business and, well—I'm desperate now, Devlin. You've forced me to be desperate."

"Anybody with you besides Miss Mayo?"

"One man."

Carol opened her eyes and looked up at Jessica. There was a smile on her face, too, a confident smile, and the tense confidence in the room had increased a hundredfold.

"I'll have to think this over," came from Paul.

Jessica sat down on the rocker, and pulled out her cigarette case, but when she had a cigarette out and to her lips, she took it away, put it back into the case again and the case in her coat pocket. She was not rocking now, but she was still smiling.

Nick was standing by the door, one hand on the wood panel, the other on his coat pocket, where his gun was.

He won't do it, Carol said to herself. He won't, and I won't blame him if he doesn't. Working so long, and here he has Nick—and Jessica, even if he doesn't know she's here. Both of them, and then—

But into the midst of her thoughts came Paul's voice. "You win, Oliver. I'm taking my men away. I'll give you half an hour, exactly half an hour, but I must have Miss Mayo returned to me alive. That's final. And she must be let out of your car somewhere within an hour. Half hour for you, half hour for Miss Mayo. We'll use my time. Set your watch. Exactly 1:15. By 1:20 I'll have my men away, and you can start. One twenty, and at 1:50 we start out."

"Ready," she whispered back. "What about the suitcases?"

"We'll have to leave them"——

There were sounds now in the corridor and in the alley. The feet of men moving away. Finally the sounds ceased, and Nick took his eyes from his watch.

"Now!" he said, and he picked Carol up in his arms and hurried with her to the bedroom. Jessica was before him, pulling the blinds up, unlocking the window, pushing it up. But she wasn't the first out the window. Nick was, leaving Carol perched on the still. Somehow, and very quickly Carol was dumped down to Nick, and then put into the front seat of the sedan. Jessica hurried in beside her.

AS soon as Nick sat down he put his foot on the starter, and through the quiet alley came the noise of the motor.

"Watch the time," he said to Jessica who was beside him. "My watch is in my coat pocket."

"Where to?" she asked. "I don't trust Paul, Nick."

"Never mind that now. I thought we'd try the Ventura road—there's that shack of Davidson's in Hidden Valley."

"The girl's going with us, of course."

"Sure, she's going with us, but we've got to get rid of this sedan and pretty soon."

Jessica had a gun in her lap, her right hand was holding it, but it was not a relaxed hand. As the small dash light picked out the dull black handle, Carol felt that it was ready, any time to shoot. Jessica's index finger was on the trigger.

There was a watch in her left hand, Nick's watch, the back nestled into the palm of her hand, and the face up so she could see what time it was. Carol kept looking from the white dial with the gold hands to the gun, and then ahead at the street.

She knew what time it was to the second and as she kept looking at the watch constantly, she wondered why she was so interested in the time. She needn't be, because time didn't mean anything any more.

Jessica and Nick were not going to keep their part of the bargain with Paul. They were not putting her out of the car, they were taking her with them. Where they were taking her shouldn't matter, either, whether it was to some shack in Hidden Valley, or some other place.

No, the time shouldn't worry her, nor where she was going, but they both did.

Did Paul really expect Nick to keep his word? Was he counting on Nick's promise?

She kept listening for cars coming from behind. Now and then she did hear one and a thrill of joy passed over her, which was followed almost instantly by a feeling that chilled her very bones, and left her lips, under their gag, trembling.

When the car came ahead of them and passed them, for Nick was not driving very fast, she was glad and sorry, too, at the same time, for if the car had contained Paul's men — she didn't like to think about that, and yet she wanted to think of it, even if Jessica's gun was so ready.

"Time." Nick asked occasionally for he was not taking his eyes off the street.

Jessica would give it to him. Once Carol saw that she had been a minute fast in her calculation.

One thirty—1:32—1:35—1:40.

"Sure there's no one following," Nick said, when he had turned up an alley and down again at the other end, and then two blocks on to another alley. 'I'm certain."

"You're not heading for the Elite garage?" Jessica's voice was strained.

"No, I thought I'd go by Rod's, and if his car is in front of the house as usual, I can pick it up. You can drive this one away—it's better than the Elite because there's only one man on duty at this time of night, and he'd remember me and the car."

SYNOPSIS.

CAROL MAYO loves her employer. PAUL DEVLIN, who is, on the surface, a real estate dealer and is actually a T-MAN, a secret service operative on the trail of a clever band of counterfeiters. In the four months that Devlin has been in Los Angeles, he has become engaged to JESSICA REYNOLDS, a beautiful young widow whom Carol heartily dislikes. Carol even suspects Jessica of being a member of the counterfeiting band when she learns that NICK OLIVER, leader of the suspects, is in love with Jessica.

Nick and Jessica plan an "accident" to Paul and Carol. But Devlin has been expecting some such move and, when a big truck attempts to ram his car one foggy night, he fires into the cab, wounding a man.

Paul does not learn that the wounded man is LARRY, younger brother of Nick, who with his wife, MARGARET, and SAM and NORA BOLES, their "servants," have been part of Nick's society "front." Nick refuses to have a doctor for Larry, and Margaret grows to hate Nick, holding him responsible for Larry's death. Though she is guarded every moment, she nevertheless manages to get a note to Carol Mayo, who she knows is Devlin's secretary.

Nick surprises Carol in a cheap apartment on Minor street. He seizes, binds and gags her and holds her prisoner in the flat. Later, Jessica, dressed as a youth, joins him.

Paul arrives at the scene but is unable to do anything as Nick threatens to harm Carol.

China and Glass For the Holidays

By Elizabeth Boykin

A LADY with a house enjoys planning a pretty party table as much as she does decking herself out in her best bib and tucker. Because being a nice hostess reflects just as much glory on herself as looking like the Queen of Sheba (or was it beauty that the Queen of Sheba was so famous for anyway)?

The holidays supply the occasions for tables that do a lady proud . . . that's why she's poking around the china and glass departments this time of year looking for ideas and the little extras that make table settings gracious.

We're guilty too of blocking the traffic in our favorite china department. Here's our problem: We have Italian pottery plates in fruit design and we adore them . . with them we have soft cloudy green round pottery bread and butter plates, and for soup some interestingly shaped bowls in the same color of cloudy green except that they're without design. Our salad plates have darling old music designs on them and our tea cups have an all over flower design that is inside the cups as well as outside. But what glassware would be best with that assortment — and what for dessert plates?

We looked and looked and finally decided on some fat unusual looking amber tumblers, and for dessert, plates of creamy color with open fret work edges, not a bit practical, but we're planning to wash them oh so carefully. And when we have ice cream to serve, well'll set amber sherbets on these creamy plates. For our Christmas table with this service, we're going to use a natural linen Deruta cloth with a centerpiece of blue spruce and fruits in the colors on our plates.

Snow on the Evergreens

Time taken to knock off the snow from the evergreens before it gets too heavy is well spent, as an overloading of snow on them means breakage.

The "Let-Down" Which Occurs In Man's Life

By The Rev. J. F. Newton

TO every man and woman, soon or late, either before or during the middle years, there comes a time when life seems to lose its zip, zest and sparkle. The romance is rubbed off.

It is a trying time, if not the one really serious danger that awaits us. We seem to have run into a blind alley, a dead end; there is nothing left which stirs us deeply enough to ward off dullness.

Our days are apt to be rather drab and tasteless; we have outlived the things that once made our hearts beat fast. Life has ceased to interest us in any intense and vivid way.

We may still get a mild joy out of business, games, functions, country life, the arts, books, bobbies. But it is so tame, so tepid, that we would give up all such devices, if we had anything to turn to.

To our friends we may seem gay enough, but when we are alone and face facts, the plain truth is that we are tired of the whole bag of tricks; and, truth to tell, a bit tired of ourselves, too.

In desperation some try violent adventures—illicit love affairs, drink, dope, cynicism, even mysticism in some quaint cult; anything to escape the tedium—but these are not ways out.

What, then, shall we do when life goes stale and flat? First, we must pull ourselves up, take stock of facts, and face reality. Life was not meant to be just a series of kicks and thrills.

The only cure for such a letdown is a mixture of faith, courage, and hard common sense, self-administered, a teaspoonful twice a day in a glass of hope, with plenty of spiritual exercise.

Our religion, if we have any, ought to help us, but not many of us know how to use it. Anyway, if life has lost its thrill, we must put thrill into it. Nobody else can do it for us.

Up to 40 life comes to us; after 40 we have to go to it, take hold of it, and shape it to lovely ends. It is one thing to make a living; it is another thing to make life livable and lively.

WHY GROW OLD?

By Josephine Lowman

GOLF is one of the best ways in the world to relax if you are no good and don't care much how you play. The brisk walking in the fresh air between shots, and the swings you take make you feel grand. But golf is one of the world's most trying experiences if you play in the nineties or better. Remember that lots of our fatigue comes from emotional and body tension.

1. Driving when you are in a hurry.
2. Being a mother if you think "mother always knows best."
3. Keeping house if you consider yourself a model housekeeper .
4. Playing bridge if you think you are good. Etc., etc.

Here is one more exercise to help you relax in your boudoir.

Stand erect, arms at sides. Without moving the feet, twist or turn the body from side to side as far as you can.

What is your figure moulding problem? If you want your questions answered directly, send a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope. All correspondence will be strictly confidential. Address your letters to Josephine Lowman, care of St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Fresh Atmosphere

At least once every 24 hours the living room of the house should be completely flushed with fresh air from out-of-doors. The wise time for this healthful practice is in the morning when the fire is burning up and the housewife is active in dusting and straightening up. Haven't you gone to homes where you fairly ached to give the house a good airing? Don't let anyone feel that way about yours.

By Albert Edward Wiggam, D. SC.

1. —This is just what they will not have to do in later life. Some pupils will become street sweepers, some politicians, some college professors, etc. As Jeanne G. Gilbert points out in School and Society, the night watchman does not have to compete with the corporation president or the taxi driver with the bishop. It would be ideal, if we knew in school just what they were all going to do and arrange the competition as in a tournament, giving each his proper handicap; we can approximate it by putting the average with the average, the slow with the slow and the fast with the fast. This stimulates all to do their best.

2. —It is often about the most undesirable. That fellow who persists in writing me twice a week from out in Illinois that I am a dumb head and all my answers are wrong—persistence may be a good trait from his standpoint, but I have a different theory. People who persist in putting their noses into other people's business, who persist in their own notions as to what their neighbors or town or school ought to do are the biggest of "life's little irritations." Persistence, like all good things, is easily overdone.

3. —Nearly all standards of feminine beauty have been created by men. There has never been a truly great woman creator of styles. Even the present style body of women — the athletic style, as compared with the corn-fed chorus girl of the "gay nineties" has been chiefly developed by the men artists—all the way from magazine cover designs to styles in women's clothes. But, as I pointed out the other day from Dr. Knight Dunlap, psychologist, women have adopted these styles, and in a sense lead the men artists on because the object of both is to enhance women's beauty.

LEGS LOOK BETTER—STOCKINGS WEAR LONGER —THANKS TO NEW SUDS, says Miss Louise Allison

● It's a truly exciting experience . . . to use this amazing new suds for the first time! Dreft is so different! So much pleasanter, easier to wash with!

And Dreft not only makes stockings seem newer, "younger", better-looking . . . but it makes them wear longer, too, say women.

"I was astonished," says Miss Louise Allison, 2324 No. Sheffield Ave., Chicago. "I found that my stockings lasted more than half as long again when I washed them in Dreft. And I was just delighted with the way they looked."

When you first use Dreft, look for these three remarkable differences: 1. Dreft makes suds as easily in hard as in soft water—five times more suds than any soap flakes in hardest water. 2. It never forms soap scum—that messy "ring around the washbasin." 3. It instantly and completely dissolves in cool water, the right temperature for washing delicate fabrics . . . leaves no annoying soap particles to catch in your dainty garments. Anything safe in water is safe in gentle Dreft suds. Ask your dealer for Dreft today! Procter & Gamble.

CREAM OF MUSHROOM SOUP
PYRAMID SUNFLOWER SANDWICH
TOMATOES FILLED WITH CELERY ROOT COFFEE
VINAIGRETTE DRESSING
LEMON JELLY ROLL.

CREAM OF MUSHROOM SOUP.

Peel, chop, or coarsely grind, one pound of mushrooms. Place the peelings in a sauce pan with one small sliced onion, a few pieces of celery and one pint of chicken stock. Simmer slowly until the vegetables are tender, then press through a sieve. Simmer the chopped mushrooms in two tablespoons of butter until moisture is absorbed. Add one heaping tablespoon of flour and stir until dissolved. Pour on one quart of milk and one cup of cream and bring to a boil. Add the strained mixture and let all cook until slightly thickened.

PYRAMID SUNFLOWER SANDWICH.

Slice white and whole wheat bread and cut into large rounds. Pick over three-quarters pound of fresh crab meat, season highly and blend with mayonnaise. Spread bread rounds with mayonnaise. Cover one slice of white bread with a thick filling of crab meat. On this place a round of the whole wheat bread, more crab meat, and on top another round of white bread.

Mash three-fourths of a pound of cream cheese and moisten with just enough cream to spread. Season with one teaspoon of grated onion, one-half teaspoon of worcestershire sauce, celery salt, salt, one teaspoon of paprika and a little white pepper. Beat until smooth and well blended with seasonings. Spread smoothly over top and sides of sandwich. Place on top strips of Wisconsin yellow cheddar cheese rather close together, forming petals, and in the center place chopped ripe olives. With a pancake turner, carefully place the sandwiches on a flat pan and run under flame long enough to heat, but not to melt the cheese out of shape. Place on individual plates and garnish with watercress.

TOMATOES WITH CELERY ROOT FILLING.

Peel firm, ripe tomatoes and scoop out. Invert to drain, then salt generously. Peel one large celery root and cook in boiling water until tender, adding salt to the water five minutes before removing from fire. Drain and chill. Dice and toss with dressing made as follows:

One teaspoon of salt.
Two tablespoons of vinegar.
Six tablespoons of olive oil.
One tablespoon of minced sour pickles.
One teaspoon chopped parsley.
One teaspoon capers.

Mix the salt, paprika, cayenne and vinegar; add the oil, slowly beating with an egg beater until quite thick, then add the remaining ingredients. With this, fill the tomatoes and surround with hearts of lettuce.

LEMON JELLY ROLL.

Three eggs.
Three-fourths cup pastry flour.
Pinch of salt.
Three-fourths cup sugar.
Three-fourths teaspoon baking powder.
One teaspoon vanilla.

Beat the eggs very light, gradually adding the sugar and vanilla. Fold in the flour, which has been sifted with the baking powder and salt. Butter and line a 14 by 18 inch jelly roll pan with buttered paper. Pour in the mixture and spread evenly. Bake in a moderately hot oven about 10 minutes. Turn out on a towel dusted with powdered sugar. Remove the paper, trim edges and while warm roll while the filling is being prepared.

LEMON FILLING.

Mix one cup of sugar in a saucepan with one heaping tablespoon of cornstarch, the grated rind of one lemon, one tablespoon of butter and one cup of boiling water. Cook until clear and thick. Remove from fire and stir in five tablespoons of lemon juice. Cool. Unroll cake and spread filling on thickly. Roll and place in refrigerator. Over top spread sweetened and flavored whipped cream.

Maple Seafoam

One cup brown sugar.
One and one-half cups maple syrup.
Two-thirds cup water.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
Two egg whites, beaten.
One-half cup nuts.
One-half teaspoon vanilla.

Mix the sugar, water and salt. Boil gently and without stirring until a "hard" click ball forms, when a portion of the candy is tested in a cup of cold water. Pour into beaten egg whites and beat until stiff. Add the rest of the ingredients. Drop the candy from the tip of a spoon onto waxed paper. Chill until firm.

Peanut Clusters

Two one-half pound sweet chocolate bars.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
Two and one-half cups shelled roasted peanuts.
One-quarter teaspoon vanilla.

Mix chocolate and salt in a double boiler, heat until melted. Add nuts and vanilla. Arrange nuts in clusters on waxed paper. Chill until firm.

Other nuts, alone, or in combination can be used.

Good Letters Are Easy If You Know How

IT'S a snap to write thrilling letters, alive with personality, if you know the easy rules.

Take the simple framework for a letter of thanks. Etiquette says—tell how you appreciate the giver's thoughtfulness, why you like the gift or how you'll use it, as well as expressing thanks.

So, to Tom, begin:

"How did you guess I'd flattened my nose against shop windows showing those darling carved bracelets? But I saw none as handsome as your gift. It's perfect with my green dress . . ."

To Aunt Martha:

"So you remembered I'm doing over my room and sent that charming lamp. I love its mellow glow . . ."

Our 32-page booklet gives other letter forms you can easily clothe in your own words to express your own personality. Also samples for social and business letters.

Send 10c for your copy of GOOD LETTER - WRITING MADE EASY to St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Home Service, 635 Sixth ave., New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Vinegar on a soft cloth will clean isinglass.

Ham Baked With Spices

Ten-pound ham.
Twenty-four whole cloves.
One teaspoon cinnamon.
One cup dark brown sugar.
One-half cup vinegar.
One cup grape juice.
One-fourth cup lemon juice.

Scrub ham, cover by four inches with cold water. Slowly bring to boil. Cover and simmer two hours. Let ham cool in stock, remove ham and discard rind and part of the fat. Place ham, fat side up, in baking pan. Stick with cloves and sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar. Add rest of ingredients. Cover and bake two hours in moderately slow oven. Baste every 20 minutes. Remove cover and bake 30 minutes to brown top.

If preferred, the ham can be baked without the first cooking and about four and one-half hours of very slow baking will be required.

Banana Pie

One quart sweet milk, the yolks of three eggs, three tablespoons cornstarch, a pinch of salt, one teaspoon vanilla, one-half cup sugar. Cook in a double boiler until it thickens. Slice three bananas into a baked pie shell and pour custard over them. Cool and cover with a meringue made of the egg whites and sugar. Brown lightly in the open.

For Quick Work

A wool duster that is attached to a handle is just the best ever when that inevitable day comes that the dusting must be done in a hurry if done at all. Perhaps it is just surface dusting but when a house is really kept clean this may be indulged in occasionally.

Notes on New Motion Pictures For the Week

ELEANOR POWELL'S new picture, "Born to Dance," opens at Loew's Theater today. With several players from her previous film, "Broadway Melody of 1936," the full cast includes James Stewart as leading man, Virginia Bruce, Una Merkel, Sid Silvers, Frances Langford, Buddy Ebsen, Raymond Walburn and Alan Dinehart. Songs for the show, by Cole Porter, who wrote "Night and Day" and "Anything Goes," are "Easy to Love," "I've Got You Under My Skin," "Swinging the Jinx Away," "Hey, Babe, Hey," "Rap-Tap on Wood" and "Rolling Home."

The show opens with a scene on a submarine coming into New York harbor. Stewart, Silvers and Ebsen are members of the crew, of which Walburn is captain. Once on land, the sailors start for the "Lonely Hearts Club," there to find the girls, Miss Powell, Miss Merkel and Miss Langford. Virginia Bruce comes into the story later as a Broadway star who pretends to have a romance with Stewart for publicity purposes. Dinehart is producer of the show, in which Miss Powell eventually becomes the star. Scenes are those of New York, one being a reproduction of a part of Central Park, with a 25-foot statue of Abraham Lincoln as the main item.

BEN BERNIE and his Lads, stage show attraction for the week beginning tomorrow, at the Ambassador, overshadow the screen feature, which is "Make Way for a Lady," co-starring Herbert Marshall and Gertrude Michael. Bernie, well-known for his radio programs and stage show appearances, has in his company "Colonel" Manny Prager, Ray Hendricks, Billy Wilson, Joey Rardin, Danny Meehan and the Four Playboys.

In "Make Way for a Lady," an adaptation of Elizabeth Jordan's novel, "Daddy and I," Ann Shirley is the motherless daughter of Marshall. Coming across evidence of a past infatuation between her father and Margot Grahame, the daughter tries to further the romance and fails to see that Marshall is interested in her high school teacher, Miss Michael. In time, the daughter is also the instrument for bringing Marshall and Miss Michael together.

THE Fox began its new picture week yesterday with "Polo Joe," a Joe E. Brown comedy and "The Luckiest Girl In the World," comedy romance featuring Jane Wyatt and Louis Hayward. In "Polo Joe," Brown is a wealthy young man who returns from China, to visit a multi-millionaire aunt. He discovers that his aunt's social set, which includes Carol Hughes, the girl next door, judges all men by their ability to play polo. So he and his valet lay plans for an intensive period of training. The kidnaping of Brown complicates the situation but he finally is able to take part in the big game and cover himself with glory. The valet is played by Skeets Gallagher. In "The Luckiest Girl In the World," Miss Wyatt is an heiress who sets out to prove to her father that she can like on $150 a month. Louis Hayward helps her prove it.

TAKING advantage of the King Edward VIII-Wally Simpson romance, the Missouri Theater tomorrow is bringing in a British film, called "Love in Exile", which is about a King who abdicates for romantic and political reasons. Clive Brooks plays King Regis, Helen Vinson, the woman he loves, Mary Carlisle an American debutante and Cecil Ramage, an American millionaire seeking oil concessions. The plot moves toward the restoration of King Clive Brook and the coronation of Miss Vinson as Queen. It is taken from Gene Markey's novel, "His Majesty's Pyjamas". Also on the Missouri bill is a comedy romance, "Easy to Take", in which John Howard is "Uncle Roddy", a children's hour storyteller on the radio. His life becomes very complicated when he is appointed guardian for a spoiled child, and falls in love with the boy's sister, Marsha Hunt. On its short subject program, the Missouri will have a Popeye cartoon, a musical comedy short and a travelogue.

REVIVING Grace Moore's famous film, "One Night of Love," as its main feature, the Shubert will add "Easy Money," featuring Onslow Stevens. "Easy Money" has to do with a gang promoting fake accident claims, with Stevens as the young attorney who smashes the ring. Kay Linaker is the girl in the case. The new program, including several short subjects, comes in tomorrow.

"Murder With Pictures," a first-run film starring Lew Ayres and Gail Patrick, opened at the St. Louis today, with a vaudeville bill composed of Roy Rogers, monologue artist, Arlton Emmy and his Mad Wags, James Alvin and Mildred Gilbert, mouth-organ duo, Verna Burke, St. Louis singer, the Roxyettes and Freddy Mack's band. "Murder With Pictures" is developed around the mysterious slaying of an attorney while several cameras are photographing him. Miss Patrick and Ayres are suspected of the murder and have to prove themselves innocent.

Changing its program to take advantage of holdover pictures from other theaters, the Orpheum today is playing "Three Men On a Horse" and "Flying Hostess," but tomorrow will put the Bing Crosby film, "Pennies From Heaven" into the place of "Flying Hostess."

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

MUSHIDI—FATHER OF 910 CHILDREN—My statement is based on Pere Labouchere's book, "Vingt Ans au Kongo." Father Labouchere spent 20 years as a missionary in the Kongo. In his account of Mushidi, the King of Budkey, he devotes considerable space to tell of this astounding number of children, and also the great number of wives. The number of wives could not be ascertained with accuracy, but "they probably numbered 5000." As Mushidi was a vassal King of the great Sova (Ruler) of Loanga, he was obliged to pay an annual tribute to his overlord. This tribute consisted of several hundred wives, which he had to deliver to the Sova each year. Mushidi was arrested by the Belgian authorities and tried for the murder of 27 of his wives. He was found guilty and executed in 1905.

THE SONG
By Frank Bennett
The Daily Short Story

MARY'S father left her at the white marble entrance. She seemed very tiny as she stood beside the great concert hall, waiting for the doors to open and hoping that someone would notice her soon. Then she heard the click of high heels.

It was Maxine, an usher. One glance at the white, pinched face with its sightless eyes and the ticket clutched tightly in the tiny fist brought her to the side of the little girl.

Mary smiled up eagerly. It seemed to her that Maxine must be a very beautiful lady to have such a nice voice. Indeed, she was beautiful, but her eyes were perhaps a little too cynical for a girl of 19. But, of course, Mary didn't know that.

"I've come to hear the great Rosa Milo sing," Mary said quickly.

Maxine laughed a little. "Well, what do you know about that! A kid like you coming to hear the great Milo!"

"Mother says she is a very great artist, and she wants me to hear her. Mother couldn't come because she's sick, so daddy left me on the way to work. Mother thinks I should hear the great Milo, because when I grow up I'm going to be a singer. You know, blind people do sing."

"What's a break?" Mary asked.

"Skip it, kid." Maxine glanced at Mary's ticket. "A standing-room ticket, eh? That's not so good. A tiny kid like you won't have much chance standing because you'll have to stay in the corridor."

"But I'll be able to hear, won't I?"

"Come on inside and we'll see," Maxine said. "Here, I'm going to put you on this chair so you won't get stepped on. You just sit tight. After the crowd's seated I'll come back."

Mary sat very quiet. She wondered if she would be able to hear the great Rosa Milo. She hoped so. Mother and she had saved pennies many weeks for this great occasion. Daddy had even walked to work and had given her the carfare.

"Yes, just about. Listen. Hear the people cheering? She's just come out on the stage and bowing and smiling just as if she owned the whole world. She's wearing a plain white dress that comes clear to the floor. She looks like an angel who's dropped right out of the sky. It's too bad you can't see her."

Maxine's eyes were suddenly misty. "Listen, kid, I've got to go now. You sit right here until I come back."

Mary strained every muscle, trying to hear the voice of the great Rosa Milo. Occasionally it came very faintly as from a great distance, but most of the time she couldn't hear the singer at all.

At last there was a great deal of applause, and she heard people crowding passing her. Then after a long time, Maxine's voice was close to her ear again.

"HOW'D you like it, kid?" Mary smiled a little sadly. "I—I couldn't hear very much of it."

"I was afraid of that—so guess what? I talked to the great Milo between numbers and told her about you—that you were going to be a singer when you grew up. She said if I'd bring you to her dressing room after the concert, she'd sing a song for you."

Mary's heart almost stopped beating. The great Milo would sing for her—a song just for her! She was suddenly afraid she'd wake up and find it all just a very nice dream.

Maxine took hold of her hand. It was a soft, warm hand, yet it seemed very strong as it guided her through the empty auditorium.

They stopped, and Maxine said, "Great artists are sort of queer, kid. Rosa Milo probably won't say a word to you, and don't you say anything unless she does. Not even thank her."

"I won't," Mary promised.

They passed through a door, and Mary heard it close behind them. Maxine put her on a chair. A moment later, someone began playing a piano; then a sweet, clear voice sang. Mary was spellbound. Tears came into her sightless eyes. Her pinched, white face shone. The great Rosa Milo was singing just for her! She could not remember ever being so happy before.

All too soon the song ended, and Maxine had hold of her hand again.

"Be a good girl, kid, and maybe you'll get a break some day," she said, and turned back into the concert hall.

Her eyes were very clear. Tomorrow she'd sing that same song that she had sung for the poor little blind kid, and she'd keep that glowing, pinched face and the sightless, brimming eyes before her. With a setup like that, she'd win in the contest—she just couldn't help winning!

Modern Trend In Gift Ideas For Christmas
By Adelaide Kerr

NEW YORK,

THE Christmas gifts which will deck sparkling trees this year reflect the front page news of 1936, and the modern trend of the times.

King Edward's coming coronation has produced glamorous seed pearl jewelry reminiscent of the old Edwardian epoch and a host of gemmed hair ornaments to tuck into Yuletide packages for women. "Spanish mantilla" lace headdresses for evening wear and lace-trimmed handkerchiefs show the effect of the rebellion in Spain. A wealth of new tricks in luggage shows the traveling tendencies of a world that has begun to globe-trot again. The entire array of selections follows the modern's demand for gifts which are both useful and decorative.

The jeweled gadgets for women are the most colorful they have been in years. Besides the seed pearl jewelry (lockets, ear-rings and clips covered with the tiny pearls), there are clusters of gold flowers centered with turquoise, coral or pearl bead "seeds" to clip to the front of a frock, black enamel bracelets with detachable jewel fan clips at each end and gold starfish pins.

New compacts are made of dull finished metals designed on as clean cut lines as the figures in a geometry textbook. Perfumes appear in both clear and colored bottles in scents for all types of gown and mood. One of the newest perfume gadgets is a set of five bottles providing scents for every kind of clothes in the wardrobe from evening costumes to sports togs.

The gift luggage and travel accessories seem to anticipate every need. New bottle bags—trim little affairs lined with bottles and jars—have replaced the older and larger "fitted case." Sets of three silk envelopes in graduated sizes are ready to carry the lingerie, stockings and handkerchiefs of the woman traveler and compact manicure sets provide care for her hands.

The same forethought has been given to travel accessory presents for men. Something new and different is a clothes brush with a removable lid top under which is fitted a shaving set. Leather boxes with rubberized linings provide the space for his toilet articles when traveling and another case holds the twin military brushes that have long been a favorite.

Here are other gift suggestions for men: A pipe with perforated swing lid which prevents its going out in bad weather, a pencil with a cigarette lighter in the end, a belt fitted into a box which can later be used as a cigarette box. The usual ties, handkerchiefs, shirts, pajamas, bedroom slippers and wallets are laid out in profusion.

For children the shops offer a wide variety of gifts. Building sets which will construct anything from a barn to a skyscraper. Marionette sets, rainy day play sets and painting outfits, replete with brushes and easel, are among the outstanding offerings. New stationery is stencilled with animals cardboard illustrations which pop up when the book is opened. There are also many new travel books for juvenile readers.

This year's gifts will be enveloped in gay wrappings finished with bright ribbons and colorful accents.

Stag Party Lunch

One housewife leaves an empty cereal carton in the kitchen the night hubby has the boys in to play cards. After they have gone he empties all the ash trays into the carton and tucks in the top. There is not that unpleasant stale odor through the house in the morning.

Keep Furs Clean

Don't forget the fur you are wearing will pick up dirt and dust just the same as any other article of apparel. Brush and comb the fur occasionally and air it well. It requires it.
